

"On Dr. Pundt and the LA Forum Story"

Putting out an eight-page issue of the Collegian all of the copy is prepared for the printer in the short period of two hours—tends to give an editor grey hair.

Preparing so much copy in such a short period of time tends to increase the possibility of making mistakes; last Friday's eight-page issue had one garbled story that we would like to retract.

We refer to the story that was headed, "Pundt Speaks to LA Forum."

Checking over the Friday morning issue we were horrified to find that we had done all sorts of horrors to Dr. Pundt. We had him saying things he never dreamed of saying.

To enumerate: The lecture is to be given this

Thursday night, not last night as stated in the Collegian. It is true that Dr. Pundt went into the service (in 1942) as a private and that he rose from the ranks but he assures us that he was only a major when he was discharged and not a major general.

Collegian generosity went further and appointed Pundt military governor of Bavaria; the true facts are that he was in charge of educational and religious affairs under the military governor of Bavaria.

We hope this retraction will clear all doubt from the minds of any future biographers of this brilliant but modest historian.

Cabinet to Check LA Elections

Charges of fraud in the recent Liberal Arts Student Council elections were brought at Thursday night's Cabinet meeting, when it was stated by one Cabinet member that students from Schools other than Liberal Arts voted in that School's elections.

Although Fred Kecker, president of the Liberal Arts Student Council, expressed doubt that such fraud was evident, a Cabinet committee was appointed to investigate the matter and to report at the next meeting of Cabinet.

Cabinet also granted the Senior Ball Committee permission to spend up to $4000 to secure a good band for the Senior Ball.

Some Cabinet members questioned the advisability of securing a band at so high a figure. John Maternas, chairman of the Senior Ball Committee, said that since this would be the first really topnotch band available for a College dance in recent years, his committee wished to take advantage of this opportunity to secure good entertainment for the students.

Charles Pfelegor, senior class president, reported on the progress of the committee which is investigating possibilities of brightening the commencement exercises.

The committee finds it impossible to secure an advancement in the date of this year's commencement program, but recommended that the matter be brought up again next year in time to make possible changes in the College calendar.

No further attempt will be made to eliminate final examinations for seniors, since Senate has vetoed such proposals previously, and has expressed its disapproval of such a step.

Since an outstanding speaker will speak at the baccalaureate sermon to be held Sunday, June 8, it was not felt desirable to secure an outside speaker for commencement itself, because an additional speaker would prolong the already lengthy program.

Albert Green, reporting on the possibility of limiting attendance at Rec Hall athletic events, said he had contacted Neil Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, who said steps will be taken to avoid overcrowding of Rec Hall.

Charles Pfelegor said today that the "keep off the grass" campaign would begin today, with signs about campus and publicity in Collegian.

All-College President Robert Foote read a letter from Janet Taylor, chairman of the suggestion box committee, who said that the suggestion box will be at the Student Union desk at all times. However, it will not be placed on the counter, and students having suggestions will give them to the person behind the desk.

William Keefeauver, of the Blue Band, presented a request from the band that Cabinet help the band in securing new uniforms, since the old uniforms are now inadequate. He recommended that the same procedure be followed as that by which the band secured its last set of uniforms. Then the students were assessed fifty cents per semester for two semesters (in their fees). This paid for the uniforms.

In order to thus assess the students, the question must be voted on at the next All-College elections, after which the Trustees must approve the assessment also.

After these steps have been taken, the College would advance the amount necessary for immediate purchase of the uniforms, so that they may be ready for next fall's marching season.

Russell Smiley reported that the All-College bulletin board is under construction, and the Grounds and Buildings department plans to place it in its permanent location when the spring planting is done.

Martin Light, reporting from AVC's committee investigating racial discrimination in State College, said that more signed resolutions have been secured by the committee. AVC will also cooperate with the Penn. State Christian Association, which plans to set up a permanent race relations committee.

AVC will meet with PSCA tonight to set up the committee, to include an AVC representative, CA representative, negro representative, townspeople, and faculty representative.

Light explained that the AVC committee will cooperate with the CA committee, but feels itself pledged to withdraw and continue alone should any delays arise which it feels unnecessary.

Fred Kecker, parliamentarian, reported a technical flaw in Article 12, Section 2 of the All-College Constitution, which is headed "ratification," but in reality refers to initiation. He suggested that the amendment be revised for clarity.

Brangan read changes in the All-College elections code, and stated that All-College elections will be held in the Armory from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. April 30 and May 1. Cabinet accepted the revised election code.

The Iron Curtain?

TO THE EDITOR: The recent publication of censorship rules dictated by Pollock Circle Council, seems to be a very ill-advised move. It seems pretty obvious that these rules could be used as political instruments of great power.

Realizing that unfortunate events occurred in Pollock Circle during last semester's elections, we can see no reason for such drastic measures for protection of the social and cultural well-being of Pollock Circle.

The leaders of Pollock Circle are certainly entitled to lobby for favorable legislation, but this method smells like an old and very disagreeable stand-by.

At least, let the Council define these rules a little more clearly and state exactly how far they apply. Otherwise, I suggest our political leaders take such action as is necessary to prevent personal ambition from crowding Pollock Circle still farther away from campus activities.

Looks like the Iron Curtain is being drawn even over Pollock Circle.

J. T. Anderson.

Rugged Individualism Is Still Living — Student Rebels

Contrary to the theories of some sociology professors, rugged individualism is not dead today. Witness the case of William Bond Gould of Pollock Circle.

Gould, a sophomore in architecture, decided at the beginning of the Spring semester that he was tired of shaving every day. He had tried both the lather and the electric methods but neither would satisfy.

One morning, he failed to shave. It felt good. He liked it. So he continued to miss the morning shave every day. He developed a real five o'clock shadow.

Today Gould sports a six-week old beard which is the envy of the peach-fuzz clan.

When asked if the beard was a campaign against racial discrimination in local barber shops, Gould replied, "Why no, but it's the best reason I've heard."

The modern individualist, whose home is in Ousley, Ga., admitted that it was only an experiment and that he didn't know how long he would continue to wear the foliage, but added, "It is comfortable and I don't have to look at myself, you know."

Crawford Elected Windcrest Burgess

Thomas Crawford, active in various campus organizations, has added another to his list of activities. Crawford, chairman of the Student Engineering Council, vice-president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and treasurer of the Windcrest Co-op Store, was recently elected new Burgess of Windcrest.

Although this is the first time Crawford has entered political life, he declared that he was happy to be elected Burgess. "I'll try to do the job for Windcrest as quietly and efficiently as possible," Crawford commented.

The new Burgess is an eighth semester student in industrial engineering. His college career, at Yale was interrupted in 1941 when he joined the Army.

Entering the ASTP, Crawford spent ten months at the College. Discharged from the Army in October, 1945, Crawford enrolled as a regular student in November of the same year.

The Erie veteran and his wife have been living in Windcrest since March, 1946. Mrs. Crawford, a former Penn. State coed, met her husband while he was in the ASTP. The other member of the family is Anne, their seven months old daughter.

Scabbard-Blade Reactivates

Scabbard and Blade, national military honorary society, founded at the College in 1912 and active until May, 1943, has now been reactivated, according to Capt. Harold W. Yount, C. E. Scabbard and Blade advisor.

Yount said that the society was organized to raise the standards of military training in colleges and universities in the United States. Its purposes are to promote intimacy between cadet officers, and to present to other students at educational institutions, the responsibilities as citizens in time of an emergency.

He added, "the first class has been initiated, and as soon as this group further organizes, there will be a new pledge class of Advanced ROTC cadets and midshipmen of the NROTC."

Following the initiation of the
