Over the Ears

Would male students at the College consent to a boycott of State College barber shops and let their hair grow over their ears to rid the community of one of the last remnants of racial discrimination?

Tonight, another meeting of a joint borough-college committee consisting of representatives of the ministerium, service clubs, fraternal orders and campus groups will be held to discuss the issue and the boycott step might be taken.

If a boycott of barber shops is decided upon, it will mean that all other methods of settling the problem have been investigated and found unsatisfactory. It will mean that local barbers have declined to arbitrate with responsible members of the citizenry and the student body to wipe out a shameful blot on the community's character.

Therefore, male students might go without haircuts and demand by this passive reaction that all Negro students shall be served in local barber shops at any time. Or they might ignore this vital issue, scoff at the boycott, and contribute to a rather disgraceful local set-up.

Should a boycott be deemed necessary to effect the desired change, a freshly-trimmed pate might place the recalcitrant student in bad light with fellow Penn Staters.

Intentions

TO THE EDITOR: The platform of the State Party, which was presented on Sunday night, is now a matter of record for all to see.

It is the intention of the Platform Committee of the party to submit to the students of Penn State, through the medium of their newspaper, a clear and concise enlargement of all the planks contained in the platform. This is to be done in order that no misunderstanding can ever arise over wording or possible intent and to make public all the ideals of this group of students.

There will appear here from time to time several short letters, each dealing with a particular point in the platform. It is merely necessary to follow them in order to "perceive and understand."

• A recent headline appearing on the front page of a metropolitan daily referred to the world's largest luxury liner in this unroyal manner:

"Queen Elizabeth Freed From Mud"

We were surprised to learn that it was more than a dozen tugboats and not Sir Walter Raleigh that came to the rescue.
