

PSCA Mixes Fun, Penn State Club, IMA Lead Independent Men Christian Service In Varied Program

The Penn State Christian Association is the combined YMCA and YWCA of the College. It provides recreational and devotional facilities and is a member of the World Student Christian Federation.

A student cabinet plus a professional staff of three plan and carry out as many as 60 programs and projects each year. An advisory board of 32 faculty and students helps in the administration of the Association.

The student cabinet is divided into seven commissions and four committees. Commission I is world fellowship; Commission II, personal relations; Commission III, Christian heritage and worship; Commission IV, community service; Commission V, campus action; Commission VI, public affairs; Commission VII, creative recreation.

CA Committees

The committees are sophomore orientation, publicity, personnel, and Watts Lodge. The latter committee has charge more or less of the PSCA lodge located at the foot of Mt. Tussey. This rustic cottage is a scene of weekend cabin parties, square dances, and other PSCA or all-College activities.

Present officers of the association are Patricia Woods, president; Emory Brown, vice-president; Ralph Harris, treasurer; Rusty Rigling, recording secretary; Bobby Keefer, corresponding secretary.

James T. Smith, acting College chaplain, is general secretary of PSCA. A new addition to the employed staff is Alice J. Byers, who replaces Miss Betty Farrow as women's associate secretary in charge of program and counseling.

PSCA also plans a sophomore

Two organizations on the campus are the center of the activities of independent men. Seeking to coordinate non-fraternity men into a cohesive group are the Penn State Club and the Independent Men's Association.

The Penn State Club was founded in 1935 and since that date has provided many social and athletic activities for its members. Hub of this group is the clubroom on the third floor of Old Main, and here centers its facilities for the heightening of spirit and fellowship.

IMA

Paralleling the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Independent Men's Association, which was formed in 1937, has sought to give non-fraternity men the political, social and athletic advantages enjoyed by their "Greek" colleagues.

Each independent house is represented on the Central Council either by its own representative or by an elected delegate from a group of houses in which it is included.

Such undertakings as bridge tournaments, bowling leagues and parties are conducted by the IMA.

ISC

Representatives of the Penn State Club and IMA join with delegates from the Independent Women's Association and Philotes in the formation of a joint executive committee, known as the Independent Student Committee. This body is the top organization in expediting the affairs of independent students.

orientation program. . . . p.m. Wednesday they are sponsoring a musical program and at this time the religious leaders of the town will be introduced to the new students. On Saturday night of that week PSCA is cooperating with the physical education department in Fun Nite at Rec Hall. Entertainment by the Thespians is planned.

On September 30 at 7.30 p.m. there will be a Sophomore Club program, probably in the Hugh Beaver Room, 305 Old Main.
