

Coeds Remain on Campus; Compete in Meets by Wire

Swimming telegraphics have opened the doors of collegiate competition to women. While eliminating costly trips this type of meet still permits the country's tankwomen to match their speed and skill.

In past years Penn State has been well represented in the Eastern Regional and National meets. Last year Judy Klein, '47, carried off individual starring honors, placing first regionally and nationally in the 75-yard individual medley and first regionally in the 100-yard breast stroke and back stroke.

A 75-yard medley relay team composed of Ruth Black, Judy Klein, and Lee Ann Wagner placed first, in both the Nationals and Easterns. Completing the list of first place laurels, the team of Klein, Black, Wagner, and Zivic won the 100-yard free style relay. Lee Ann Wagner and Jacqueline Zivic are again in competition and thus far have been setting a fast pace winning first place and placing second in several events.

Deadline for the results of the participating colleges to have their best times score in is April 1. The results of the Eastern meets will be available by April 3 and the National results will be tabulated by April 10.

The country is divided into four regions, the Eastern with Penn State as headquarters for the year, the Central, where State University of Iowa is headquarters, South, University of Miami, and the Western, with U.C.L.A. serving as sponsor. Each year the honor of being the National sponsor is rotated among the regions, with it falling to the Eastern region this year. Since Penn State was the Eastern victor last year they have the honor of being both Eastern and National sponsor.
