ture. Thomas is a leader of the be special guests at chapel and will occupy stage seats.

The Chapel Choir under the direction of Mrs. Willa Taylor, and accompanied on the organ by George Ceiga, will make its first appearance of the season at this service.

Penn State is represented in China by Lingnan University in Canton which it helps support through the Chapel offerings. Last year the College contributed $4500 in this work.

The Penn State-in-China work was begun in 1911 when George (Daddy) Groff, a College graduate in horticulture, left for Lingnan University to develop a school of agriculture. He has worked with this project in China since that time, and until his retirement last Spring.

He was succeeded by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pride, the former a horticulture graduate of the College, who left for China in August.

be finished by Spring of next year, and the remainder in the summer. When completed, Mr. Thiel said, the area will be as large as the golf course playground.

Ray Conger, assistant professor of physical education, is to be directly in charge of the recreation. He will be assisted by a contact man living in the Pollock Circle-Nittany dorm-Windcrest area.

Equipment to be located in the area may be checked out from this resident assistant. In addition, he will work out intramural activities in conjunction with the school of physical education and the student athletic chairman, Mr. Thiel went on to say.

Mr. Thiel also said that a suggestion has been made concerning an outdoor nursery in the area for children of Windcrest.

been mailed to all seventh and eighth semester students and they are urged to keep their appointments. Men are requested to wear coats and ties and women are asked not to wear evening gowns.

Instructors have been given the authority by Arthur R. Warnock, dean of men, to excuse students presenting a La Vie photo card appointment. Students who will be absent from class are asked to present their cards at the preceding meeting of the class.

If students cannot keep their original photo appointment they should call the Penn State Photo Shop and make arrangements for a reappointment. "There are 2000 students to have pictures taken before November 10, and if students forget or don't attend to their appointments, they will not be included in the 1948 La Vie," said Miss Mousley.

Student Cabinet Of PSCA to Meet

The Student Cabinet of the Penn State Christian Association will hold a planning conference at the Ralph Watts Lodge, Saturday and Sunday, said Patricia Woods, president of the Student Cabinet.

Miss Woods will lead a discussion covering commission programs for the year and talk on the role the CA plays at Penn State.

Members of the board of directors of PSCA will be special guests together with Dr. Ruth I. Seabury, educational secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Congregational Church.

The group will leave Old Main for the cabin immediately following the Penn State-Bucknell football game.

Fraternalies Decorate Lawns for Homecoming

Fraternalies will display the traditional lawn and building decorations on Homecoming Weekend, Oct. 17-18, Willard F. Agnew, Inter-Fraternity Council president, said, following the council's meeting Wednesday evening.

Each fraternity is asked to use "Pennsylvania" as its central theme in keeping with the College's celebration of Pennsylvania Week, he stated.

The displays will be judged early Friday evening, Oct. 17, and the winning fraternity will receive an IFC trophy.

Agnew also announced that a special assessment of $2.50 has been levied by the Executive Committee to offset council rush-week expenditures, and together with the annual $5.00 dues, it must be paid by the next meeting, Wednesday, Oct. 15.

The IFC social will be held at the Sigma Phi Epsilon house Wednesday, Oct. 22, he said.

Phil. Enrollment Reaches New High

Enrollment of students in philosophy reached an unprecedented peak this semester at the College with a total registration of over 600, Professor John A. Mourant, acting head of the department, said today.

A general expansion in the department within the next year is anticipated, Mourant continued. Plans are now in progress to revamp the introductory course in philosophy next year.

The department has just been moved from 317 Sparks to 217 and 218 in the same building.

Aaron Druckman, assistant professor of philosophy before the war, returned to the College this semester after an absence of several years. Druckman had been serving with the army on the Displaced Persons Committee in France.

Professor Leslie Pape is another recent addition to the philosophy department. He came to the College last February after serving with the OPA in Washington. An assistant professor of philosophy, he holds a PhD from the University of Chicago.

ROTC Offers New Course of Ordinance

This semester there is a new detachment in the Reserve Officers Training Corps, ROTC Ordinance, with Capt. Edmund F. Kensak, Ord., in charge.

He said yesterday that, since this is the first year for Ordinance at the College, there is a limited amount of equipment, but that the latest weapons and automotive machinery are on the way and should be here by the end of the month.

The ROTC course which he will present will consist of theory and some practical work in automobiles (vehicles), small arms, artillery, fire control, and ammunition.

Capt. Kensak said that like the other advanced courses, Ordinance ROTC will lead to a commission in the Army Reserve as a 2nd Lieutenant, Ordinance.
