

WASHINGTON—The Senate has agreed to take a final vote tomorrow on labor legislation, but some Democrats say President Truman will veto whatever final version comes out of a Senate-House conference.

WASHINGTON—President Truman today named Robert Lovett as Under-Secretary of State to succeed Dean Acheson, whose resignation was announced today.

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State George Marshall sent his third note on Korea to the Kremlin, via the Russian Embassy in Washington, asking Foreign Minister Molotov to give a further advance agreement on terms before Soviet-American efforts to establish a joint provisional government for Korea are resumed.

WASHINGTON—The Western Electric employees union has asked the government to intercede in a dispute that remains the prime obstacle to full settlement of the nationwide telephone strike. In Washington, a spokesman says the Western Electric Company rejected a union proposal to arbitrate all issues.

NANKING—Government dispatches say Communist troops have entered the suburbs of Taiyuan, capital of Shansi province. Nationalist defenders have sent an urgent appeal for reinforcements and air support.

LAKE SUCCESS—The United Nations Assembly Political Committee has given its Palestine inquiry group free rein in studying any issue of Palestine independence. Late yesterday, the political committee voted down six proposals relating specifically to Palestine independence.

LONDON—A British government source says Britain really thinks she can come out of the red by 1948. The spokesman says England thinks it can emerge from its economic woes without asking the United States for a new loan. In fact, the labor government is said to believe it would fall if it asked for a new dollar loan.

Mortar Board Sells Tickets

Tickets for the second Mortar Board carnival to be held in the west parking lot Saturday afternoon are now on sale, according to Joan Harrington, Mortar Board president.

Priced at 25 cents, the tickets include a stub for admission to the carnival plus three ten cent coupons for use at any booth. No one will be admitted without a stub.

All transactions are carried out in coupons with no money handed over the counter. However, after the initial three coupons have been used, additional ones may be bought.

Proceeds from the carnival will go to the Charlotte E. Ray Scholarship Fund.

Tickets may be obtained from Panhellenic Council representatives, Mortar Board members, or at Student Union.

Department Head Retires With Book Writing Intents

Never a day goes by that one doesn't hear a student complaining about his professors. But profs also have complaints.

Dr. Ray H. Dotterer, head of the department of philosophy at the College, has this to say:

"Students come into the classroom, memorize words and then think they have learned something when at bluebook time they regurgitate the definitions they have committed to memory. Then they complain when we mark heavily because enough wasn't written.

"What we are trying to do is to get them to think clearly and logically," he added.

Dr. Dotterer, after 29 years of teaching people "to think," will retire June 30 with emeritus rank. A minister of the Reformed Church of State College in the

Panhel Council Holds Sing

The annual Panhellenic Sing will be given in Schwab Auditorium, 7:30 p.m., Sunday.

This year the Panhellenic Sing will be non-competitive, breaking the tradition of competitive singing among the sororities. The Panhellenic Council voted on a non-competitive sing, since the increasing number of sororities on campus would make the affair too lengthy if each group were to present its own program.

The sing will commemorate the 75th anniversary of co-eds on campus. A chorus composed of four members from each of the nineteen sororities will provide the background music.

Romayne Aumiller, director of the chorus, was assisted in her selections by Mrs. Willa Taylor of the music department.

Campus fashions from 1872 to the present time will be modeled by sorority girls. Two gowns of Mrs. Carvel Sparks, daughter-in-law of former President Sparks of the College, will be modeled. One of the gowns was worn at President Sparks' inauguration in 1918, and the other gown was worn at a houseparty here in 1921.

The audience will participate in the singing of old folk songs. Also, a dance group, directed by Miss Dorothy Briant, will present the various stages of American dances.

Navy Adds Local Electronic Unit

Lt. Francis H. Yonker of the Penn State NROTC contingent has been appointed commanding officer of Company 4-12 of the Volunteer Electronic Warfare project for State College. There will be a company organization meeting on Thursday evening and a mass meeting for interested students at a later date.

Anyone between the ages of 17 and 64, including high school students, veterans and non-veterans, is eligible, announced Lt. Yonker.

This new reserve is completely volunteer and persons may join or resign at any time. At present the company will take only men interested in radio, radar, sonar and signal corps work. In the future other positions will be open for any post in a surface company.

Any signee is eligible for an annual 14-day cruise to any foreign port with pay. Former Navy men get paid according to their highest rate held in active service. Other men get paid a minimum of $2.50 per day for the cruise.

Those interested should leave their names with Lt. Gaylord at the Commerce Club or with Lt. Yonker in room 308, Electrical Engineering.

Fall of 1918, he consented to accept a position as part-time instructor at the College. Two years later he gave up his 11 years in the pulpit for a classroom rostrum.

Dr. Dotterer explained that he thought he would gain more satisfaction from college teaching as the reason for his change. As to the circumstances, he refers to his unusual introduction to the teaching profession as an emergency.

"When the Student Army Training Corps came to the campus in 1918, the College was faced with a shortage of instructors," said Dr. Dotterer. "Dr. Edwin E. Sparks, then president of the College, was advised to hire a preacher."

Dr. Dotterer has no plans for the immediate future, although he intends to write a book. He says that even though he is retiring, he isn't too old to do that.

Senior Class Meeting

Charles Pfelegor, senior class president, announced a meeting of the class in 121 Sparks, at 7:30 Wednesday.

Sarge Issues Handbook Call

Candidates interested in working on either the editorial or advertising staff of the 1947-48 Penn State Handbook are asked to come to a meeting in 411 Old Main at 7:15 o'clock tonight, said Richard Sarge, editor-in-chief. Staffs will be organized and beats assigned at this meeting.

The Student Handbook or "Freshman Bible" is published each year by the Penn State Christian Association for the benefit of all incoming students to the campus.

Before and during the war its duty was to orient freshmen to the functions and activities of the College. This year it was published to acquaint the new and returning ex-GI's with their college.

Next year's issue will be primarily for Sophomores who will be coming to the campus from undergraduate centers or State Teachers' Colleges.

Included in the Handbook are messages from the President and Deans, the College's songs and cheers, directory to all buildings on campus and fraternities, and facts on all campus activities and functions.

Veterans

Veterans are reminded by the Veterans' Administration that today is the last day for veterans to report either to the Armory to sign an Interruption Form, or to the Veterans Administration office to sign a statement certifying intentions of attending Summer Session.

Failure to comply may jeopardize future benefits under the G.I. Bill of Rights.

Home Ec Student Wins Honors

Geraldine F. Hindenach, a home economics student, became the first coed ever to win the Grand Championship of the annual Dairy Exposition, when she walked away with the laurels at the Dairy Science Club-sponsored show Saturday.

Miss Hindenach, a former 4-H Club member, won both fitting and showing championships as well as taking first place in the Holstein divisions and classes.

Anna Marie Wynosky, another home-ec student, won the calf-style show, a new event this year.

Two LA students, Shirley Mae Foulke and Adele Holz, led the field in the milking contest for coeds.

Joseph G. Sick won the amateur section of the cattle judging contest, and Stanley Van Tassel the professional division.

Carl Colteryahn took first place in the amateur section in milk judging where John E. Taylor won both the professional and sweepstakes awards.

Edward J. Kasner and Miss B. Jean Claycomb won first and second respectively in the ice cream mold contest, another innovation this year.

Student Service Extends Campaign

The College's World Student Service Fund campaign will be extended through Saturday because solicitors were unable to canvass all campus groups by last Saturday, according to Natalie Biederma, publicity chairman.

Thomas Lannon, all-college president-elect, told an interviewer, "In my opinion WSSF is indeed a laudable organization and is worthy of the student body's consideration."

Edward Banyai, senior class president-elect, said, "It is exceedingly gratifying to realize that Penn State students are aiding their fellow students throughout the world."

Martin Baum, president-elect of the junior class, stated, "Anything to further education abroad as well as in this country should definitely receive the support of the Penn State student body."
