

Summer Jobs

Journalism majors who want long hours and hard work during the summer, may get them, plus a small salary and a lot of fun on a country weekly. The first summer may probably bring you between $20 and $30 a week. Chances are much better on small town papers than on metropolitan dailies.

Men are more desired for journalism jobs than women, according to Prof. Franklin C. Banner, head of the College department of journalism. Editors have had too much experience with the pretty girl reporter who is no sooner trained that she announces her coming marriage and leaves a vacancy on the staff.

Many large cities have positions for ambitious Home Economics students during the summer in food companies and testing kitchens. Although you may do little more than just clerical work, it is an opportunity to learn a great deal about the business. In this field a knowledge of typing is practically a necessity to find a job in the home economics department of any concern. Your own home town may have opportunities for you to help with menus, food control, and buying for hospitals or hotels.

Student dieticians might look into the few positions that Stouffer's restaurant chain has open. Schrafft's, in New York, has openings for hostesses at 65 cents an hour. Waitresses get 38 cents plus tips. Applications should be addressed to Personnel Dept., 56 West 23rd St., New York, 10.

Students of labor-capital, economics, political science, and the like, may be interested in American Friends Service Committee, Internes-in-Industry program. Students live in a cooperative house, seek industrial jobs individually, listen to special speakers and pool experiences. The committee's address is 20 South 12th street, Philadelphia 7.

Work-study jobs in mental and penal institutions as ward attendants, cottage supervisors, recreational therapists, and office workers may be obtained from the Friends Service Committee at the same address as above.

Riflers End Season With 14 Wins

With fourteen wins and two losses the varsity squad of the Girl's Rifle Club closed one of its best seasons in the Intercollegiate Telegraphic Rifle Tournament recently, according to club coach Marie Haidt.

No report has yet been received on Penn State's standing in the Nationals.

Penn State riflemen shot a total score of 7457 in matches against sixteen different schools while opposing teams totaled 7249.

The Browse

Since Elections are over, we think it is time to acquaint you with the Platform which make up THE COLLEGE BOOK STORE.

The only difference is that these are not election promises. We have won the vote of confidence of our customers, and these are the services which, combined, make up THE COLLEGE BOOK STORE:

1. A fine selection of new books for the discriminating reader.

2. A large selection of carefully chosen CHILDREN'S BOOKS.

3. A carefully chosen stock of classical RECORD ALBUMS which can be purchased in our RECORD SHOP in comfort. You are always welcome to listen to these albums anytime you wish, and we will be glad to give you our advice on the quality and interpretation of the recording.

4. A large RENTAL LIBRARY from which you can read all the new books without any red tape—no deposits, etc.—for the low cost of 3c a day; 10c minimum charge.

5. A well chosen collection of GREETING CARDS for any occasion you have in mind. A card sent from THE COLLEGE BOOK STORE will be appreciated by those who like to receive something out of the ordinary. We also carry a complete stock of Signature Notes which are different from any you have ever seen.

6. A fine stock of STATIONERY built around the nationally advertised KELLOGG papers—the best you can find.

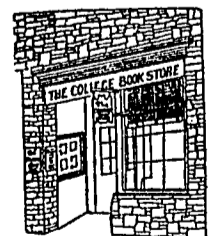

7. A complete service on IMPRINTED STATIONERY, including matches, napkins, playing cards, and anything you wish with a name or monogram imprinted upon it.

8. A line of GIFTS different from any you will find in town. Most of these are of the informal variety, but again, they will be appreciated by those who are looking for something different.

9. We are also publisher and distributors of the nationally known line of PENNSYLVANIA CARDS which include designs from the wood cuts of Penn State's Dr. Warren Mack Miss Frances Lichten, author of A FOLK ART OF RURAL PENNSYLVANIA, and Miss Jane March.

10. And again, we are publisher, and distributors of the annual PENNSYLVANIA CALNDAR, which includes photographs by Penn State's Dr. George F. Johnson.

So there you have it—THE COLLEGE BOOK STORE giving you excellent service on any gift problem you might have—either, for yourself or for your friends or relatives for whom you may have gifts to buy. A complete book, record stationery, and gift store. Come in and BROWSE anytime; you are always welcome, and we know you will enjoy your visit.
