

'Let's Keep Pennsylvania Boys In Pennsylvania Colleges' - Hig

Football Coach Bob Higgins, of Penn State, today launched a personal campaign to "keep Pennsylvania football players in Pennsylvania colleges."

The Nittany Lion veteran suggested that the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh and Penn State, head up an unofficial organization to interest schoolboy players in the merits of "education at home."

He said most athletes liked their home state, and wanted eventually to make their living in Pennsylvania, but "far too many are lured to schools in other states" apparently because those schools do "a better job of selling themselves."

He expressed pride in his own 1948 team, which will be composed almost wholly of Pennsylvania boys, but added that "there still are too many good athletes who go out of the state for their college education."

Higgins said he had no particular schools in mind. "Just say," he explained, "that they are non-Pennsylvania schools." Reminded that Pennsylvania Week soon would be observed in this State, the veteran coach suggested that his campaign "would make a good Pennsylvania Week project."

X-GI Club Funds Aid Memorial

A committee of three College officials is holding in trust some $1400 in funds of the now defunct X-GI club which are to be turned over to the Hetzel Memorial Book Fund.

The club funds, in the form of government securities, were turned over to the committee last spring when the group disbanded. When the Student Union building is established, the securities are to go into the book fund for the building's browsing section.

However, should the SU building not be completed by June 1, 1953, or should they find better use for the funds, the trustees will allocate the money elsewhere.

One of the trustees, Wilmer Kenworthy, executive secretary to the president, said yesterday that the group hoped the SU building would be completed in time for the money to be used as specified. The other trustees are Robert E. Galbraith, faculty veterans' advisor, and George Donovan, director of student activities.

Nominations Close For LA Council

Today is the last opportunity for those interested in nominating themselves for the Liberal Arts student council to do so, according to Selma Zasofsky, president. Nominations are being accepted in 132 Sparks until 12 o'clock noon.

No nominations will be considered unless the proper blanks are filled out, she said. This ruling applies to old members of the council seeking renomination as well as those applying for the first time.
