State, Lion Clique Chairmen Comment on Soph Elections

Robert Keller and Harold Brown, clique chairmen of the State and Lion parties respectively, commented briefly yesterday on the results of Tuesday's sophomore elections.

Speaking for the State party whose candidates won the presidency and vice-presidency, Keller said he was certain the victors would go about putting the party platform into effect at once.

"The 13-point platform," Keller explained, "includes four points created by the sophomores. These cover 'stimulating the functions of the Association of Independent Men, improving dining commons food, supporting the Interfraternity Council in its stand on the dating code, and reviving the campus 'Hello' spirit.'"

Kenneth Rolston

Kenneth Rolston, who was elected sophomore president by a 55-vote majority over Lion candidate Lewis Shallcross, will take his seat on All-College Cabinet tonight. Votes cast for president totaled 937.

Brown, of the Lion party, said that although he was sorry the party did not capture the first two offices, he knows that Lois Kenyon, newly elected secretary-treasurer, will do her job well. The party will continue to work "for better student government at Penn State," Brown said.

Miss Kenyon, who will become a member of the Inter-Class Finance Board, won over Robert Longenecker with an edge of 48 votes, out of 926 that were cast.

In vice-presidential balloting, State's Barbara Niesley held a margin of 62 votes over William Snyder of the Lion party.

Cabinet to Induct Soph President

All-College Cabinet will meet in 201 Old Main at 8 p.m. tonight to induct Kenneth Rolston, newly-elected president of the sophomore class, and will hear a report from the Association of Independent Men committee by Donald Little, chairman.

Four other items are on the agenda. One of these is a report on the coming separation of the home economics department from the School of Education, to be given by Joseph Daniels, member of the education student council.

Constitution Revision

The student-governing body of which William Lawless is chairman will appoint a committee for revision of the constitution, and another "to look into the feasibility of the bi-cameral system in student government."

Mention of the two-house form of government also was made in the State party platforms of the past two years. The plank called for an investigation of the system.

US Sends Marines to China

WASHINGTON—The United States is going to send 1,000 more marines to China to augment the force of 3,600 already there. The Americans are stationed at Tsingtao, the location of an American task force. The state department did not state whether the marines would fight if the Communists attacked the city.

Berlin Crisis

PARIS—United Nations leaders Trygve Lie and Herbert Evatt continued their efforts to settle the Berlin dispute yesterday by urging the Big Four to support the mediation efforts of Argentina's Juan Bramuglia. The plea came after the four powers rejected their proposals for talks on Berlin.

Talmage Installed

ATLANTA—A Talmadge is back in power in Georgia. Thirty-five-year-old Herman Talmadge took office as governor in At-

NSA To Discuss Co-op Research

Regular NSA meeting will be held in 8 Sparks at 8:30 p.m. tonight. Special research activities concerning student co-operative stores, student employment, health and recreation services and foreign student hospitality head the agenda for tonight's meeting.

The student government commission will study faculty rating systems, student leadership training and bicameral legislature for student governing bodies.

Pennsylvania region's musicale, planned for late April in Philadelphia and study of a campus chest or consolidated relief drive head the activities of the student welfare commission. This group will also investigate the possibilities of establishing exchange scholarships and an international house on campus.

NSA Officers

Officers elected for the coming year are Florence Drummond, secretary, and Leonard Stein, treasurer.

Chairmen of the commission are William Ott, student government; Oliver Blackwell, student welfare; and Joel Bachman, international affairs.

Critique Offers Pitt Game Trip

An expense-free trip for two to the Pitt game with hotel accommodations in Pittsburgh will be awarded tonight in a contest sponsored by Critique.

Students may become eligible for the contest by purchasing a 60-cent subscription to the magazine. Those who previously purchased subscriptions in the Penn game contest also will be eligible.

Announcement of the award will be made in 1 Carnegie Hall at 7:30 p.m. today by Ralph Lewis, editor of Critique, and subscriptions will be on sale throughout the day at the magazine's Corner Room booth. Each 60-cent subscription will entitle the purchaser to four issues of the magazine.

Winner of the trip to the Penn game was Frank McKean, Phi Gamma Delta sophomore.

Critique will be on sale Dec. 1.

Blue Band Heftier Than Higgins' Gridmen

The Penn State football team is suddenly paling into insignificance.

Statisticians have come out with this startling announcement after delving into the impressive facts and figures making up the 1948 Blue Band roster published in the Temple game program.

Ominously stronger in numbers, with a ratio of 81 members to the team's 51, the Blue Band boasts three more six-footers than the gridgers. Tom McDermott, heftiest member of the squad at 220 pounds, appears puny next to 250-pound cornet player Eugene Golla.

All of which information, added to the phenomenal stamina of the Blue Band members, whose normal march cadence is nearly three steps per second, leaves us wondering if maybe the Thespians weren't kidding in their prediction that in a few years the Higginsmen will be hollering to the Blue Band to bring back their wingback.

Men's Debate Team

The men's debate team left this morning for Burlington, Vt., beginning a tour of 36 colleges and meeting 112 teams. David Barron, Richard Hill, Herman Latt and Richard Schweiker will compose the team. Debate coach Joseph F. O'Brien will accompany the team.

Committee Completes Naming Personalities for Who's Who

At a special business dinner last night, the selections committee of the 1948-49 publication of "Who's Who In the News at Penn State" completed the selecting of approximately 300 names of outstanding students to be included in the publication.

The committee includes William Lawless, All-College president; Janet Lyons, WSGA president; Joseph Colone, Men's Athletic Association president; Lew Stone, Collegian editor; Arnold Gerton and Selma Zasofsky, Who's Who editor and associate editor.

Pittsburgh Alumni Plan 'Beat Pitt' Smoker

The annual "Beat Pitt" rally and smoker, sponsored by the Penn State Alumni Club of Pittsburgh, will be held in the Pittsburgh room of the William Penn Hotel at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Arrangements have been made by the club to show movies of the Penn State - Michigan State and Penn State - Penn football games. Tickets may be purchased at the smoker.

Students and alumni are invited. An unusual feature is that women are invited also. Entertainment will be provided by the Blue Band.

The Penn State Alumni Association will establish service headquarters in the lobby of the William Penn on Friday and Saturday nights.

Workman in Hospital After Falling 15 Feet

Edgar Wallace, workman of the Moyer Brothers Construction Co., is in the Centre County hospital in Bellefonte today after falling 15 feet from the Plant Industries Building project on campus yesterday.

Mr. Wallace was taken to the hospital by the State College Borough ambulance after his accident yesterday afternoon. Although no external injuries were evident, x-rays will be taken today.

Book Exchange

Many students who sold books through the book exchange have not turned in their receipts at Student Union, Joanne Hobbs, chairman of the student-operated exchange, said yesterday.

Receipts will be cashed in on presentation at the SU desk. Miss Hobbs said.

Campus IRC Convention Draws 78 Delegations

Delegates from 78 colleges and universities throughout the middle Atlantic region and Canada will arrive tomorrow afternoon for the beginning of the International Relations Club conference which will continue until Sunday afternoon.

Problems of United States and Russian relations will be discussed at five round table discussions this weekend when International Relations Clubs meet at Penn State for their annual Middle Atlantic Conference.

Dr. Clyde Eagleton

Each round table will discuss a different phase of the relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, including ideological, political, and economic problems, and the position of the United Nations in solving problems of the two countries.

Russian Relations

Talks on relations between the United States and Russia will be given by Dr. Clyde Eagleton, director of the graduate School of Arts and Sciences, New York University, Dr. Philip Morrison of the Department of Physics, Rockefeller Hall, Cornell University, and Dr. Herbert Feis, former special advisor on economic affairs to the Secretary of State.

Round table discussions will be conducted Saturday morning between 9 and 11:30 in the east and west lounges of Atherton Hall, and in Rooms 307, 401 and 405, Old Main. There will also be a faculty advisors' round table conducted at the Nittany Lion Inn.

The conference staff includes Dr. Larry Leonard, club advisor; Steve Perialas, program chairman; Pat Botkin, secretary; Robert Keller, chairman; Dick Schlegle, secretary general; all are ex-officio members.

The staff includes Bill Ricketts, Ginny Hartman, Charles Edwards, George Keenen, Carmen Stanzola, Mike Ritz and Charles Wilson.

Publicity Committee

Publicity, Nancy Cray, chairman; William Herrmann, assistant; Anne Allan and Dorothy Richardson.

Towel, Paint Can Clues Point to Lion Dauber

A white towel tinged with red, and a paint can are chief clues of the College Campus Patrol and the State Police today as they search for the culprit who painted the "TU" on the Nittany Lion shrine.

Police today asked any State College resident who provided a room for a Temple student and is missing a towel to call the Campus Patrol. Information received will not be disclosed.
