GOP Aids Reds, Says Truman

President Truman yesterday accused the Republican Party of being an unwitting ally of Communists in this country, and he charged the Republicans with hampering administration efforts to cope with the Reds.

The President also said that the House Committee on Un-American Activities has deprived the government of the services of a number of atomic scientists.

Ask Probe of Thomas

The Department of Justice yesterday took under advisement a petition from 17 New Jersey attorneys asking for an investigation of the manner in which Rep. J. Parnell Thomas has conducted the Committee on Un-American Activities. The petition expressed concern over charges leveled by columnist Drew Pearson against Thomas.

Simmons Hall Hears First Serenade This Year

Mirrors aren't up and desk chairs are absent but Simmons Hall has been initiated on the campus with its first official serenade.

A little after one Saturday morning the sound of harmonizing male voices drifted in the open windows as Phi Sigma Delta serenaded Quelling Allen in the AEPH suite commemorating her pinning to Bud Zimmerman.

Vets of Both Types May Enroll in ROTC

Veterans and veterinary students, who may be eligible for deferment under the Selective Service act, may enroll in the advanced ROTC course without signing an agreement to serve two years of active duty upon graduation, Col. Ben-Hur Chastaine, professor of military science and tactics, announced yesterday.

Enrollment of qualified personnel in the advanced ROTC course will take place at the discretion of professors of military science, provided overall enrollment quotas are not exceeded.

Pennsylvania German Dialect Still Persists in Wide Area

The persistence of the Pennsylvania German language for nearly two centuries over a wide area in an English-speaking nation is an amazing phenomenon, in the opinion of Dr. Albert F. Buffington, professor of German at the College.

Dr. Buffington points out that more than 300,000 people speak the language and that in many of the rural sections of certain counties in Pennsylvania, it is the prevailing speech.

The language has spread far beyond the boundaries of Pennsylvania, Dr. Buffington explains, for as settlers migrated from the Keystone state, they carried the dialect with them. Pennsylvania German communities may be found in the Shenandoah Valley

Book Receipts

Cathaum Lists Foreign Films

Through the efforts of the International Film Club, foreign movies will be shown every Monday and Tuesday nights at the Cathaum theater.

The first film to be shown will be "The Well Digger's Daughter" on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, the 4th, 5th, and 6th of October. This picture, a sequel to the renowned "Baker's Wife," stars Raimu and Fernandel, well-known French stars.

This is the International Film Club's fifth year of existence, but this season for the first time the club has accomplished its goal of weekly showings of famous foreign films.

Other movies besides "The Well Digger's Daughter" scheduled to be shown include "Die Fledermaus," "To Live in Peace," "Volpone," "Fanny," "Marias," and "Cesar." Regular admission will be charged.

College Names Dairy Head

Dr. Donald V. Josephson has been named to the head of the department of dairy husbandry to succeed Prof. Andrew A. Borland, who retired from the faculty July 1 after 34 years' service at the College, 29 of them as head of the department.

The new department head was graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1935 and entered the College on a fellowship of the Dairy Industry Supply Association the same year, receiving his master's degree in 1936.

He was associated with Borland's research laboratories for two years and in 1938 returned to the College as instructor in dairy manufacturing courses. He received his doctorate here in 1943. Dr. Josephson spent the last three years on the faculty of Ohio State's dairy technology department, where he supervised research work in dairy products. At the same time he taught ice cream making and condensed milk manufacturing. He is the author of many technical and research publications dealing with fundamental dairy product handling problems.

Dateless, Worried? Cheer Is Near—Shmoos Arrive

Centre Countians can throw out all their worries today. The shmoos have arrived.

At noon there was no news on any County businessmen jumping out windows or running in front of trains but the shmoos invasion is on.

The first shmoos was seen in Philipsburg Sunday and the one which hit State College this morning was cornered and placed in the Commerce Club window. It's still alive because apparently no one has gotten hungry looking at the shmoos.

Like the other shmoos, it produces milk, eggs and butter. It tastes like chicken when fried and pork when roasted. Shmooskin is a substitute for wood and the shmoos are more fun than a barrel of humans.

State College's shmoos resembles a gourd found by a Philipsburg resident.

Psychologists To Meet Here

The American Psychological Association will hold its 1950 meeting at the College, Dr. Bruce V. Moore, head of the department of psychology, said yesterday.

Dr. Moore said that the council of representatives of the association had accepted the College's invitation at the fifty-sixth annual meeting in Boston earlier this month. Members expressed their pleasure at the acceptance and recalled the success of the 1940 meeting held at State College.

The meeting, scheduled for the first week in September, 1950, probably will be attended by 2500 psychologists from all sections of the country, Canada, Mexico, and several Central and South American countries, Dr. Moore said. The 1949 meeting will be held in Detroit, Mich.

Atomic Leaders List College Study Site

The College has been chosen by the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington as a center for study in the field of atomic energy. Other schools throughout the state chosen for similar work are Carnegie Institute of Technology, University of Pennsylvania and University of Pittsburgh.

Among 18 Pennsylvanians to receive fellowships awarded by the commission is Robert E. Lowrie, a graduate student in metallurgy at the College. Lowrie's work will be supervised by Dr. Harold J. Read, associate professor of metallurgy.

This award is among 162 new research fellowships awarded in the physical, biological and agricultural sciences.

The National Academy of Sciences has designated this program to insure the expansion of research and development in atomic energy.

Greeters Hold Belle Hop Ball

Opening the big dance season at the TUB, the Belle Hop Ball, sponsored by the Junior Greeters Club, will be held in the ballroom from 9 to 12 p.m. Saturday night.

The Red McCarthy Quintet, a musical organization from Harrisburg, will furnish music for dancing.

Tickets for the affair, the first All-College dance of the semester, may be obtained at Student Union desk in Old Main beginning today or at the TUB the night of the ball for $1 per couple including tax.

The Junior Greeters, sponsors of the dance, are an organization of hotel administration students and are affiliated with the Hotel Greeters Association of America.

Cabinet Holds First Meeting

All-College Cabinet will hold its first meeting in 201 Old Main at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, William Lawless, all-College president, announced.

The meeting will be an informal gathering to allow each of the members to become acquainted, Lawless said. No formal business will be transacted, he added.

"In former years many members of Cabinet did not meet until late in the semester," Lawless pointed out. "By this meeting, we hope to correct the situation."

Cabinet members are requested to leave their names, telephone number and State College address at Student Union desk as soon as possible.

New Sophomore Girl May Be Photogenic 'Male' Gymnast

All new students are warned against unwarily signing up for extra-curricular or non-credit courses during regularly scheduled hours. We offer this bit of advice for those unacquainted with the college time-tables as a precaution against such predicaments as the following.

Your reporter overheard a conversation similar to the following as he passed the Armory Wednesday afternoon.

"Oh, dear, I did a dumb thing," came the lilting voice of a new sophomore.

"What was that?" queried her female companion.

"I signed up for a men's gym class!"

So, beware all you newly-fledged sophomores!

Collegian Edit Staff

All sophomore, junior and senior board members are requested to report to the Collegian office this afternoon before 5 o'clock.

Lion Cavorts In New Suit At Bison Game

The College's traditional lion has received a new suit of clothes, which he will don for the first time on Saturday afternoon at the Bucknell - Penn State football game.

Chenko Studios, well-known New York City designers, who designed the suits for the Rockettes in Sonja Henie's "Ice Capades," were engaged for this special occasion or making a new lion's suit.

The new suit purchased by Athletic Association for $350 after soliciting funds from the general student body, alumni, and friends, is of genuine fur and includes eyes that move and a mouth which opens.

In order to give added reality to the new suit, the designers visited Central Park Zoo to "interview" Leo, a pet lion formerly presented to the College by the Vox Pop radio show.

Students Seek Part-Time Jobs

Approximately 700 College students are looking for part time jobs in State College, reported Allan M. Reece of the student placement service.

Already 500 students have applied for jobs and Mr. Reece expects the total to reach 700 or more by the end of the week.

About 50 percent of the applicants are sophomores, said the employment service head. Many of them are not under the GI Bill of Rights and are working their way through college, he explained.

A large number of students want to work for their meals at fraternity houses or dormitories. The majority of the other requests are for manual labor, baby sitting and housework.

Many men students have had a great deal of experience in a variety of jobs, said Reece. Plumbers, carpenters, machinists, tool designers, draftsmen, salesmen and designers are among the applicants.

Women students request office and sales work most frequently.

More than 100 men are available for baby-sitting, said Reece. Many parents prefer male baby-sitters, he explained, since children sometimes will not "tolerate the girls."

The average pay for baby-sitting is 35 cents an hour, said Reece, while housework and home maintenance brings about 75 cents an hour.

Last year the student placement service filled 2,500 jobs. Students should apply at the Student Employment Office in the TUB.
