Week at the Waldorf Fills Recess for Modeling Coeds

Unlike other students at the College, two blue-eyed, brown-haired coeds, Nancy Romig and Joyce Hodgins, spent the mid-year recess "working" in New York.

Their work, if it could be called that, consisted of 16 hours of modeling for Drene Shampoo. Interspersed pleasantly among these hours were a visit to the Stork Club, attendance at a fashion show featuring Claire McCardell, one of America's foremost designers, and seeing "Finian's Rainbow."

"It was a wonderful experience," Joyce commented, "but it was nice getting back to the College where people aren't so superficial."

A picture of either Joyce or Nancy will appear in a Drene

Students Plan Work Agency

A proposal for a student managed organization to promote undergraduate employment on campus was presented to student leaders by Mr. George Leech, head of the College Placement Service, at an informal meeting Monday.

More than one-tenth of the student body registered with the Student Employment office last semester; three hundred have registered for the current semester, and as the number of veterans receiving subsistence decreases, it is expected that the demand for employment will be greater, Mr. Leech said.

New Employment Fields

Under the proposed organization, many new fields of student employment would be sought, and all jobs would be performed by students, supervised by a College official. Student employees would be paid by the organization which would offer closer supervision of jobs done, incentives to perform jobs well by promotions on the basis of merit, and the establishment of fixed rates for jobs performed.

Discussion May Continue

Discussions will be continued and if Cabinet feels the organization would be advantageous to the student body, it will investigate the matter. In addition to Mr. Leech, those present at the meeting were Allan Reece, head of the student employment office, Robert Troxell, All-College vice-president, Robert Koser, IFC vice-president, Jack Keller, Chem-Physics student council vice-president, and Wilbert Roth, Daily Collegian representative.

Bursar Publishes List Of All Student Charges

In an effort to satisfy the many requests from students for a complete statement of fees, Russell E. Clark, bursar, has prepared mimeographed copies, available in his office, of all College-assessed fees, board and room fees, and non-College assessed fees.

The bursar explained that it is practically impossible to compute an exact-to-the-penny account of individual fees in advance of the date of payment.

"We know exactly what must be paid for incidental, general course, physical education, health service, damage deposit, library, out-of-state, and room and board fees. However, practicum fees, which are detailed in the catalog, vary for the individual and often force us to continue working until six o'clock of the morning that payment is due in order to have them completed," said Mr. Clark.

The bursar requests that any student wishing an itemized account come to his office to pick up one of the prepared lists. By so doing each student can compile the exact amount of his fees.

Duff Lacks Power To Act on Co-op

Supporters of the proposed cooperative store at the College received what was termed a "minor setback" yesterday when Gov. James H. Duff stated that he lacks authority to try to effect a favorable decision by the College Board of Trustees.

He told newsmen that, as Pennsylvania chief executive, he has no power to interfere with the management of the College and can therefore take no action on the request that the Commonwealth intervene in the dispute.

The request was submitted to him by State Sen. John H. Dent, Senate Democratic leader, following letter from students protesting the Board's action in refusing a student-sponsored cooperative store.

"That's entirely up to the Board of Trustees," Duff said.

At its meeting December 5, the Board rejected a request by students for establishing a co-op, then decided at a meeting January 23 and 24 to reconsider its decision following a volley of student protests.

Names of members of a special committee selected to study the project have not been released since all acceptances have not been received, according to Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive secretary to the president.

Walacavage, William R. Meek, Gayle Gearhart, and William F. Staley will form the steering committee of the group. Staley represents All-College Cabinet.

Over 45 individuals and representatives of campus and town organizations attended the meeting and discussed plans to make State College a more democratic town by protecting minority groups from discrimination because of color or creed.

Organizations and individuals were extended a public invitation to send representatives to the Council and to support the program financially. Contributions may be mailed to Alex Atty, 304 Old Main.

San Francisco Conference

One of the leading statesmen in the Western Hemisphere, and former Mexican Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Dr. Padilla was a leading figure in San Francisco world conference, and Rio and Chapultepec hemispheric conferences.

"No man in recent years has done more to draw the Americas together," said Sumner Welles, in his "The Time for Decision," concerning Dr. Padilla.

"The power of his convictions, the burning sincerity of his pleas for inter-American unity . . . has made his name a household word in every American country."

Pan-American Solidarity

Primarily responsible for Pan-American solidarity, Dr. Padilla was also a leading figure in establishing Mexico's present government. He participated in the Mexican Revolution, and because of his opposition to the regime then in power, he spent several years of exile in the United States and in Cuba.

Dr. Padilla was born in Coahuila, State of Guerrero, Mexico, in 1892. He has studied at the Sorbonne, Paris, was professor of law at the University of Mexico, and holds an honorary LL.D. from Columbia University.
