

International Workshops Discuss Welfare, Travel

Should American students be represented in the International Union of Students? How can foreign student relief drives be implemented and coordinated on American campuses? What bonds of friendship can be forged between American students and the existing Student Unions of foreign countries? How can foreign tours be arranged for more American students?

Concrete answers of practical value for Pennsylvania Regional colleges will be sought in two International Affairs Workshops. One of them will be attended by each delegate, except the special committeemen who meet concurrently.

An extensive international program has been undertaken by NSA, both regionally and nationally. Negotiations with IUS, a tri-nation tour, and work as the only recognized American student organization on the UN's Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, are among the international accomplishments.

Foreign Students

The Foreign Students Welfare Committee will consider several reports from regional committees. Swarthmore College will report on the organization and effectiveness of its Relief Drives Committee, with suggestions for their improvement.

St. Joseph's College and Rittenhouse College committees will report on various scholarship plans for foreign students who wish to study here and for Americans desiring to study abroad. Hospitality plans for foreigners studying in the United States will be developed.

The feasibility of organizing international houses on large campuses, or of establishing one as a regional project will be considered. Colleges will be selected to carry out each project proposed by the workshops.

Exchange

This summer's tri-nation tour will be discussed by the Student Travel and Exchange Workshop from the viewpoint of future extension and improvement. Much groundwork needs to be accomplished before the additional tours being planned by NSA for next summer can materialize.

Louis Ieradi of Rittenhouse College, chairman of the regional Committee on International Correspondence, will report on the distribution of foreign students' letters to campuses throughout the state.

Many letters, written in many languages including English, have been gathered by NSA's International Correspondence Commission, and sent to each region. Ieradi will tell of his methods of distribution to regional college students, and request suggestions for improvement.

NSA sponsorship of foreign lecture series in regional colleges is another item on the agenda. The speakers would be students, instructors or non-academic lecturers with wide backgrounds of experience in foreign nations.

action committees dissolved the Czech National Union of Students, the Prague Union, and student dormitory unions.

Incensed by what he considered outrages against Czech students, Smith demanded that the IUS Secretariat condemn the dispersal of the demonstration, the arrests and the work of the Communist action committees. The IUS conducted an investigation of the affair.

In its defense of the action committees, the IUS was not so categorical. The Secretariat refused to adopt any part of Smith's proposal. He and Ellis therefore resigned.

In his letter of resignation, Ellis pointed out IUS's generous help of all students suppressed by right-wing elements, and its ignoring the plight of students oppressed by Communists. He traced the evolution of communist domination in IUS, and stated that IUS failure to condemn all phases of the recent treatment of Czech students of American participation in IUS seemed to remove any possibility on reasonable terms.
