Ag Prof Trains Intercollegiate Team to 'Bring Home the Bacon'

The arena of intercollegiate contests extends beyond the gridiron or court to the livestock pavilion where Penn Staters really bring home the bacon.

Coached by Dr. William L. Henning, professor of animal husbandry, the livestock judging team will compete with other Eastern teams at Baltimore, November 15, the first match since the war.

Five student judges of horses, beef, cattle, swine, and sheep will carry the ball for Penn State against Cornell, the Universities of West Virginia, Maryland, Virginia, Massachusetts, and others. The local team has carried off the Baltimore trophy in three previous meets—in 1931, '34, and '36.

100 Points at Stake

In the stock arena, the student judge must spot the champion animals and announce his decision to the official judges. At stake are 50 points for placing and 50 points for reasons.

Dr. Henning trains his judging team how to pick champion livestock. When sizing up beef cattle, the judge will watch for the animal with a broad back, fleshy ribs, plenty of depth and width. A prize winner should have a soft pliable hide, fine bone, and short legs.

A blue ribbon draft horse must move with long straight strides when parading before the judge. The horse must be massive, strong muscled with clean hard bone and fine silky hair.

Among swine, a desirable specimen has an arched back, smooth skin, trim ears, strong straight legs with long deep smooth bacon side and large hams.

Possible Judges

The five judges to try out their paces at Baltimore will be selected from the following list: Charles Cameron, Lynn Christian, Walter Fairman, George Glenn, Thomas King, Francis Kirk, Robert Pennington, Paul Smith, and George Swart.

Coach Henning, who has tutored the livestock judging team for 18 years, is the only honorary vice president in the U. S. of the British Southdown Breeders' Association. Dr. Henning is also president of the North Atlantic Branch of the American Society of Animal Production and president of the National Society of Sheep Records Association.

The costume crew consists of Margaret Breece and Ruth Elster, co-managers; Rita Apter, Elaine Glassman, Maria Hughes, Marian Judy, Beverly Kantor, Eleanor Romanyszyn, Harriet Sabel, Esther Schrecengost, Elizabeth Ann Smith, and June Wiley.

Lighting effects will be taken care of by Marvin Feigen, manager; Leon Ancona, assistant manager; Franklin Brosius, Lewis Clayton, and Robert DeMarco.

Properties will be handled by Gerald Eberly, manager; Joy Stewart, assistant manager; Constance Black, Myrna Hinkel, Jean Israel, Joseph Reinheimer, and Joyce Trigliano.

The two house managers are Gerald Gilman and Fred Vogel.

Belle Hop Queen Didn't Expect To Win Title

"I never expected to win," blue-eyed Betty Gibson, Belle Hop Queen said today. "In fact, I was so pessimistic that my escort bought me a pack of Luckies before the dance as a consolation prize."

"Gibby," as she is known to her friends, was chosen reigning queen of the Greeters' Hop from among seven finalists competing for the title.

The attractive brunette said she was so nervous when her name was announced that she thought she would collapse on her feet.

"My first surprise came several weeks ago," said Betty, "when the Delta Sigma Pi, Commerce and Finance honorary, informed me that I had been selected as their candidate. Sam Neely, ATO, was picked as my escort."

"Gibby" measures 5 feet 6 inches, weighs 120 pounds, and has brown hair. This was her first experience as a contestant in a beauty queen contest.

When asked if she had originally planned to attend the Pitt game, Betty replied that there had been a 50-50 chance, but now that the tickets and room are waiting, she will definitely attend the game.

Miss Gibson, a fifth semester psychology major, hails from Wilkensburg and is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. She is on the staff of La Vie and a member of PSCA.

Farm Bureau Employees Attend Seed Conference

Employees of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Cooperative Association will convene at the College Thursday and Friday for their annual seed meeting.

Members of the School of Agriculture faculty and research workers of the experimental station will join in leading discussions.

Dr. Vance Sprague, of the U.S. Pasture Research Laboratory, will discuss pastures to open Friday morning's session. K. W. Lauer, of the State's bureau of plant industry, will discuss production of certified seed in Pennsylvania.

Other speakers for the two-day conference include: Dr. John I. Washko, Dr. Lawrence L. Hube, Dr. Merlin T. Henderson, Benjamin L. Seem, all of the agronomy department; Dr. Wilford R. Mills, of the plant pathology staff, and Prof. Stern, teacher of courses in agricultural co-ops.
