to the NAACP program against discrimination, Miss Marion O. Bond of New York was presented.

Definite Step

Miss Bond, field representative of NAACP, characterized the boycott movement as a "definite step to fight the denial of American rights."

"We are not asking any favors," she went on. "We're asking that men be judged on their merit, not on color. We're patiently seeking rights given to all Americans."

David H. McKinley, assistant professor of economics, earlier told the shivering crowd that the elimination of old prejudices takes longer than a day or a week, but that the present attempt could be made an important step in that direction.

Jack Sirott as master of ceremonies introduced William Law-
