Expensive Weekend

TO THE EDITOR: Because of a State College Borough ordinance, forbidding the scattering of leaflets from an airplane, a representative of the West Virginia humor magazine was arrested Saturday and later released on $25 bail for a hearing to be held this coming Friday afternoon. The borough authorities said they would just reprimand the student flier, knowing full well that he probably could not afford to return for the hearing, consequently forfeiting his $25 bond.

West Virginia was the guest of Penn State on Saturday. In spite of the fact that relations were strained on the football field, we would not want the University of West Virginia to feel that Penn State is a poor winner and an ungracious host. Little incidents such as this could do much to ruin a fine school reputation.

We would like to suggest that the complete student body donate a few cents apiece to repay Mr. Randolph his $25 bail or to pay the fine if such is incurred. In our opinion, it would be a very worthy and not very time-consuming project for any of the numerous student government organizations.

Moved by Spirit

TO THE EDITOR: Last Saturday afternoon, the student body witnessed a dauntless, winning spirit portrayed in the actions of the "Mountaineers" proverbial bench warmers.

Those stout-hearted men, although not actively engaged in the game, had the spirit to rise from their benches in worthy acknowledgement, or encouraging support, for their team each time a touchdown was scored. The Lions' representatives, however, displayed their usual stupefied indifference by remaining stalwartly in their places.

The cheerleaders for the Sophomore section certainly deserve their share of chastisement. Ominous roars boom from the Senior sections, while faint whispers echo back in the form of our infrequent responses. Let's pick up those cheers from the far side and really toss it back at them.

In numbers, we are not lacking; the dormant spirit is there. I think it's about time we get some collective expression of our appreciation for a hard-fighting team.

NEW-FANGLED GADGETS

Although the "Mountaineers" aerial "pep" leaflets were somewhat misplaced, a definite indication of the spirit embodied in our opponents was quite evident. Why not work up an original leaflet of our own which we could shower on the stadiums of our away games?

PATRIOTISM IN ACTION?

I remember the day when our National Anthem had words to it. It's been so long since I've heard them, I've begun to wonder if they still exist. How about getting the band to key their rendition to suit some of the men besides the tenors, and see if we can't sound a little more like Americans than a mob of Russians standing in subservience to an omnipotent master?

An Appeal from AVC

TO THE EDITOR: AVC is holding elections for chapter officers on the evening of Wednesday, October 29th. The probability is that less than one-fifth of AVC's active members will show up for this meeting.

The men who joined AVC did so, for the most part, to indicate support for and to work for the furthering of its statements of principles. If they have ceased to take an interest in the chapter because of some shift in the direction of AVC's line of action, this is the time and the way for them to indicate their dissatisfaction.

There is only one legal way to change the setup of organizations in this country and that is by voting for such a change. This is an appeal to all those men who were and are interested in AVC to come out Wednesday and vote. That is the only way to make their voices heard and thereby make AVC move in the direction they wish it to go.

Sincerely,
—Larry Rothstein.

Dairy Tech Men Contest in Florida

Four dairy technical students have been chosen to represent Penn State at the revival of the annual Collegiate Students' International Contest, which was discontinued after Pearl Harbor, at Miami Beach, Fla., Monday. This is the 26th of the meetings.

The team, which will compete against similar groups from 19 other colleges and universities from all parts of the country, includes Joseph M. Clark, Sheldon Shuey, Stanley L. VanTassel and John C. Wilson.

An $850 graduate research Fellowship is given to a member of the team winning the coveted All-Products cup. Individual top scorers for each product are awarded medals, while winning teams may take back with them silver cups which may be kept after three annual winnings.

Some of the other competing colleges entered in the contest are University of Illinois, Iowa State, Michigan State, Maryland, Nebraska, Ohio State, Purdue, Tennessee and Texas A. & M.

Pre-Med Society Elects O'Tousa, Plans Program

Joseph O'Tousa was elected president of the Pre-Medical Society recently.

The new president informed members that they would be notified of future meetings by postal card. The next bi-monthly meeting is tentatively slated for November 5.

Vice President Kutsenkow stated that business to be transacted at the next meeting includes a proposed membership drive, payment of dues and the selection of guest speakers for future meetings.
