DRAZENOVIICH BROTHERS

Joe (left) and Chuck Drazenovich form one of the top brother combines in the history of Penn State football and will be out to vent their wrath upon the Penn Quakers this afternoon.

Joe at guard and Chuck at quarterback were mainstays in the sensational 1947 grid team fielded by Coach Bob Higgins, and are living up to last year's form this season.

Hailing from Brownsville, both played one previous season for the Nittany Lions prior to 1947—Joe in 1944 and Chuck a year later.

Joe is 22, one year older than Chuck.

Lions Upset Jaspers In 19-42 Harrier Win

The Nittany Lion harriers, paced by Horace Ashenfelter and Bob Parsons, swept to a 19-42 victory over the vaunted cross-country runners of Manhattan University in the Lions' final dual meet of the season yesterday afternoon.

Parsons and Ashenfelter tied for first place at 27:06 for the five-mile grind, closely followed by the Jaspers' Bob Checcola at 27:12. Jack St. Clair and John McCall, both State runners, copped fourth and fifth places at 27:23 and 27:29 respectively.

Ignacius Rienzo, last year's star runner for Manhattan, who has been held back by injuries all season, came in eleventh.

The Jaspers, defending IC4A champs, last Tuesday won the metropolitan championship of New York City.

The Lions are defending NCAA champions.

two-team system which has proved so successful this season. The perennially-powerful Quaker forward wall is as strong as ever with anchor man Chuck Bednarik playing all-American football for the second straight year.

Both teams have been planning for the game since the spring training period and both will be going all out to take the victory ball home.

Throw last results out of the window along with the prognosticators. There's going to be a real football game in these parts today, and the Nittany Lion is going to get his tail clipped.

to something resembling the dust of Franklin field.

Looking forward with trepidation to today's fray, Penn partisans are haunted by the fact that the Quakers have not whipped the Nittany Lion on Franklin field since 1936. And three games have gone by the boards since then.

Back to play havoc with the Red and Blue again will be Speed-merchant Larry Joe and Punter deluxe Joe Colone, who starred as freshmen in State's spanking 13-7 win over favored Penn in '42. The two Joes will roll once more today.

And when the smoke clears this afternoon, the shadow of the triumphant Nittany Mountain Cat will have engulfed Philly, and the Penn goal posts will be on their way to becoming kindling wood in fraternity and rooming-house fireplaces up and down the Nittany Valley.

Win or Lose

Today's game will probably go down in history as one of the most exciting events since that Saturday six years ago when the Nittany Lions faced the Red and Blue on Franklin Field. The game that ensued was a thrilling one filled with all the fight and determination that the two traditional rivals could put into one struggle.

There will be much discussion and debate before and during this eventful game as to which team will emerge the victor. But don't let this enthusiasm run away with you. Remember that you Penn Staters are visiting another college and that, as visitors, you have a certain responsibility to your hosts and to your own school as well.

Help your cheerleaders along by following their leads, and put some of that well known Penn State pep into your cheers and songs to make them heard all over the field.

Today, the men out there playing the game are counting on each and every one of you for your loyal support. Let them know that you are backing them right down the line by cheering yourselves hoarse, and showing a little of the old spirit that the alums keep talking about. And above all, carry with you to the game a spirit of sportsmanship and fair play, a long standing custom at State.

To cheer when your team is winning is a sign of good spirit. To cheer when your team is losing is a stronger sign of good sportsmanship.

Two Elevens Risk Spotless Win Streaks

By Red Roth

Two of the longest winning streaks in the East will be at stake today when the two Pennsylvania gridiron goliaths, Pennsylvania and Penn State, meet at Franklin Field, and one of these victorious skeins is almost certain to be snapped when the teams walk off the field this afternoon.

The Nittany Lions enter today's contest with an unbroken string of 15 contests without a defeat. Penn's Quakers have not tasted the bitter dregs of a football loss in 14 straight football games.

Not since Pitt's Golden Panthers upset Coach Bob Higgins' charges at Pitt Stadium, 14-7, in 1946, have the Lions walked off the gridiron on the short end of the count.

TIES

Since that contest the boys from the Nittany Valley have amassed 13 victories and engaged in two ties, one of them a 13-13 deadlock with SMU in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Texas, New Year's Day. The other no-decision contest was played at New Beaver field against Michigan State just two weeks ago.

The Blue and White's football victories in the past two years include a 27-6 decision over Washington State at Hershey Stadium in the initial game of the 1947 season.

Other 1947 Lion victims were Bucknell, 54-0; Fordham, 75-0; Syracuse, 40-0; West Virginia, 21-14; Colgate, 46-0; Temple, 7-0; Navy, 20-7, and Pitt, 29-0. Lambert trophy winners last year, Penn State, Eastern champs, set two national defensive marks in riding through a nine-game schedule without a loss.

DEFENSE

They held their opponents to a total of 76.7 yards per game, via ground and air, which was third among all-time collegiate defensive marks, and limited enemy ball carriers to 17 yards per game rushing. Three foes—Syracuse, Colgate and Pitt—were held to minus yardage along the ground.

At the close of last year's regular pigskin season, the Higginsmen were rated fourth in the nation by the AP poll.

So far this year the Nittanyites have trounced Bucknell, 35-0; Syracuse, 34-14; West Virginia, 37-0; Colgate, 32-13, and tied Michigan State, 14-14.

In the current AP poll the Lions are ranked 14th, well behind today's opponent which placed seventh in the national rating.

Like the Lions, the Quakers were last defeated in 1946. Army's great powerhouse which boasted scattered over the campus indicate that an extremely high percentage, possibly as high as 75 per cent, of the fraternity men plan to attend the game.

GROUPS CONSPICUOUS

Several of the groups have arranged signs, posters, or distinctive articles of dress to identify themselves as Nittany Lion fans to the more than 80,000 fans expected to attend the contest.

What concerted action, if any, the Interfraternity Council will arrange has not yet been determined. There have been rumors, however, of a halftime stunt involving a helicopter and the Nittany Lion.

gained 657 yards in the air while the Nittany squad racked up 515.

DEFENSE

Defensively, Penn has a decided advantage over Penn State. In five games, the Red and Blue line has held the opposition to just 278 yards while in the same number of battles the Lion opponents were able to hit the Blue and White line for 583 yards.

To balance the picture, the Lion opponents gained only 583 yards through the air while the Penn adversaries gained 782 yards in passing. To accomplish this feat, the Red and Blue opposition threw 106 passes with 46 completions while the Penn State rivals threw 82 with 34 being completed.

Should a punting duel occur, Joe Colone's average of 40.9 yards per kick will far outweigh the Penn average of 33.2 yards in its first five contests. Both teams fumbled relatively few times, Penn dropping the pigskin seven times and Penn State six.

High on Ends

Bob Higgins, Lion football coach and former all-American end, thinks his two first-string ends, Sam Tamburo of New Kensington and Bob Hicks of Lancaster, are among the best in the business.
