Doctors Discuss National Health At Forum Series

Dr. F. F. Borzell of the American Medical Association and Dr. John P. Peters of the Yale University School of Medicine will be presented by the Community Forum in Schwab auditorium Wednesday evening, April 30.

This is the last of the current year's Forum series, and single admission tickets will be sold for those who do not hold season tickets.

A native of Doylestown, Pennsylvania, Dr. Borzell is Vice-Speaker of the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association. He graduated from Jefferson Medical College and, previous to his present position, practiced in Philadelphia and served as president of the Philadelphia County Medical Society.

Dr. Peters, a native of Philadelphia, is the attending physician of the New Haven Hospital and Secretary of the Committee of Physicians for the Improvement of Medical Care. Receiving his doctorate from Columbia University in 1913, he has since either taught or served as physician in Cornell University Medical School, Bellevue Hospital in New York, Vanderbilt University, Rockefeller Institute in New York, and Yale University School of Medicine.

Dr. Peters is a member of numerous medical societies, and has published more than 100 papers on different aspects of medicine. Also, he has delivered many radio and public speeches throughout the United States and Canada.

At a meeting of the Forum's representatives Sunday night, Dr. Bruce V. Moore was reelected as chairman of the Community Forum for the 1947-48 season.

Dr. Moore wishes to thank all those who made the series of lectures possible by their patronage and support.

Critic Lauds 'Wimpole' Star; Praises Yeaton's Directing

Critically speaking, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" is not much of a play. However, as an efficient vehicle for a star or two and as an appeal to those who like "intimate" glimpses into the lives of well known people, the play is commercially sound.

On the surface it seems profound, which, of course, it is not; it has the air of being intellectual, which, of course, it is not—and it soothes the souls of the untalented and tells them that geniuses experience the same love, heartbreak, and pathos that all of the "little people" in the world experience.

But the play's chief appeal at the box-office is in its tale of a father's passion for his daughter, and of his mind—twisted and neurotic in just the right amount to boost the ticket sale.

Included in the family are all the usual greasepaint types; the submissive, spineless children who humbly obey their father; the rebellious daughter, the comic, inwardly defiant son; and so on down the line.

Given routine characters put together in a standard theatrical story, all those connected with the undertaking can only be expected to give us an ordinary production. To lift the play above the standard of routine theatrical fare, the performers playing the two best roles in the show, Elizabeth Barrett and Edward Moulton-Barrett, must give emotionally and intellectually superior performances.

It is an overwhelming load. Barbara Davis is therefore to be highly commended for a performance that, through the greater part of the evening, was entirely adequate. Harry Natschke, however, was hopelessly swamped by his role.

Kelly Yeaton's direction was an improvement over his work in "Angel Street." He gave us many very fine moments. The picture

Specialist Speaks For Cancer Drive

Culminating this year's Cancer Drive, Dr. N. Volney Ludwig, cancer specialist, will speak on "The Truth About Cancer," at 110 Electrical Engineering, 7:30 p.m., Wednesday.

Dr. Ludwig is in charge of the Tumor and Cancer Clinic of the Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, and is a member of the Cancer Commission of the Pennsylvania State Medical Society. He is also a professor of radiology.

The talk, which will include a discussion of the newest phases of cancer research, is sponsored by Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-medical honorary fraternity in conjunction with the Pre-Medical Society, said Norman Halpern, president of Alpha Epsilon Delta.

Halpern emphasized the fact that since the subject is of vital importance, the public is invited.

Dr. Ludwig graduated from the College in 1922 and while attending, was catcher on the Varsity baseball team.
