FRANK MUEHLHEUSER
Colgate

When Penn State's football team clashes with Colgate's Red Raider eleven on New Beaver Field tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, it will be playing not only for a win over Paul Bixler's men, but also for Penn State's 300th victory in 61 years of intercollegiate competition.

An estimated crowd of 17,000 is expected to be on hand to witness a game that marks the eleventh year of rivalry between these two teams. Colgate has not won from the Lions since 1941.

Last year's game with the Red Raiders was not unlike Saturday's tilt with West Virginia insofar as post-game statistics were concerned. Last year the Lions beat Colgate 6-2, but in so doing, registered 10 first downs to the opposition's five, and 138 yards rushing to the New Yorkers 38.

FIVE PENNSYLVANIANS

Leading this year's band of marauding Red Raiders against the second top team in the East are five native Keystone State boys who are attending Colgate.

Tad McLaughlin, Duquesne, quarterbacks the squad and handles most of the passing assignments. Jennings Marburger, Evans City, is another starter operating alternated with McLaughlin at the signal calling post. The fifth member of the quintet is Fred Dunlap, Carbondale, who as a sophomore possesses potential fullback power.

Coach Paul Bixler has in Frank Muehlheuser one of the East's best fullbacks. He is the team's best punter and last year, in 83 attempts, moved the ball 479 yards.

HIGGINS MODEST

Lion mentor, Bob Higgins, is modest when he says he has a "fairly good ball club," and like all coaches, he makes no predictions as to the outcome of tomorrow's game.

The nation's sports writers, however, make no bones about where Penn State stands, as proved by the Lions' present seventh place position among the nation's ten top teams.

When speaking about this season's "dream game," currently thought to be the meeting between Michigan and Notre Dame, one New York sports writer says that he would rather call a Penn State-Notre Dame battle THE "dream game" of the year.

No matter how high a team is rated, though, it can't afford to underrate its opposition. Coach Higgins has been running his squad through drills and scrimmages in preparation for tomorrow's game without any let-up.

HEAVY FAVORITES

The Lions will be going on the field as heavy favorites, but Colgate is determined to see what it can do to raise its own standing by scuttling the Higgins powerhouse.

On early season records, the Raiders don't seem to have a chance, but buried under Colgate's adverse scores are statistics which add up to a dangerous eleven.

Colgate out-first-downed and out-passed each of its first three opponents, Kings Point, Cornell and Princeton, and was close in the rush department. Fumbles and pass interceptions caused the Maroon defeats, and these mechanical mistakes should be the easiest errors to correct.

DANGEROUS OFFENSE

Bixler has spent a great deal of time on taking the boomerang out of the Colgate aerial attack, and this week's additional work on the newly installed T and single wing should add precision to what was already a dangerous if spotty offense.

Higgins has no worries, however, as to the ability of his men. Francis Rogel has developed into one of the team's most valued assets, filling the fullback post vacated by the injured Joe Colone.

Jeff Durkota, the team's top scorer, also is running better and currently is rated on an even footing with the Lion wingback starter, Wally Triplett.
