Engineer Appears After Week Delay

The February issue of the Penn State Engineer goes on sale today and tomorrow at the Student Union desk and the Corner Room, according to John H. Householder, circulation manager.

Originally scheduled for publication last Monday, the Engineer was held up because of printing difficulties.

Subscriptions for the engineering magazine are now being sold by staff members. Those buying subscriptions may pick up their copies at the Student Union desk upon presentation of the coupon. These subscriptions begin with the issue now on sale.

There will be a few days' delay in preparing address labels for the mailing list of this issue, said Householder.

Waitress Tips Us Off

A Corner Room waitress, Mrs. Eleanor Walker, expressed her sentiments about Penn State's search for the All-American coed in this way. "I can't describe a typical coed for you, but I do have someone in mind whom I think would fill the bill. She's Carol Dieckman who comes in here quite often."

Swimming, skiing, fencing, rifle and ice hockey will be restored to the Nittany sports schedule in 1947.
