

Dollar Shortage Causes Drop in Foreign Students

Scarcity of American dollars in foreign countries is rapidly causing the United States to lose her position as a center for international study, said Dr. J. Paul Selsam, professor of European history.

During the past summer, Dr. Selsam participated in the orientation program on two of the ships used by the State Department to take American students to Europe and bring foreign students to America. He said that on one return trip, only six students embarked from Le Havre for this country.

Dr. Selsam points out that about 1,000 students from Yugoslavia have gone to Russia to study while only four students from Yugoslavia have come to the United States. He also points out that because the State Department had no funds, scholarships had to be refused to Hungarian students. The Soviet promptly made provisions for 40 Hungarians to study in Russia.

The Fulbright Act, approved by Congress in 1946, is seen by Dr. Selsam as one step forward in encouraging the exchange-student program. The act authorizes the Secretary of State to enter into agreements with foreign countries regarding the use of currencies or credits derived from the disposition of surplus property, for financing studies, research, instruction, and other educational activities.

Sponsoring a foreign student would be a worthy project for fraternities and other organizations interested in education and better international relations, Dr. Selsam pointed out.

Rabbi To Contrast Pennsylvania Tops Nation In Ice Cream Production

Rabbi Nathan Kaber of the Jewish Chautauqua Society will speak on "Christianity and Judaism—What They Have in Common" in Chapel Sunday morning.

At present, Rabbi Kaber occupies the pulpit of Temple Beth Israel in Altoona, Pa. An active member of Kiwanis, and the Jackson Citizens Housing Committee, Rabbi Kaber is also secretary of the Jackson County Ministerial Association.

Rabbi Kaber is a graduate of Ohio State University, and was ordained by the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati where he was co-winner of the Simon Lazarus Scholarship prize.

During the service the choir will present "I Waited for the Lord" from Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise." The soloists will be Rebecca Griffin, soprano, and Josephine Stanley, contralto.

Ice cream production last year made national winners of Pennsylvania and Dr. Chester D. Dahle, professor of dairy manufacturing.

Previous records were shattered in 1946 when ice cream manufacturers of the Keystone State dished up 78,000,000 gallons, enough to provide each man, woman, and child in the state with 7.8 gallons of his favorite flavor.

At six helpings per quart, 187.2 saucers of last year's record production could have been served to each resident of Pennsylvania. At 20 cones per quart, 1946's output could have been scooped into six billion, 240 million, 400 thousand cones.

Trailing Pennsylvania was New York with 68 million gallons, California with 55 million, and Ohio with 44 million.

Dr. Dahle's Role

Contributing to Pennsylvania's outstanding production are the many discoveries and contributions of Dr. Chester D. Dahle, who won the 1947 Borden Award in dairy manufacturing in recognition of his leadership in the field.

He is the first Pennsylvanian to win the gold plaque and $1000 prize although the award has been made annually for the past ten years.

Dr. Dahle was the first to manufacture a concentrated ice cream mix that required only the adding of water.

He was first to discover that the off-flavor of fruit ice cream was due to copper contamination, and first to pasteurize ice cream by electricity and to pasteurize ice cream mixes in an instant by high temperatures.

Showed Whipping Ability

Dr. Dahle was first to show the relationship of the fat globule membrane to the whipping ability of ice cream mixes. He was first in America to study the "bound water" of dairy products by electrokinetic methods.

At present Dr. Dahle is studying methods of controlling the viscosity of chocolate ice cream, the use of "stabilizers" to make smooth ice cream, and the cause of ice cream shrinking in the package.

Journalism Honorary Entertains With Smoker

Sigma Delta Chi, men's national journalism honorary, will hold its annual smoker for all men students enrolled in the journalism curriculum at the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity house, 227 E. Nittany avenue, 7:30 to 9 p.m. Sunday.

Don Rose, who writes "Stuff and Nonsense" on the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, will give the principal talk. "Mr. Rose is a noted humorist who should prove an entertaining speaker," said, Franklin C. Banner, head of the journalism department.

"This will be the only opportunity for men in the department to meet and talk with all other men in their school on a social basis instead of over the typewriter," Prof. Banner said.

Scattolini Sings 'Butterfly' Lead

Although one of the least publicized singers to come to this country since the war, Nino Scattolini, who will sing the leading male role in "Madame Butterfly" on Monday night, has made one of the most favorable and lasting impressions on American audiences.

Brought to America by the ill-fated United States Opera Company, which attempted a season in Chicago early this year, the singer was left penniless when the venture ran out of funds. At a concert in the Chicago Opera House, given to raise funds to send the leading singers back to Europe, Scattolini stole the spotlight and stopped the show. It was the start of a successful career for him in this country.
