in the Lions' den, for Chuckran has struck back."

When the Nittanymen storm the Pitt fortress, fans should gain a better insight into the extent of this fleet back's progress. For the pre-game picture shows the Panthers looming as their traditional threat—and then some—to State fortunes.

About Mousetraps

Larry Layman, our admiring fraternity brother, suggested we explain the term "mousetrap," footballistically, for non-"experts" to sop up.

We questioned whether he referred to us as an "expert" on gridiron matters (which certainly ain't so). But anyway, here's our definition of the term:

"Mousetrap" merely means that a hole is created for an over-anxious opposing lineman who dashes in to stop a play and is promptly grounded by a defense-man. Such ingenious subtlety then leaves an opening for the ball carrier.

Teapot Tempest

Shifting the scene to Syracuse, we learn that things are stirring. We quote Larry Robinson of the New York World-Telegram:

"Syracuse University football is due for an overhauling or, at least, considerable soul-searching by university authorities."

"Prior to absorbing its seventh straight defeat, the latest at the hands of ancient rival Colgate last Saturday, a situation that had been seething for some time started to erupt. Two prominent groups, one of them the august board of trustees of the University, appointed committees to look into the football program from front office to water pail."

Then Robinson pointed out specific charges that Syracuse has attracted "a number of onetime scholastic stars who disappear into an athletic vacuum atop Piety Hill," and that "Bernie Custis, sensational sophomore passer, is so dissatisfied he plans to switch to Penn State at the end of the semester."

Big Comments

That stopped us short, so we raced to Rec Hall where Nittany Coach Bob Higgins and his lieutenants hold sway in the Football Office. Lest the grapevine burgeon to the point that "Custis Will Lead Lions in '50," the Hig prevailed upon us to quote him busily:

"We don't want Bernie Custis to come to Penn State. Athletic friendship between the two schools has always been good, and we want to keep it that way. If Custis were to transfer, it would only cause friction."

"We have never contacted Custis and wouldn't know him if we saw him now. The closest we ever got to him was the time he ran out of bounds in the State-Syracuse game."

"Custis should remain at Syracuse. That's where he belongs and we hope he'll stay."

All of which states in no uncertain terms that the Hig doesn't want Custis.

Davis Discusses Cancer Education At Opening Class

"Basic Philosophy of Cancer Education" will be discussed by Dr. Arthur F. Davis, professor of physical education, at the opening class meetings of the Cancer Refresher Course at the College at 9 a.m. Friday.

Ten guest speakers and two faculty members are listed for the three-day program which begins with registration in 105 White Hall from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. tomorrow. Dr. Davis is directing the course.

Also scheduled to speak Friday morning are Dr. Aubrey Schneider, assistant director, statistical research section of the medical and scientific department, American Cancer Society, and Dr. Andrew J. Donnelly of the Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia.

Cancer Statistics

Dr. Schneider will talk at 9:45 a.m. on "What Cancer Statistics Mean in Public Education" while Dr. Donnelly will speak one hour later on "The Knowns and Unknowns About Cancer." A general discussion period is scheduled for 11:30 a.m.

Cancer motion pictures will be shown at 1 p.m. and Irving C. Boerlin, supervisor of Audio-Visual Aids, Central Extension, will discuss "Classroom Media and Teaching Techniques" at 2 p.m.

"The Cancer Program in High School" will be the subject of a lecture at 2:45 p.m. by Dr. Elmer B. Cattrell, chief of health and physical education, Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction.

Interesting Teaching

Mrs. Myrtle I. Gilchrist, associate health education consultant, services section, department of lay education, American Cancer Society, New York, will talk at 3:45 p.m. on "Making Cancer Teaching Interesting and Effective."

A half-hour general discussion period will follow Mrs. Gilchrist's lecture to conclude the Friday program.

The program is being offered for junior and senior high school instructors in the state and is open to all interested individuals or groups, Dr. Davis said.

College Sends Students To Hotel Exposition

Twenty hotel administration students and two faculty members will represent the College at the 33rd National Hotel Exposition next week.

Located at Grand Central Palace, New York, N. Y., the annual event will be held from Monday through Friday.

The students, all members of the Penn State Junior Chapter, Hotel Greeters of America, will be accompanied by Miss Esther A. Atkinson and Richard Bower of the hotel administration faculty.

An exhibit, depicting training and academic phases in college life, will be sponsored by the group. A large map, pin-pointed at State College, and showing the location and duties of hotel

Correction

The names of two performers in "Ten Nights in a Barroom" were incorrectly stated in yesterday's Daily Collegian. Joseph Bird played the part of Harvey Green, and Marvin Fisher sang Gay Nineties tunes between acts.

Dr Frear's Index On Fungicides Out

Volume II of a "Catalogue of Insecticides and Fungicides" by Dr. Donald E. H. Frear, researcher in agriculture bio-chemistry, is now available from the printers, Chronica Botanica Company, and is on sale at bookstores.

Volume I was published in December, 1947, and has attained wide use in the manufacture of this type of agricultural chemicals. It consists of a printed version of a list of materials entered in approximately 10,000 indexed cards, so arranged that they may be mechanically sorted into various associated groups. All chemicals of known usefulness or of tested insecticidal or fungicidal value have been included.

Scientists and students are being aided by this work since these volumes provide a quick means of evaluating chemicals in the continuous search for better materials in the war against crop pestilence. In like manner, commercial concerns are being helped to manufacture better products.

This catalog representing years of collection and correlation of pertinent chemical data, will allow the search for insecticides and fungicides to become systematic and more direct in the fulfillment of current needs.

This compilation is being continued and more material will be added as the usefulness of chemicals develops, Dr. Frear indicated.

Conference Discusses Speech, Hearing Problems

The Undergraduate Speech and Hearing clinic held a conference on the campus last week to enable those interested in speech and hearing problems to become acquainted.

Speakers and their topics were Dr. Jack Matthews, "Professional Opportunities in Speech Correction"; Dr. Lee Doerfler, "Professional Opportunities in Audiology"; Miss Gladys Fish, "Placement Possibilities in Pennsylvania"; and Dr. Eugene T. McDonald, "Presentation of a Laryngectomized Patient With Esophageal Speech."

A tea for the group was sponsored by Sigma Alpha Eta, a speech and hearing society founded at the College in 1946 to promote interest in speech and hearing problems.

The society has also sponsored social events for the handicapped, giving them a chance to use their newly acquired skills in non-clinical situations.

administration students during their post summer's work, will highlight the exhibit.

Faculty Briefs

Dr. Donald S. Cryder, Dr. Michael R. Cannon, and Dr. Arthur Rose, all of the department of chemical engineering at the College, attended the national meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers which was held in New York, from November 7 to the 11.

Dr. Cryder also attended the Chemical Engineering Achievement Award dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria where the achievement medal was presented to the Shell Development Company for the synthesis of glycerine from petroleum.

Viktor Lowenfeld, professor of art education spoke on a symposium at the 10th Annual Pennsylvania Art Conference in Kutztown, November 12 and 13. His topic was, "Pennsylvania: Re-Thinks Its Art Education Program."

Professor Lowenfeld has been a member of the committee of the State Department of Public Instruction which designed the new course of study for the schools of Pennsylvania.

Dr. George L. Haller, dean of the School of Chemistry and Physics, at the College, will address the staff and women's auxiliary of the Philipsburg hospital at Philipsburg on Thursday night.

Robert T. Grazier, Serials Librarian of the College Library, has resigned from this position to accept the librarianship of the Indiana State Teachers College at Indiana, Pennsylvania.

Grazier has been a member of the Library staff since 1940. From 1944 to 1945 he was a member of the staff of the Wayne University Library and he returned to Penn. State in 1945 as Serials Librarian, a position he has held since, except for a period of military service.

Five members of the College Library staff attended the 48th annual conference of the Pennsylvania Library Association in Pittsburgh, October 21-23. Those attending were Ralph W. McComb, Mildred Ailman, Evelyn Hensel, Elsa Lisle and Margaret Spangler.
