

Lions Rate As Favorites For Bucknell Home Opener

With the Washington State game behind them, Penn State's football Lions are looking forward to meeting their old and honored opponent, Bucknell, in the home opener Saturday.

After the way his boys showed up in their 27-6 triumph over Washington State, Coach Bob Higgins, although never over-confident, is not expecting too much trouble from the Bisons from Lewisburg.

Harry Lawrence, new Bucknell coach, has reverted to the single-wing to capitalize on the line whacking of such burly Bisons as Hal Swanson, Ed Stec and Warren Mears. Lawrence has a veteran line to work with, and looking strongest on the ends.

BEHIND THE LINE

Carrying the mail for Penn State, will be a host of standout backs, among them sophomores who saw action against the Cougars at Hershey.

Elwood Petchel, Joe "Coffin-Corner" Colone, speedy Larry Joe, Bobby Williams, Wally Triplett, Chuck Drzenovich and other big guns in the Lion backfield may be on the sidelines for most of the Bucknell game allowing the sophomores and other subs to show their wares.

Some of the sophomore runners who made impressive showings at Hershey and who are expected to see plenty of action against the Bisons are Francis Rogel, Bill Luther, Clarence Hummel and Clarence Gorinski, the latter rating as a kicker next to Joe Colone.

UP FRONT

The Blue and White line, which gave up only three yards in the entire first half against Washington State, should more than hold its own against the Lewisburgers forward wall.

Co-Captains Johnny Potsklan and Johnny Nolan, first Lion co-leaders since 1937, head the list of veteran gridders, playing at end and tackle respectively.

End Sam Tamburo, tackle Nogley Norton, guards Steve Suhey and Joe Drzenovich and center Johnny "Shag" Wolosky completed the Nittany opening line against the Cougars of Washington State.

World Series Games

Starting with tomorrow morning's paper, the Daily Collegian will give complete coverage of the World Series games between the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Fogg Slates Net Tourney

Tennis Coach Sherman Fogg has announced plans for an intramural tennis tournament for which all undergraduate students are eligible and welcome.

All interested in entering the tournament are requested to sign up in 214 Rec Hall by 5 p.m. Friday. Coach Fogg will divide all the entrants into brackets, with the division winners to play off for the individual title.

The net mentor will be able to form preliminary plans for his varsity team from observing the work in the tournament of both former varsity members and anyone aspiring toward team play.

Between The Lions

WITH TED RUBIN

With great humility, Collegian pays tribute to Arthur Norman Tenhula, whose sudden death shocked the College and all those who knew him on August 28 of this year. Crushed by a freight car while working at a cement plant in his home town of Bessemer, Tenhula died within seven hours of the accident.

Jayvees, Juniata Hold Scrimmage

In an informal scrimmage session on New Beaver Field, Penn State's junior varsity football squad Saturday defeated Juniata College, which is under the coaching eye of Bill Smaltz, former Lion backfield star, making his debut this year as head grid mentor.

All junior varsity football aspirants may still try out for the squad by reporting today before 4 p.m. to Coach O'Hara on the third floor of the Water Tower.

Candidates must first have passed a physical examination at the Dispensary and obtained a towel card from the College Bursar.

Penn State's junior varsity this year is being skippered by Jim O'Hara, who is assisted by Paul "Manny" Weaver and Howard Caskey. First official J. V. fracas is slated for October 17 against Syracuse.

those who were members of his classes, to those who praised his skillful maneuvers on the lacrosse field, to those who were his teammates and to those who were his friends, there is present in their daily lives a void.

For he was a great guy and his quiet, unassuming manner left him myriad friends in this world. With his blonde, crew-cut hair and ready smile, he was a familiar and welcome sight on campus.

Art came to Penn State as a Navy V-12 trainee and the fall of 1945 found him a candidate, though never having played the game before, for the lacrosse squad. With the coming of the regular season the following spring Tenhula worked his way into starting position, and developed with such speed and proficiency, that he was selected on the North team which opposed an all-star combination from the South.

TENHULA

This spring again found Art an outstanding member of Nick Thiel's squad, and again he was chosen on the North's all-star aggregation.

He was only twenty years old and the youngest son of a large family. Law was his chosen pursuit, and this month Art was to have enrolled at the University of Pennsylvania's Law School.

Said lacrosse coach Thiel, with soft voice and great respect, "Art was a marvelous fellow. He was a natural leader and had natural ability. Never was anyone better liked on any of my teams."

Death also claimed this summer Leonard J. Diehl, Penn State swimming coach, who died of a heart ailment in June. To many, he was just a name, for this was his first year in the Nittany Valley and comparatively few of us enjoyed his friendship.

But those of the administration who knew him, and the members of last winter's swim team say only pleasant words of him. Diehl fought illness throughout his stay here but gave his best to his boys and to the sport which he loved, whenever his health permitted.

Diehl was born in Brooklyn, and graduated from Purdue University in 1939, excelling there as a valuable member of the tank squad. Prior to accepting his position here, he coached at Oberlin College in Ohio. He died at the age of 31 years.
