Republicans Conflict

WASHINGTON—Two leading Senate Republicans conflicted today over a proposal for European Aid. Minnesota's Joseph Ball introduced an amendment to the Marshall Plan Bill which would set up an 11 nation council outside the United Nations to resist subversion or aggression. No nation would have veto power. It was challenged by Foreign Relations Chief Arthur Vandenberg. "What overwhelms me," he said, "is asking Congress on 24 hours notice to accept a formula which would commit the United States to war on the vote of foreign countries."

Security Council

LAKE SUCCESS—Canada and China were on the firing line at the United Nations Security Council today. The target was the American proposal to get quick approval for the Palestine partition plan. Canada and China said that the Big Five Powers must make supreme efforts to settle the problem by conciliation.

IFC Contest Selects Greek Song Champs

Men who claim that their house is "the best singing fraternity on campus," will have a chance to prove their statement April 3 and 4 when the Interfraternity Council holds its first singing contest since the war, according to Jack Cameron, contest director.

The contest is open to all fraternities.

"Blue and White"

Two songs, "The Blue and White" and the fraternity's own song are required for the elimination contest. The College song must be sung as written but the fraternity songs may be sung with accompaniment and with any variations which the house may care to put into the song.

To insure a representative group from each house, the IFC has set a minimum of 16 singers from each fraternity but no maximum.

Must Be Undergraduates

Another rule of the contest says that all members of the singing group from each house must be undergraduate members. This will include pledges.

The elimination contest will be held April 3-4 and the two best will sing at intermission time of the Pan Hel-IFC Ball.

Entries in by March 12

All entries must be turned in to the Student Union desk by March 12.

Judging of the contest will be done through the music department, and the winning fraternity will be given a cup.

Enesco Appears With Symphony

National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D. C., with Georges Enesco conducting, is scheduled for Schwab Auditorium, March 15 and 16. This is the third program in the Artists' Course Series for this year.

A number of excellent seats are still available for both nights. No tickets will be sold at the auditorium, said Dr. Carl E. Marquardt, chairman of the series.

Enesco, a native of Rumania, has appeared previously in the Artists' Series as a soloist. He has an international reputation as violinist, composer, and conductor.

The orchestra, one of the outstanding musical organizations in this country, plays regularly at Constitution Hall in Washington, D. C., but schedules outside concerts each season.

The program for both nights will consist of Mozart's Overture to the "Marriage of Figaro," Brahms' "Symphony No. 3 in E Major," Liszt's "Les Preludes" and Enesco's own "Rumanian Rhapsody No. 1."

Hoyas Squeeze Victory Over Lion Five, 49-43

By using the same tactics that helped Penn State to upset its rivals, the Georgetown Hoyas slowly squeezed out a 49-43 decision from the Lawthermen last night at Rec Hall.

The cagers will practice tonight and Friday night and then end the season with the Temple Owls Saturday night.

Playing an "off" game, Penn State's team couldn't seem to find the basket during the first half. Time after time shots would hit the front of the rim, the back of the rim and the backboard, and then roll off.

After Biery and Batnick started the scoring with field goals, 16 minutes in the first half passed before the third twin-pointer cut the cords.

Two Hoya cagers, Dan Kraus and Ken Brown, kept the Lions from closing the gap in the score throughout the game.

Kraus, a former All-American, directed the play and slowed and quickened the Georgetown attack, while Brown played a very effective game under both bankboards.
