Troxell Solos With Choir In Presentation of 'Elijah'

Miss Barbara Troxell, distinguished soprano and alumna of the College, will be one of the featured soloists with the Chapel Choir in their presentation of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" in Schwab Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. on May 19.

A 1937 graduate in music education, Miss Troxell furthered her education at the College by assisting the music department faculty until receiving her Master of Arts degree in 1939. Her major specialties were sight singing, voice, and piano.

While on campus, Miss Troxell was a member of the Girls' Glee Club, appeared as soloist with the Men's Glee Club, participated in numerous Theatopian shows, was guest soloist with the Chapel Choir, sang with the Quartet of the Girls' Glee Club, was a member of the Louise Homer Club and Pi Lambda Theta, education honorary.

In her senior year Miss Troxell was declared winner of State honors at the National Music Federation's convention held at Harrisburg. At that time she also was director of the Baptist Church Choir and organist for the Reformed Church Choir.

Upon receiving her Masters degree, Miss Troxell went to study under Mme. Elizabeth Schumann at the Curtis Institute, from which she graduated with honors.

Miss Troxell since then has made successful appearances under the batons of Eugene Ormandy, Leopold Stokowski and Sir Thomas Beecham. She also has appeared with numerous symphony orchestras throughout the country.

Coed Wins Honors In Cattle Fitting

Geraldine Hindenach, a home economics senior, who won both fitting and showing championships last year, nearly repeated her performance at this year's Dairy Exposition. She won the grand champion fitting honors as a top prize, the Jersey fitting honors, and third place in the cattle judging event.

Robert McKown, a sophomore in dairy husbandry, took grand champion honors in showing, first showing honors among the Holstein breed, and second place in his fitting class.

Reserve champion in fitting was Donald Seipt, a sophomore in dairy husbandry, while Arthur another sophomore in dairy husbandry took reserve honors in showing. They took first honors as fitters and showmen among the Guernsey breed.

William Deisley, a junior in dairy manufacturing and president of the Dairy Science Club, took first honors in the sweepstakes class after winning the blue ribbon in the ice-cream judging contest, in the professional manufacturing division.

George D. Heidelbaugh won the amateur division honors in the milk judging contest, while William Culp took professional honors. Vernon T. Smith won the ice-cream mold contest.

Lois June Cook, a home economics sophomore, won the calf-style contest by giving her calf the "new look" by means of an Oriental-Turkish trim, and a pair of sunglasses.

Barbara Brown, a sophomore in journalism, member of the Collegian editorial staff, won first prize in a field of eight coeds in the milking contest.

The Dairy Exposition was well attended in spite of the sudden cold wave, and the biggest crowd that ever turned out for such an event was present Saturday afternoon. Conservative estimates placed the attendance at well over 3000.

Gimbel Art

More than 6000 persons attended the exhibit of the Gimbel Pennsylvania Art Collection which closed Saturday night after a two-week showing at the Mineral Industries Gallery at the College.

Liberal Arts Council Sponsors Student-Faculty Mixer Tonight

Fun, entertainment, and refreshments are promised to those Liberal Arts students and faculty members who attend the mixer in northwest lounge of Atherton Hall from 7 to 9:30 o'clock tonight.

Entertainment will be provided by members of Theta Alpha Phi and Players, dramatic organizations, according to John Stephenson, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Invitations have been sent to every department and student organization of the school. Wives or husbands of faculty members and students have also been invited. Jean Moore was in charge of invitations.

Other members of the committee are Elliot Krane, publicity; and Bunny Rosenthal, refreshments.

This will be the last activity of the Liberal Arts Student Council for the year, Selma Zasofsky, president, said.

In addition to planning for the Mixer, the Council has, among other activities, conducted an investigation of the possibility of obtaining an artificial lake near campus, gathered suggestions and criticisms of course and teacher ratings given last spring, aided the Liberal Arts Lecture Series Committee, sent active representatives to CORE, and helped plan the Faculty Talent Show.

General information seems to point out that men and women are evenly matched in intelligence.
