College Elsie Has Calf; Requests A Name For Her Baby

Elsie, the College's own cow, has had a calf, and the proud mama is looking for a name for her baby boy. Critique, literary magazine, is sponsoring a contest among students to name the baby bull, prodigy of Larry Farb, student caretaker of Elsie and the bull.

Students will have a chance to submit a name tomorrow at the Harvest Ball, or at any booth where Critique will be on sale today. The winner will be designated as godfather, or godmother, to the calf, and receive a month's supply of milkshakes at the Milky Way, Alex Gregory, Critique editor, said.

Elsie and her calf will be at the Harvest Ball tomorrow, dressed in their Sunday suits, Farb said. A ballot box will be at the dance for entries.

Co-editor of 'Who's Who' Requests Cooperation

Students who have received letters from "Who's Who in the News" announcing selection of their names to be listed, should return the questionnaires as quickly as possible, said David Adelman, co-editor.

Originally suggested by Dean Arthur R. Warnock, the booklet is published annually, and distributed to all colleges and universities in the state. Copies are also sent to leading newspapers of the Commonwealth.

OUTPLAY LIONS Statistics released after the game showed that the lighter Trojan team had completely outplayed the Lions, gaining 133 yards by combined rushing and passing to 67 for the Blue and White.

An indication of how football has changed since "the good old days" is reflected in the number of substitutions made during the encounter. Figures show that Penn State used only five and Southern Cal eight substitutes during the entire game.

ON THE TELEPHONE, TOO!

This is broadcasting as you see it.

What you do not see are the thousands of miles of telephone wire and cable that link broadcasting stations from coast to coast . . . that make national networks possible.

The administration of these vast broadcasting links requires the varied skills of college-trained men.

And this is but one of the many interesting phases of the telephone business. There's opportunity and adventure in telephony.
