On the west wall, Mr. Poor will paint an agricultural scene depicting Pennsylvania's treasure in land and crops and stock. The east wall is a study of wealth under the ground.

A portion of the mining panel was taken from an oil painting which Mr. Poor entered in the famed "Painting in the United States, 1948" exhibition at the Carnegie Institute. # Lions Enhance National 'Rep' By Slamming Highly-Rated Penn

The 13-0 blasting of Penn at Franklin field Saturday echoed in Dallas Sunday with the news that the undefeated Penn State grid squad was being "considered" for the Cotton Bowl for the second consecutive year.

North Carolina (tied by William and Mary Saturday, 7-0), Oklahoma and Army are also possibilities for the battle against this year's Southwest Conference champ.

Although the Penn battle, played before 80,000 fans basking in the 79-degree sun, was one of the most bruising contests of the year, only one major injury, a possible broken rib for Larry Joe, was listed by Dr. Alfred H. Griess, Nittany team physician.

"The results of the x-rays have not come through yet," commented Dr. Griess, "but it seems now that Joe probably will not play next Saturday against Temple."

Captain Joe Colone received a sprained ankle and John Finley was put out of action for a short period with an old shoulder injury, but both gridders should be ready for next week's game.

Best Game

"The team played the best game I've seen it play since the last Penn game in 1942," said Line Coach Joe Bedenk whose scouting contributed heavily to Saturday's win.

"The only time the Penn passers were rushed was in Saturday's game, and that rattled their entire team," he continued.

Cooney Suffers 'Heart Attack' At Goal

After the Blue and White's gallant goal line stand on the Lion one-inch line, Larry Cooney, star Nittany wingback, came out of the game so that captain Joe Colone could boot the dangerously hot pigskin out of the end zone.

Cooney flopped down in front of the bench and Chuck Medlar, Lion trainer, immediately rushed over to him fearing that Larry might have been injured. "Anything wrong, Larry?" Chuck inquired. "Are you hurt?"

"No," Cooney said, "nothing that you can fix. All I got is a little heart trouble. That last one was too close for my ticker to keep beating much longer."

Frothy's Theme 'On the Ball'

"On the Ball" is the theme of the newest issue of Froth, campus humor magazine. The secret of the mysterious slogan was revealed yesterday by nine sandwich men, whose "Froth is On the Ball" signs were seen all over campus.

The new Froth features the constant struggle of students to stay 'on the ball' in studies, extracurricular activities and social life. Top feature of the issue is the illustrated story, "Are You Prepared for Mating?" written by Bern Oldsey. Competing for attention, with the features are cartoons by such old Froth regulars as Ed Tylden and Ralph Meier.

Froth will be sold at Student Union, the Corner Room, the TUB and on the Mall, for twenty-five cents.

Lion Coats

The first step in the revival of a senior class tradition was taken yesterday when a "lion coat" committee, with Thomas Yemm as chairman, was appointed.

Under the custom, senior men buy and wear the lion coats during their final year on campus.

Other members of the committee are Nancy Ault, Marian Dills, Jeffries Hathaway, Robert Leeper, Robert Sankey and Jack Tiley.

Parties Name Rolston, Shallcross Sophomore Presidential Candidates

State Party

State Party elected Ken Rolston, a Forestry student, as its candidate for sophomore president's office in the final nominations held last night in Old Main.

Also nominated to run with Rolston on the State ticket were Barbara Niesley, home economics major, for vice-president, and Bob Longenecker, ceramics major from Alpha Chi/Sigma, as secretary-treasurer.

Other committee chairmen nominated were Roger Rowland, campaign chairman, Joel Kranich, publicity chairman, and Bob Goode, financial committee chairman. Jack Boddington, sophomore clique chairman, presided at the caucus.

The State Party will hold a campaign meeting next Sunday night.

Other party candidates for presidency were Bill Dietz, Nittany Dorms, and Jerry Sheehan who withdrew before the balloting, also from the Nittany Dorms. Vice-president hopefuls included Marjorie Apter, Atherton Hall, and Dave Schmuckler, who also withdrew from the race.

Lion Party

Lewis Shallcross, a chemistry major, won the Lion party candidacy for president of the sophomore class by an overwhelming vote at a rally last night.

The vice-presidential nomination went to William Snyder, an industrial engineering student, and winning the nod by a landslide for secretary-treasurer was Lois Kenyon, who majors in psychology.

Shallcross was opposed by Harry Kondourajian. Early in the meeting, Thomas McDermott, who had been nominated a week ago, withdrew his name.

The vice-presidential race was a three-way affair, with Cyrus Sporkin and Neil See opposing Snyder.

Shallcross, who spent last year at Swarthmore center, where he was class president, promised to give "as fair representation as is possible" to all sophomores, and not to special groups.

Snyder is a member of Delta Tau Delta who also spent last semester at Swarthmore. He was in the Army Air Corps for two years.

Miss Kenyon, formerly of Wilson College, is president of the south west section of Atherton Hall and a member of Modern Dance, Aquacade, and the women's house of representatives.

Sophomore elections are scheduled for November 16.

Juba Investigates Fraternity Thefts

The theft of approximately $300 Wednesday night from the Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Pi houses is still under investigation, Chief John R. Juba said yesterday.

Chief Juba explained that the theft occurred when the students were out of their rooms and warned against leaving sums of money where it can be easily stolen.

Coach Bob Higgins

"When we stopped Dooney in the line, smacked down their passers in the backfield and kept them bottled up, they didn't have a chance against our team."

To single out any one star of Saturday's smashing victory would not do justice to the other 28 Nittany gridders who contributed to the Lions' 16th consecutive game without a defeat.

Rogel

Fran Rogel, who scored both of the Penn State touchdowns, hit the Penn line for 77 yards including the 44-yard touchdown run in the second period, but it was little Elwood Petchel who kept the Lions in the Quakers' territory throughout the contest.

Throwing 15 passes, including the scoring pass to Rogel in the final period, "Petch" rolled up
