College Observes Fifth Annual Campus Celebration of Pan-American Week

Fulmer Appoints Committee to Plan Next Year's Pan-American Week

Pan-American Day Committee. opinion that such action by Cabihas appointed a committee consisting of William H. Gray, associate professor of Latin-American history, Russell Dickerson, assistant professor of agriculturdition al education, and Marcel Carvallo, of the inter-American Club, to make plans for observance of Pan-American week next year.

· The committee ,said Professor Gray, chairman, hopes to secure an outstanding speaker to address a community assembly.

Professor Gray said that he would like to see an All-College dance held next year on the Friday of Pan American Week, the

The Brazilian government, in appreciation for the work done in their country by Dean Steidle, presented a collection of stones to the College in 1944. They are now valued at over $1500 and may be viewed in this display.

Among the other items given by Dean Steidle, including ster-ling silver candlebras from Mexico and a Brazilian butterfly dish, are three oil paintings by a young Mexican artist, J. Suares. In these the artist has captured the spirit and fire of the traditional Mexican bullfight.

For his donation to the exhibit, Dean Frank Kern of the Graduate School, has presented two water color paintings which show existing conditions in Puerto Rico.

Other items on display include a silver tray made by the Aztec Indians, intricate needlework. Mexican jewelry and blood-stained banderillas, which were used by a matador for agitating the bull. In fact, this display covers a multitude of handiwork significant of Latin American life.
