

Carnival Offers Hallowe'en Fun

Twenty booths featuring all sorts of entertainment and food in keeping with the Hallowe'en season are planned for the Mortar Board Carnival in the parking lot behind New Physics from 7:30 to 10:30 o'clock tonight, said Jacque Zivic, chairman of the affair.

The Alpha Chi Omega booth will be a "fish pond" of prizes; the AEPH's plan horse shoe pitching; and the Alpha Gamma Deltas invite carnival-goers to try their luck at shooting out candle flames with water pistols.

Cider and doughnuts will be sold by the AOP's and potato chips and candy bars by the Alpha Xi Deltas. The Beta Sigma Omicron booth will be a sand pile with concealed prizes and the Chi Omegas are selling candied apples.

A dart game sponsored by the Tri-Delts and peanut-throwing game by the Delta Gammas are included and popcorn and cokes can be bought from the Delta Zetas.

The Gamma Phi Betas invite patrons to shoot for baskets at their booth. The Thetas will serve piping hot waffles and the Kappa Deltas and the Kappas will have a fun house and a freak show, respectively.

True to the Hallowe'en theme, the Phi Mus will have a ghost walk. A roulette wheel and chuck-o-luck game will be found at the Phi Sigma Sigma and Theta Phi Alpha booths.

The Sigma Delta Taus will have cider and cookies for sale and cokes may be bought at the Zeta Tau Alpha booth. IWA's booth will feature tossing rings over girls' legs.

There is no admission to the carnival and all food and entertainment will be purchased with tickets, on sale now from sorority members. There will also be a booth selling tickets at the carnival.

Recorded music will furnish the background to the Mortar Board Carnival. All proceeds will go to the Dean Ray Scholarship Fund.

The weather forecast is favorable, but in the event of rain, the carnival will be postponed.

Editor Addresses College Officials

Demands for higher education in the 1950's will fall primarily on the state colleges and universities and the colleges in urban areas, William G. Avirett, education editor of the New York Herald Tribune predicted last night.

Avirett addressed 75 college presidents and leaders in higher education attending the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities at the Nittany Lion Inn. The meetings close at noon today.

With the passing of the "GI bulge," Avirett predicted the tendency would be for privately-financed colleges and universities to return to their normal size. Colleges for women, he said, would have difficulty in expanding too, mainly because of obtaining the necessary resources.

"So the steadily increasing demand for a higher education, which is expected to make itself felt in the 1950's, will fall primarily on the state colleges and universities," Avirett said.

Avirett also pointed out that state schools are more responsive to popular demand since they are financed through legislative appropriations. Urban colleges, he explained, would feel the demand since many of their students do

Co-op Plan Seeks Student Support

Reporting on progress of the co-op committee, Emory Brown in All-College Cabinet last night said that a plan for a campus co-operative store was ready for presentation to the Board of Trustees.

Before the outline is submitted, Brown intends to obtain student pledges to insure at least a $1,000 backing. The pledges, $1 per student, will entitle the purchaser to membership in the cooperative, and would be returned upon graduation.

A system for the collection of pledges will be announced by the committee later. The purpose of this pledging, stated Brown, is to prove student support and sufficient financial backing to the Trustees.

Students to Cheer Lion Grid Team At Football Rally

Milholland to Address Students for First Time

Penn State's Nittany Lion football team, tops in rushing defense and offense in the nation, will receive the plaudits of the student body tonight at the Old Main pep rally preceding the last home game of the current season, said Ray Dieterich, chairman.

The rally, which will start at approximately 7:15 o'clock, features brief remarks by James Milholland, acting president of the College, in his first appearance before the students in that capacity.

Students are urged by Tom Lannen, All-College president, to be present at the pep rally on the front steps of Old Main at 7:15 o'clock tonight to greet James Milholland, acting president of the College, in his first appearance before the student body.

"There should also be much enthusiasm and support by Penn Staters for their great Nittany Lion grid squad before the last home game against Colgate," said Lannen.

Blue Band and the cheerleaders under Stan Eisman will lead a procession of student supporters to Old Main in a parade beginning at Tau Kappa Epsilon on Prospect avenue and Garner street at 7 o'clock.

Football coach Bob Higgins and co-captains John Potskian and John Nolan, with other stand-out members of the No. 7 football club in the U.S., will give short talks to the assembled crowd.

Also featured are two "lick" or novelty selections by the marching Blue Band, said Dieterich. Led by Prof. Hummel Fishburn, the renowned musical organization will present renditions of College songs and the two novelties.

Committee for the rally is Dieterich, chairman, Stan Eisman, Jane Fouracre, Robert Frankhouse and Julia Kalbach.

Druids Seek $500 For New Lion Suit

A new suit for the Nittany Lion is the goal of Druids, said John Benglian, president of the organization. Druids, a sophomore men's honorary, is soliciting all fraternities and sororities for contributions toward a new suit next fall.

The Chenko Studio in New York City, who will design the new suit, estimate that it will cost $500. This studio designed the original suit and repaired it two weeks ago.

Benglian said that the Athletic Association will make up the difference between what Druids collect and the goal. Druids, however, is hoping that the fraternities and sororities will cooperate to make the suit possible without the aid of the Athletic Association.

A list of contributors will be printed in next week's Collegian.
