

Reference Questions Cover Multitude of Subjects

Do you want to know the height and weight of Governor Dewey, or the rate of accidents in the cleaning and dying industry? Or perhaps you're interested in the type of baggage used in the 15th century?

Well, whatever it may be, just present your question to a member of the staff of the Reference departments in either the Central Library or any of the branch libraries. If it cannot be answered immediately, a diligent search will be made to locate the answer.

According to Miss Mildred A. Ailman, reference librarian, sources giving the answers to many of the more difficult questions are not confined to the four walls of the library.

USE OTHER SOURCES

"For instance," she said, "occasionally we write to the 'Queries and Answers' column of the New York Times. 'And,' she continued, "we are not adverse to calling faculty specialists for the answers to questions related to work in their fields."

Since the beginning of this semester, there have been over 2500 questions asked of the reference librarians. This number also includes those asked in the branch libraries.

SUBJECTS VARY GREATLY

One student was concerned with what age is best for marathons. Another inquired about the costume of the soldier in the time of Christ. And recently, someone asked the length of the waiting period before a marriage can take place in Massachusetts. Incidentally it's five days. These are merely samples of the host of questions that pour in daily to the reference librarians.

MI Directory Lists Data About Grads

Of the 1616 graduates of the School of Mineral Industries at the College, 615 of them still reside in Pennsylvania.

This, as well as other data concerning alumni of the School, is revealed in a directory of graduates, recently published.

The directory also reveals that the graduates are employed in 39 states, the District of Columbia, and in 19 foreign countries.

More than a quarter of the graduates are employed by steel companies in jobs ranging from observers to company presidents. Similarly, 10.6 per cent are working for petroleum and natural gas companies; 8.6 per cent for mining companies; and 5.8 per cent for ceramic companies.

Landscaping the setting for the Lion Shrine caused the removal of 15 oak and white pine trees.

GINNIE POWELL

Reaburn Features Songstress Powell

Ginnie Powell, vocalist with Boyd Reaburn and his orchestra, met the leader while she was in high school and he was attending the University of Chicago.

She sang with Reaburn's small band on weekends. Later Reaburn went on tour and Ginnie remained in Chicago to finish her schooling before joining the band.

During her senior year she was offered a job with Charlie Barnett and later sang with Jerry Wald and Gene Krupa—all the time with the understanding that she would join Reaburn when he was ready.
