Trustee Groups Consider Co-op, New President

Campus co-operative store proponents were encouraged by a reconsideration of their plans by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees.

A special committee has been selected to study the project, but according to Mr. Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive secretary to the President, all the acceptances have not been received.

Student need and desires for the co-operative store, and plans for its operation, management and policies will be explained to the Trustees by the All-College Cabinet co-op committee, headed by Emory Brown.

Efforts of the committee were instrumental in persuading the Board to reverse its earlier decision. Brown said that the naming of a committee to study the matter appears to be a minor accomplishment, but actually is the most that could be expected at this time.

He added that final approval of a co-op is unlikely before June, when the next regular meeting of the full Board is scheduled, un-

Students To Claim Fire Loss of Skis

Skiers who lost their skis and equipment in the fire which razed the College Ski Lodge on Tussey Mountain January 25, may be reimbursed if they or their parents carry household fire insurance.

In addition to submitting a claim to the insurance company, persons who lost skis should contact Ray Conger, who is in charge of recreation, in 213 Recreation Hall. Ten percent of the policy value is the usual limit which may be recovered.

Cause of the fire has still not been determined, said Mr. Conger. When the blaze was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Torrey, the caretakers, only an hour after they had carefully checked and closed the lodge, it was already out of control.

Completed in the Fall of 1941, the two-story log cabin, valued at $10,000, was a gift of the class of 1939. The cabin loss was covered by the College's blanket fire insurance policy, according to George W. Ebert, superintendent of grounds and buildings.

Yale Professor Speaks at Chapel

Dr. Liston Pope, professor of Social Ethics at the Divinity School of Yale University, will speak on "The Truth That Makes Men Free" at the opening Chapel service of the semester in Schwab Auditorium at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Doctor Pope is the editor of Social Action magazine. He is chairman of the Industrial division of the Federal Council of Churches and author of "Millhands and Preachers."

Ordained in 1935, the speaker was pastor of churches in High Point, N. C., and New Haven, Conn. He is a graduate of Duke University and received his Ph.D. in 1940 from Yale.

PEARL O. WESTON

The members of the staff of the Dean of Women join me in welcoming you to the campus. We are glad that you have come to The Pennsylvania State College and believe that you will be happy here. We want to know you and to help you feel at home.

We are eager that you join us in carrying on the traditions of Penn State and ask that you uphold the ideals, traditions, and standards of women students.

Remember always that we stand ready to help, to encourage, and to rejoice in your success.

—Pearl O. Weston,
Dean of Women.

An important meeting of the Junior and Sophomore editorial boards of the Daily Collegian will be held in 8 Carnegie Hall, 2 o'clock, tomorrow afternoon, Allan W. Ostar, editor, stated.

ARTHUR R. WARNOCK

Those of us in the Dean of Men's office are glad to welcome the new men students now coming to the campus.

Though they will not receive the benefit of a formal orientation program, I hope that, with the help of Student Government agencies and various College offices, they may soon learn what it means to be good, loyal Penn State students.

I hope they will learn that an enduring affection for their chosen alma mater will result from their giving as well as getting. The Penn State that they see and will enjoy has been made possible by the tangible and intangible contributions of their thousands of predecessors, who, in turn, remember their college years with satisfaction because of what they were able "to do for Penn State."

—A. R. Warnock,
Dean of Men.

Saturday Issues To Return Collegian to Five-Day Week

With the addition of a Saturday morning issue this semester, the Daily Collegian will return to a five-day publication week for the first time since 1942, according to Allan W. Ostar, editor. The first Saturday issue will be published next week.

This move is the result of over two years of planning to bring the campus paper back to its pre-war status. The Daily Collegian was launched in September, 1940, succeeding a semi-weekly Collegian, and ceased publication in May, 1943, with the departure of a large portion of the student body to the armed forces.

The Collegian, which was published weekly, recorded campus news from 1943, and later began a bi-weekly publication in 1945. The fall of 1946 saw the shift back to the Daily Collegian which published four times weekly—the only daily of its type.

"With the complete return to daily publication, it is hoped that the Daily Collegian can better serve the student body and the College as a whole," Editor Ostar said.

Deadline for the new Saturday issue will be 3 p.m. Friday, and all news items should be in the Carnegie Hall office by that time.

Dormitory Construction Runs Behind Schedule

Although slightly behind schedule, construction progress on the new women's dormitory can be considered satisfactory, said Mr. George W. Ebert, superintendent of grounds and buildings.

Steel framework erection is completed and the brickwork is laid up to the second floor window sills of the south unit. All the underfloor plumbing has been installed and some of the flooring has been poured.

700 New Students Enter; VA Enrolls Vets in Carnegie

Registration begins this morning for over 700 new students as well as the more than 7200 who have completed first phase registration.

All veterans must report to the basement of Carnegie Hall when they have completed registration in Rec Hall. New veterans should bring their letters of eligibility or supplemental letters.

New veterans and those who have new positions paying more than $200 a month must fill out statements of earnings in Carnegie Hall.

Any veteran who has moved must fill out a change of address form in order to get checks on time.

Figures released by Ray V. Watkins, College scheduling officer, show that fifty students will register in the third semester. Some of these are former students who are re-entering, while others are from class credit centers.

Students may register in advance of the time set for their semester, said Mr. Watkins. Students who register after that time, however, will be assessed a $5 late registration fee.

Special, new, two year Ag., and sophomore students must register by 12 o'clock noon today. Juniors must register by 5 o'clock today. Seventh and eighth semester registrants must complete filing of forms by noon tomorrow.

Before going to Rec Hall to complete their registration, students should pick up their signed schedule cards from their advisors. If there is no change in the schedule that was processed during first phase registration, the

Sophomores Plan Orientation Hour

As an aid in acquainting all new students with the many phases of the College community, the sophomore class, under the sponsorship of All-College Cabinet, will present an orientation program at Schwab Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Monday, said Ted Allen, class president.

All students who were not on the campus during the past semester should attend, Allen said. The program, which will cover such topics as student government, fraternity and independent organizations, and campus activities, will last only one hour, including entertainment, according to Allen.

James Ambandos, Thespian and Players luminary, will be master of ceremonies for the event, and additional entertainment will be provided by the Honey Boys, popular campus male quartet.

After a message of welcome by a representative of the President, Tom Lannen, All-College President, will speak on student government at Penn State. Willard Agnew, Interfraternity Council president, will discuss campus fraternal organizations; and Frank Tidona, Independent Student Council president, will speak on campus independent organizations. Campus organizations will be explained by Nancy Cray, sophomore vice-president, and Allen will welcome incoming sophomores into the class.

Chimes Sponsor All-College Mixer

The first get-acquainted dance of the semester is being scheduled for Recreation Hall directly after the Syracuse-State basketball game tomorrow night.

Tickets for the dance, sponsored by Chimes, national junior women's honorary, are 25c for men. Women are admitted free. Tickets can be purchased at Recreation Hall, Student Union, and the Corner, or from any Chimes member. Tickets will also be sold before the dance.

Bell forms, the symbol of Chimes, will be used for the tickets, with white ones for the women and yellow for the men.

This pre-semester mixer, featuring Samuel Neely as emcee, will provide an opportunity for new students to get acquainted as well as being a get-together for the entire student body, according to Lois Resler and Wilma Brehm, co-chairmen of the dance.

Music for dancing will be furnished by records. Ping pong, bridge and other games will be available.

The informal dance will mark the first social event sponsored by the newly organized Chimes group. The chief responsibility of Chimes is the orientation of transfer women, and the proceeds of this dance will be used for that work, said the co-chairmen.

Part-Time Jobs

Students registering for part-time work during the Spring semester should bring their schedules, said Mr. Allan Reece, in charge of student part-time placement. He expects a great increase of job opportunities for students this semester.

Book Exchange Opens in Irvin

The All-College book exchange will receive and sell books in the basement of Irvin Hall this afternoon, tomorrow morning, and all day next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, according to Jane Weigle, chairman of the book exchange committee.

Operating hours will be from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Plans to house the exchange in the temporary Union building were discarded because of the delay in its opening.

Books on all subjects are available, Miss Weigle said. Students selling texts set their own price, customarily 60 per cent of the original cost. A five cent fee is charged each buyer and seller to defray operating and publicity expense.

Other committee members are Joanne Hobbs, Mary Alice Hodgson, Eleanor Kelly, Joseph Kelly, Frank Rugh, and John Zora.

Collegian Business Staff

Collegian Senior Business board will have a compulsory meeting in the Collegian office at 8 p.m. Sunday.
