

Prof to Read Paper in Holland At 10th Philosophy Congress

Dr. Haskell B. Curry, professor of mathematics, sailed from Hoboken, N.J., Saturday for Amsterdam, Holland, where he will present a paper at the 10th International Congress of Philosophy to be held in Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

The congress will be in session from Aug. 11 to 18 and Dr. Curry will present his paper on languages and formal systems before the symbolic logic session.

After the congress adjourns, Dr. Curry will visit with a colleague, Prof. Robert Fays, at the University of Louvain, Louvain, Belgium, then visit other parts of the continent before traveling to England.

Dr. Curry plans to attend the International Congress of Applied Mechanics in London from September 4 to 11. Dr. John A. Sauer, professor and head of the department of engineering mechanics, is presenting the papers prepared by himself and Dr. Joseph Marin, professor of engineering mechanics, at the London congress.

From London, Dr. Curry will travel to Manchester, England, to see Dr. Sidney Goldstein, aerodynamicist and head of the Fluid Mechanics Laboratory there. He plans to sail from Southampton, England, and to arrive in this country about September 21.

Dr. Curry, who has been on the Penn State faculty since 1929, has done extensive work in the field of logic. He is a member of the Association for Symbolic Logic and in 1936-37 served as vice-president and the following two years as president of the association.

Schedule Changes

Students who have completed a first phase schedule for the first semester 1948-49, and desire to make any change must secure a drop-add form from the scheduling office in the Armory and have it signed by their advisor, according to William S. Hoffman, dean of admissions.

A change in schedule made before September 10, will enable a student to save much time in completing final phase registration on September 24 or 25, he said.

The name of the College in 1859 was The Farmer's High School.

Students' Wives Fill Flimsy Frills

Photogenic students' wives were in demand last week when a nearby Snow Shoe clothing manufacturer wanted models.

The qualifications were that the girls should be experienced, young, attractive, and should wear size 32 or 34 lingerie.

The positions were filled by three veterans' wives.

VA Center Offers Guidance Service

Veterans may obtain vocational and educational guidance at the VA guidance center in the old Zoology building from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, according to Franklyn D. Fry, chief of the campus Veterans Administration Guidance Center.

Now is the time for all veterans to secure vocational advisement before the fall semester begins, in order to determine the vocation for which they are best fitted, Mr. Fry says.

The VA office in the old Zoology building also provides information on benefits available to the veteran and advice on National Service Life Insurance.

These services are free to all veterans.

'Air' London Times

The Library now receives the Air Edition of the London Times. Willard P. Lewis, librarian, announced recently.

The Times is available at the periodical desk, on the second floor of the Central Library.

Alumni Office Serves Grads

Seniors graduating at any session this summer are invited to visit the Alumni Association office, 104 Old Main, to learn about the services the association offers to graduates.

Active members of the association will receive priority in ordering tickets for this fall's football games, according to Ridge Riley, executive secretary. He added that demand for tickets to certain games may be so great that only members of the Alumni Association will be able to obtain them.

Seven times a year, the association sends its members a 32-page magazine, The Alumni News, which the American Alumni Council last year selected as one of the ten best alumni magazines in the country.

Association members also receive the Football Letter, a weekly printed report of football games and the Penn Stater, a quarterly newspaper. Annual dues are $3.

Registration-

Other registrants are required to stop at "Section 8" in Rec Hall for assessment of fees. After these are paid, students will be given class admission stubs.

Instructors are authorized to admit to class only the students who present these stubs. If a student loses a stub, he should take his copy of the registration form to the registrar, 109 Old Main, to receive a duplicate.

Schedule Changes

To make a schedule change prior to completion of registration forms, a student should get a change-of-schedule card at the information desk, get his advisor's approval and adjust his class admission cards in "Section 3."

A student who wishes to change his schedule after he has registered, must apply to the dean of his school, or to the director of Summer Sessions.

Those registering after Monday will begin the registration process at their dean's or adviser's office.
