

Editors to Explain Publications At Mass Meeting

Sophomores interested in joining the staffs of campus publications will hear introductory talks by each editor after the mass meeting sponsored by the Student Government in Schwab Auditorium Thursday, September 25, Allan W Ostar, chairman of the Board of Publications, and editor of the Daily Collegian, has announced.

The students will be given a general survey of the publications field during the main program by Ostar, and those interested will meet in a group after the formal session for the editors' talks. Opportunities for the student in all phases of journalism from straight news to fiction will be discussed.

Speakers in addition to Ostar will be J. Arthur Stober, editor of Froth, campus humor magazine; A. Roberta Hutchison, head of La Vie, college yearbook; Alex Gregory, editor of the literary periodical, Critique; D. N. Bibbo, editor of the Penn State Engineer; and Richard Sarge, head of the Student Handbook.

The students will also learn about the Board of Publications which coordinates the whole field. The Board determines matters of general policy and serves as a clearing place for major problems concerning individual publications. Members of the board are the editor and managing editor of the Daily Collegian, editor and women's editor of La Vie, and editor of Froth.

OSTAR

Five Publications Invite All Sophs

Open to students in all curricula are five of the College's seven publications, including the Daily Collegian, campus newspaper; La Vie, College yearbook; Froth, humor magazine; Critique, literary periodical; and the Student Handbook.

Students join the Daily Collegian staff as candidates and are promoted on the basis of ability and time spent in work on the paper. Candidates are moved up to reporters, junior and senior board, in that order. Editors are named at the end of their junior year and also serve as members of senior board, the policy determining group of the paper.

The object of the Daily Collegian is to reflect the opinions of the student body on the editorial pages, to present campus news in a clear and unbiased manner, and to uphold and further its slogan, "For a Better Penn State."

Second Post-War Edition

La Vie, official record of student activity, publishes its second standard edition this year following the end of the acceleration program. It presents in words and pictures all that goes into the making of the academic, social and recreational life of the senior class.

Candidates for La Vie, as members of the editorial or art staffs, receive training in reporting, editing, make-up and general art work. Promotion is from sophomore to junior to senior board. All editors of the book must be seniors.

Leading Humor Magazine

Froth, one of the leading college humor magazines in the East, publishes humorous stories, jokes, and cartoons contributed by students, in addition to regular features including a candid-shot photo page and gossip column. Candidates for editorial, photography, advertising, and circulation staffs will be called early in the semester.

Candidates for Critique will

Candidates

Meeting of candidates for all publications will be announced in the Daily Collegian shortly after the beginning of classes Monday, September 23. Details concerning requirements, type of work and further meetings will be announced by the individual publications at those times.

have an opportunity to publish creative writing and to review campus and national affairs on the editorial side, or to receive training in the fields of business or art staffs.

Student Handbook, published by the students and sponsored by the Penn State Christian Association, is designed primarily to help new students become acclimated to campus life. Candidates are accepted on editorial and business staffs in the Spring.

Engineer. Breeze Publicize Schools

Publicizing the activities of their schools and specific fields are the Penn State Engineer and the Ag Hill Breeze.

The Engineer publishes student articles of a technical nature, biographical sketches of notables in the world of science, campus snap-shots, and a humor column, Hill Breeze includes club news, "Sly Drools."

An eight-page paper, the Ag agriculture fraternity items, and stories about farm and Grange activities.
