Limit, One - Maybe

Four student leaders have stuck their necks way out, when they announced their plan for distribution of Penn tickets to students, in case the demand exceeds the supply, as is expected.

Realizing that repercussions would be felt from many quarters, no matter what scheme they evolved, the group argued and threshed out the problem at great length, considering every conceivable angle.

The committee, composed of the All-College, senior class and Men's Athletic Association presidents, and the editor of The Daily Collegian, were guided by one principle, and one only.

That was: That as many PENN STATE STUDENTS be given an opportunity to see the game as space limitations would permit.

The problem was tremendous. How could an entourage of possibly 9000 rabid students, many with dates, wives, parents, brothers or sisters, possibly be squeezed into 5200 seats?

(A block of the 300 best tickets are withheld for the football squad. Each player will receive two comps, and will be permitted to buy as many as four others.)

The finally-reached decision, that if more than 5200 tickets were applied for, they would be allocated one per student as long as they last, was made with full cognizance of the hardship it would create among men with non-student wives or fiancées.

One of the committee members is married. It was finally agreed, however, that a wife or fiancée should not displace a student.

In making this decision, the leaders did all they possibly could to assure an equitable distribution of the tickets. If they had not assumed the responsibility, the graduate manager of athletics would have had to. Perhaps his solution would have been even more irksome to students.

A secondary motive behind the rigid limitation of tickets, was to curtail scalping to the greatest possible extent. The move, as strict as it may be, will not of itself eliminate that scurvy practice.

Prospective scalpers ought to become the most despised characters on campus. Students who, without a qualm, deliberately set out to "make a killing" off the prowess of their fellow student players, and at the expense of other students eager to see the game, are a disgrace to all that is finest and great about Penn State.

Those who agree to buy "black market" tickets are equally at fault, but their motives are generally good, and certainly understandable. Anyone who says he doesn't want to see the game is either kidding himself, or is nuts.

All the thought, time and effort expended, willingly, by this committee, in the attempt to spread tickets to the widest extent among STUDENTS, can be annulled or justified by the individual actions of those students.

Students not planning to attend should resist all overtures of their friends, or strangers, to apply for a ticket for them. Perhaps by so doing, he would deprive another friend of a much-wanted place in the stands.

Furthermore, students should refrain from ordering two tickets, if they need only one. Students planning to attend in a group can still do so, by requesting one ticket each, and having their requests pinned together.

Halt the scalper! See you at Penn!

Fight on State

Fight on State, Fight on State,
Strike your gait and win,
Victory we predict for thee,
We're ever true to you dear old
White and Blue.

Onward State, Onward State
Roar Lions roar,
We'll hit that line, roll up the score.

Fight on to victory evermore,
Fight on, on
On, on, on Fight on, on Penn State!

Victory

Come now classmen let us sing,
Loyally support the team;
We're here today with our colors
gay,

Ready to win the fray—
Whether it be Pitt or Penn.
Harvard or Cornell,
Play the game, every man,
And we will win again.

Chorus:

Fight, fight, fight, for the Blue
and White,
Victory will our slogan be;
Dear Alma Mater, fairest of all.
Thy loyal sons will obey thy call
To fight, fight, fight, with all their might.

Ever the goal to gain,
Into the game for Penn State's
fame
Fight on to victory,
All along the line (Repeat chorus)

Alma Mater

For the Glory of Old State
For her founders strong and great,

For the future that we wait,
Raise the song, raise the song.

Sing our love and loyalty
Sing our hope that bright and free

Rest, O Mother dear, with thee,
All with thee, all with thee.

When we stood at boyhood's gate
Shapeless in the hands of fate,
Thou did'st mold us, dear old
State
Into men, into men.

May no act of ours bring shame
To one heart that loves thy name,
May our lives help swell thy
fame,
Dear old State, dear old State

"Short Yell"

Honor Guard

Another campus tradition of long standing will be displayed this afternoon as the Penn State football team takes the field against Bucknell.

Forming a guard of honor, a greeting committee, if you like, will be members of the campus hat societies. Through a double line of hat-men the Lion squad will trot onto the field.

It would be difficult for every student to be on the field to greet the team. The hat-men represent the rest of the student body in this pleasant duty.

The members of the hat societies are students who are outstanding in the various activities. They were chosen for the hat societies because they are student leaders.

But a leader has duties as well as privileges. And one of these is to represent those whom he leads.

So let's be there—hat-men!

—Elliot Shapiro.
