

Apple Festival Chooses Coed To Represent Keystone State

By DICK SARGE

Penn State beauty will be represented at the 20th annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom festival being held at Winchester, Virginia, May 1 and 2.

Miss Eleanor Roberts was informed yesterday of her selection as princess in the court of Queen Shenandoah for this nationally-famous festival sponsored by apple-growers in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

The queen is usually chosen from among the fairer daughters of Virginia legislators and statesmen. Four princesses are chosen for the queen's court, one from each of the four sponsoring states.

Miss Roberts is taking her selection seriously. The erstwhile Winter Fantasy queen was interviewed yesterday afternoon in the Corner Room. During the session with a Collegian reporter, she was enjoying apple pie and coffee, handling the fork dexterously in fingers tipped with Fatal Apple nail polish.

When questioned about preferences in wearing apparel, she said that her favorite gown was apple red in shade. Her favorite perfume is "Apple Blossom" and a refreshing drink for cool autumn evenings, she says, is apple cider.

Miss Roberts, a graduating senior in education, will accompany horticulturist John U. Ruef of the College and his wife to Winchester. They will motor to the festival city, leaving State College April 30.

At Winchester, she will stay in the "Princesses' Headquarters" at the George Washington Hotel. For the coronation ceremony, the princesses will wear original Tina Leser gowns of apple green hue.

To conclude the interview, Miss Roberts said, "I'm delighted to be a princess at the Apple Blossom festival. It should be "fun". Then—she took a big bite from (you guessed it)—an apple.
