Gimbel Art Exhibit Opens At MI Gallery Tomorrow

The Gimbel Pennsylvania Art Exhibit, a collection of 116 paintings depicting contemporary Pennsylvania, will be open for public exhibition in the Mineral Industries Gallery, starting at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. There is no admission charge.

A private showing for a select group of art lovers, members of the sponsoring committee, and artists participating in the show, will be held from 3 to 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Fourteen artists, five of them native Pennsylvanians, were commissioned to do the series by the Gimbel Company.

The collection has won wide acclaim from critics and art lovers alike in the three cities, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Harrisburg, which have seen the paintings prior to the current showing.

Miss Alice Merriam, a representative from the Gimbel Company, will be prepared to give special gallery talks to interested groups of students or townspeople.

Arrangements for the talks may be made by contacting Prof. Milton S. Osborne, head of the department of architecture, in 302 Main Engineering, or by calling extension 45.

"The current collection of paintings now on exhibit is one of the finest examples of present day art in existence, and certainly the finest ever to be shown at the College," Professor Osborne said.

Ensemble Offers String Quartets

String quartets by Beethoven, Mozart, and Hadyn will be performed by the Philadelphia String Quartet in the Hotel State College banquet room, 8 p.m. Saturday, May 1. The concert is under the auspices of the Common Sense Club.

Tickets are available for $1.20 tax included, at Student Union, the music department office, and the Book and Record Shop. The four string players include Gottfried Wilfinger, violinist; Irving Ludkig, violinist; Jules Eskin, cellist; and David Klebanoff, violist.

A teacher at the Settlement Music School in Philadelphia, Mr. Wilfinger has soloed with the Pennsylvania All-State orchestra. At present he is competing with the ensemble's other violinist in the Philadelphia Orchestra Youth Concert solo contests.

Mr. Ludwig, the other finalist in the Youth Concert Series, has played with the National Symphony Orchestra and was concertmaster of the Pennsylvania All-State orchestra.

The cellist, Mr. Eskin, is now studying at the Julliard School. He served as first cellist with the Pennsylvania All-state orchestra. Mr. Klebanoff, the violist, is a former member of the Manila Symphony.

The string ensemble has appeared in concerts for the past year.

Coal Strike Causes GM Lay-Offs

DETROIT—The coal-steel shortage has led to the one-week lay-off of about 100,000 General Motors production workers. Some 100,000 more are due to be sent home for one week during the next two weeks.

CIO Plugs Wage Hikes

PITTSBURGH—The CIO Steel Workers Union stated that it will keep plugging for wage hikes despite U. S. Steel Corporation's stand against any more pay boosts.

Congressman Speaks in Chapel

Dr. Walter H. Judd, Republican Congressman from Minnesota since 1940, and former medical missionary to China, will speak on "How Can We Establish Peace?" at Chapel service in Schwab Auditorium 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Special music will include "None Other Lamb" sung by the Chapel Choir directed by Mrs. Willa Taylor, and several organ selections.

After receiving his MD degree from the University of Nebraska and serving his internship at Omaha, Dr. Judd began his missionary career in China in 1925 under the Congregational Foreign Mission Board.

He served as a physician in Nanking and Fukien for six years, and after a two-year interval of study at the Mayo Foundation, returned to Fenchow, China, until 1938, when war forced curtailment of his work.

As a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Dr. Judd vigorously backed the recently-enacted China aid bill.

IFC Elections Set for Tuesday

Election of next year's Interfraternity Council officers will take place in 405 Old Main at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday Joseph Succop, publicity chairman, said yesterday.

Delegates will vote for 1948-'49 president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer from a tentative nomination slate which has not yet been approved by the elections committee.

Nominated for IFC president are Dean Altemus, Chi Phi, and George Chapman, Theta Chi. Six candidates named for the vice-presidency are John Fast, Alpha Chi Sigma; Thomas Giles, Alpha Phi Alpha; Dennie Hoggard, Alpha Phi Alpha; Richard McAdams, Alpha Tau Omega; Ross Pillsbury, Phi Gamma Delta; David Sims, Acacia.

Huston, Broscious, Phi Kappa Psi; Morton Green, Pi Lambda Phi, and Ross Pillsbury, Phi Gamma Delta, have been nominated for IFC secretary-treasurer.

Elections committee members who will check qualifications of nominees before Tuesday are Willard Agnew, Richard Charles, Robert Engle and Robert Koser.

50 Coeds Attend WSGA Meeting On Meal Attire

Approximately fifty coeds attended the WSGA meeting Thursday night to discuss the question of dress in the dining commons.

Clarification of the regulations and discussion concerning the way of meeting the problem led to the decision of Dean of Women Pearl O. Weston to dismiss the student checkers who had been employed to take names of the offenders as they entered the commons.

Miss Weston agreed with Senate and those attending the meeting that the women students should be given the opportunity to show their own cooperativeness in regard to the dress regulations.

She stated "The Penn State women—without checkers at the dining room doors—will be given the opportunity to indicate their free desire to cooperate with standards founded on the high ideals worthy of College women."

In the discussion that followed, Miss Weston said that the undisclosed sources who brought pressure to bear for a "clean-up" of coed dress were invited to attend the meeting but declined, and that funds for payments of the checkers were being donated to the Dean's Office as a personal gift.

At the end of the discussion Senate decided to refer the subject back to the House of Representatives. There, members of the House would work out a plan in cooperation with the Senate, the House, and the Dean of Women's office.

Suzanne Romig, president of WSGA, announced that CORE has sold $833 worth of $1 tickets for a non-discriminatory barber shop, but they are extending the drive until May 5.

$10 will be sent to the American Cancer Society by WSGA.

Cousins Speaks At Final Forum

Editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, Norman Cousins, will appear in Schwab Auditorium Thursday night as the final event of the Community Forum Lecture series.

Mr. Cousins' lecture title is "Don't Resign From the Human Race." Originally scheduled to appear in March, he has been convalescing from illness.

The lecturer served as special consultant on publications to the Office of War Information and was accredited to the joint task force of the atomic bomb test at Bikini. He is special consultant on world affairs for the American Broadcasting Company.

Jean-Clad Coeds Wash Windows For WSSF

The faculty has its Talent Show, other organizations may have their dances or bazaars, but Chimes, national junior women's honorary, has chosen the most unique way of all to raise money. They are washing windows for the town merchants this morning.

This project was chosen when the organization was asked to make a donation to the World Student Service Fund. The members felt they couldn't afford to take any funds from the treasury and they arrived at this ingenious money-making stunt.

The merchants and local Chamber of Commerce readily accepted the idea, so when jean-clad, turban-wearing coeds are seen scrubbing windows on State College streets this morning, don't laugh—they're working for a worthy cause, WSSF.

'He's Real Gone' Living with a $10 Piano

A piano is considered a musical instrument, more bulky than the usual "portable" music makers, but what is to prevent a man from carrying it wherever he goes or having it with him where he lives?

Maybe Edgar Corbin, of Dorm 11 Pollock Circle, felt the need of having musical education mixed in with his other studies, and that may be the reason for his obtaining an upright piano for $10, giving it a little working over, and playing it to his heart's content.

The rooms in the dormitories aren't what may be called extra-large, but Corbin moved his piano into the room with him. . . . Now he's cramped, but living luxuriously.

The Pollock Circle Council wondered if this was a violation of rules and even the Dean of Men's office was at a loss in deciding whether it was right or wrong. It's unusual at any rate.

At a recent Council meeting, it was decided that as long as Corbin disturbed no one he could keep his piano. So, until some directive comes out about musical instruments, he may continue tickling away.

Art Groups Work On May Festival

All artistic groups of the College have joined efforts to present the Combined Arts Festival, May 2 to 15.

Coinciding with the celebration are the Players' productions of "Years Ago," a comedy at Schwab Auditorium, May 6, 7, and 8, and "Hotel Universe," a psychological drama at Center Stage May 8.

During the entire period, which runs through to Mother's Day weekend, paintings of established Pennsylvanian artists will be displayed in the Mineral Arts Gallery, and 50 drawings by George Biddle, well-known Philadelphia-born artist, will be shown in the first floor of the library. Also exhibited during the festival will be student works in architecture, paintings, murals, scene design, etc. in White Hall.

Music Program Varied

A concert by the symphony orchestra will be given in Schwab Auditorium at 3 p.m., May 9. Completing the musical angle are two organ recitals in Schwab at 4 p.m. May 6 and 13, and a dance recital in White Hall, 8 p.m. May 11.

Starring in the field of amateur dramatics are three programs, students original one-act plays in the Little Theatre, at 7:30 p.m., May 10; interpretive readings in 121 Sparks at 8 p.m. May 12, and a radio dramatic reading at 9:30 over WMAJ, May 13.

The steering committee consists of Harold E. Dickson, professor of fine arts, Viktor Lowenfeld, professor of dramatics.

Critique Sponsors Dixieland, Be-bop In Music Battle

Sextet, Combo Feature Jazz Styles in Schwab

Jazz in the Be-bop and Dixieland style will echo in Schwab Auditorium from 2 to 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Admission to the concert emphasized James Dunaway, master of ceremonies, is free.

Critique is sponsoring the contest, he said, to stimulate interest in jazz and to give a clearer picture of the difference in jazz styles.

The combinations will emphasize the difference between the two styles by alternately playing the same numbers at the start of the concert. After this, each group will play three-number sets with Be-bop alternating with Dixieland.

The Be-bop group is made up of trumpet, alto sax, tenor sax, piano, bass, and drums. The Tru-Blu sextet plays the traditional Dixieland trumpet, piano, clarinet, trombone, bass and drums.

Dixieland jazz represents a slight variation from the original New Orleans type jazz. Sidney Bechet and Bunk Johnson are among the leading protagonists of Dixieland.

Be-bop is the newest development of jazz. It strives to escape from traditional jazz patterns. Dizzie Gillespie and Charlie Parker are outstanding examples of Be-bop specialists.

Speech Students Give Programs

Advanced interpretative speech students will star in three programs this week. The first of this series will be given for the youth groups of all churches at the Methodist Church, 256 W. College avenue, 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Included in this performance is Phyllis Ginsberg's reading of a group of poems on an anti-racial prejudice theme, including works of Langston Hughes, Frank Marshall Davis and Countee Cullen. Lois Hyde will interpret "Little White Girl" by Mrs. Henry Menchen, and Martha Ann Koons, "The Test" by Angela Gibbs, both selections also following the prejudice pattern. There will be no admission for the program.

Jerome Sitkin, eighth semester arts and letters student and former varsity heavyweight boxer, will read a half-hour cutting of "The Devil and Daniel Webster" by Stephen Vincent Benet over WMAJ at 9:30 p.m., Tuesday.

Lois Hartswick, Martha Ann Koons, Martha Shell and Jane Weigle will entertain with selected readings for the Centre Hall Women's Club, Tuesday.
