

Remember the Ski Lodge!

All of us are aware that the College is overcrowded and to relieve the congestion in the classroom, the temporary buildings were constructed. Jokes have been made as to just how "temporary" these buildings are, but now, in spite of their aide to the College, we are threatened with the loss of them—by fire.

The cause of the fire in the Ski Lodge is undetermined but it is believed to have started from a carelessly placed cigarette butt, and the recent fire at the old Metropolitan Opera House (Met) in Philadelphia was definitely caused by a smoker.

Janitors and caretakers constantly have had to remind students not to smoke in these buildings, not because the College administration has objected from a moral of healthful standpoint, but for purposes of preventing fires in these flammable buildings and what is more important, to safeguard students and instructors.

Deans Hammond and Euwema have some of their staffs' offices in Temporary and they are not allowed to smoke in their offices, so certainly students can go through a class and wait till they leave the building before lighting up.

Dry weather will hit this area shortly and this adds to the danger by drying out the materials the buildings are constructed of. Should these buildings catch fire, they would go very quickly. Not long ago, some of the brush outside caught fire—a cigarette did it.

There would be nothing else for the College to do but schedule night classes in the regular stone buildings if Temporary burns down.

—Arnold Gerton

The Senior Gift

TO THE EDITOR: The Cabinet should be severely criticized in its action on the Senior class gift. They defeated by a vote of 7 to 5 a plan that would give voting post cards to every senior. Only those seniors who have graduated will receive them. The rest will go to a mass meeting probably.

If the senior gift is to be chosen fairly—that is, by all the seniors—the post card plan is the only fair one. It is the right of every senior to vote on his gift. Mass meetings at Penn State are a proven failure, and you, who have been to such meetings, will confirm me in this respect. When only 50 people or less come to a meeting to decide what a class is to do, something is wrong. It is wrong to say that only those seniors who are interested in class meetings should decide. The hours of such meetings are not always convenient for everyone. If to a senior class meeting only 100 people come out of a class of well over a thousand, could it be said that these 100, if there are 100, represent the Senior class?

This is your money being spent, and it is your right to say how it should be spent. Let's do something about the action of the cabinet now.

—William B. Roid.

ISF Goes on Record

TO THE EDITOR: The Inter-church Student Fellowship, composed of representatives of every Protestant student group on campus at its last meeting discussed the question of racial discrimination in the local barber shops.

Apart from the attitude of the individual, it appeared imperative to express the sentiments of the student church groups, as a whole. A poll was therefore conducted among all the students attending church groups. It was recorded that it was the unanimous opinion of the students in all but one group (where there were two abstaining), that they would have their haircut in any barber shop in town which did not discriminate, and that they were wholeheartedly behind CORE's program.

This is a very small thing, but it is an attempt to keep the issue alive, as you have done in such an excellent manner in your forthright editorials. The second part of the resolve is not rhetoric, the church student groups have some notable resources and ask the interested groups to call upon them.

—Rustum Roy, President ISF.

—Josephine Casselberry, Secretary.

Sigma Delta Chi Sponsors Smoker

Journalism students may get first-hand information on pictorial reporting, newest type of news coverage, at the Sigma Delta Chi smoker at the Delta Chi fraternity house 7 p.m. Sunday.

The professional journalism fraternity is sponsoring at its smoker a demonstration of television newsreels as now used by WFIL-TV, the Philadelphia Inquirer video station. Richard Thornburgh, managing editor of the Inquirer, is in charge of the demonstration.

All male journalism students are invited to the smoker, said Richard Sarge, president. Sigma Delta Chi smokers, he added, give the fraternity a chance to become acquainted with men who may be picked later in the semester.

Cigarettes for the smoker are being furnished by Philip Morris through Spencer Schekter, College representative.

The fraternity is making plans and arrangements for the annual high school press conference at the College, and a "Who's Who" dance.

Biographies of approximately 40 graduating seniors have been included to date in the Journalism Placement Bulletin, said Mac White, editor.

Theta Sigma Phi Books On Exhibit in Library

A collection of books written by members of Theta Sigma Phi, woman's national journalism honorary, is now on exhibit in the second floor of the Library.

Some famous novelists are Bess Streeter Aldrich, Faith Baldwin, Pearl S. Buck, Dorothy Canfield, Mignon Eberhardt, Edna Ferber, Laura Hobson, Frances Parkinson Keyes, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Kathleen Norris, and Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings. The exhibit will remain until April 1.
