Conference and the National Undergraduate Interfraternity Council. The executive committee of the conference was instructed to form a special committee "to study the problems of membership restrictions and to give encouragement to the formation of new local fraternity groups to meet the variety of local campus needs as indicated by college administrators."

The right of college fraternities to set up membership restrictions of race, creed or color was defended at the opening session of the conference by David A. Embury, retiring chairman.
