

Art Students Paint Murals In Two Campus Buildings

Art Students, enrolled in courses taught by Viktor Lowenfeld, professor of art education, are painting murals in two buildings on the campus.

On the second floor of Engineering "E" five students are painting five panels which depict various phases of training in naval science. Students working on this project are Edward Mattil, State College; C. R. Reynolds, Wellsboro; Emmy Lou Fluke, Saxton; Hiram Williams, Dushore; and Albert V. Osman, Mifflinburg, formerly of Bellefonte.

In the Temporary Classroom Building, one corridor and the walls of two rooms are being decorated with the murals. In one of the classrooms, Duke Madenfort, of State College, is completing a psychological study of adolescence while Joseph L. Petrillock, of West Hazleton, is painting a cycle of life. John T. Biggers, of Philadelphia, is working on a mural in another room.

Another mural by Agnes C. Kennedy, of Kittanning, centers about the life of a teacher.

The murals in the corridor consist of a number of panels on various subjects. One by Earl L. Palmatier, of Shickshinny, contrasts war and peace. Richard H. Blewett, of Reading, depicts the four freedoms in his panel. Janice L. Koenig, of New York, is painting city life, while Joseph L. Mack, of High Point, N.C., will depict the removal of slum areas.

Willard F. Domitick, of Clearfield, while fighting in the South Pacific, kept a sketch book and is utilizing it in work he is doing on the murals.

Other students engaged in the project include Mohamed Hamdi Howehshy, of Cairo, Egypt; Ambrose L. Corcoran, of Brockport, N. Y.; Paul B. Flick, of Bethlehem; Norma J. Gates, of York; Helen A. Gorndt, of North East; Martha N. Sullivan, of Hollidaysburg; Robert M. Skelton, of Rochester, N.Y.; and Rufus O. Williams of Philadelphia.

Profs Take Action About Weather, Write Book

Everybody talks about the weather. . . .

And now, two faculty members at the College have written a book about it.

Dr. Hans Neuberger, professor and chief of the division of meteorology, and Cdr. F. Briscoe Stephens, instructor in meteorology, are authors of a book, "Weather and Man," published this week.

The 320-page text combines non-technical treatment of weather science with practical applications to particular fields of study. A fundamental concept of meteorology based on air mass analysis is presented. The text shows the effects of weather phenomena on man's "every day" and professional activities, such as agriculture, transportation, health and housekeeping.

The book is illustrated with drawings by Dr. Neuberger. On some of them, State College residents will recognize Old Main tower jutting from the horizon. Another, a photograph, shows damage caused by a tornado that whipped through Centre county three years ago.

Dorm Fees Due

Students living in dormitories and using dining hall facilities are requested to pay fees at the Bursar's office in Old Main.

4911 Enroll To Set Summer Record

A total of 4911 students have registered for the Main Summer Session, establishing a new enrollment record for summer sessions.

The enrollment, it was explained, is incomplete and will continue to rise as new groups arrive on the campus from week to week for special courses and workshops.

In addition to the 4911 students on the campus, more than 250 men are enrolled for civil engineering, mining, geology, and forestry camps. The campus enrollment includes 2300 veterans while the enrollment of more than 250 in special camps consists almost entirely of veterans.

Class of '52 Expects 'Quints' This Fall

The Quints have been admitted to the College as freshmen this fall.

So said William S. Hoffman, dean of admissions, in a burst of excitement.

He hastened to add, however, that the Quints are really twins from Port Allegany High School.

Donald H. Quint was president of his senior class, manager of the baseball team, and a member of the glee club; and Gerald Quint was a footballer and glee clubber.

They'll spend their freshman year at Mansfield State Teachers College, Dean Hoffman said.

Furniture Arrives For Women's Dorms

Mattresses for the new women's dormitories have begun to arrive. Aside from the two carloads of mattresses, fourteen truckloads of furniture for those buildings will arrive some time this week.

New beds and mattresses also have been ordered for the Nittany Dorms. Thirty-six inch beds will replace the present thirty inch beds, which were ordered through Army surplus with the intent of replacing them as soon as possible.

The six compartment stainless steel mess trays are to be replaced by dinner ware.

Lt. Col. Foley Joins Campus NROTC

Lt. Col. Ernest P. Foley, USMC has reported for duty as executive officer of the NROTC unit and assistant professor of naval science. He replaces Cmdr. Charles H. Holcombe, USN.

Commander Holcombe, who served with the unit for two and one-half years, now commands the USS McKean, a destroyer.

Colonel Foley received his BS degree in electrical engineering from Tufts College and belongs to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

He accepted a commission in the Marine Corps in 1936, and fought on Guadalcanal, New Guinea, New Britain and Okinawa. He was decorated with the Silver Star and the Bronze Star.

Car Winner

Mrs. Lucy Houser of Bellefonte was the winner of the Pontiac automobile awarded as a finale to the Alpha Fire Department's annual Fourth of July Carnival last Monday night.

The drawing took place about midnight at the midway erected on South Allen street, following the huge parade, pet show and doll show during the day and early evening.

Mrs. Houser held only one ticket and said, "I never thought for a second I'd win."
