

'Mademoiselle' Requests Coeds To Enter Short Story Contest

Mademoiselle is awarding $1,000 in prizes to two undergraduates who write the best short stories to be published in the August 1949 issue of Mademoiselle.

To be eligible for the college fiction contest, one must be a woman undergraduate. Her story may have appeared in undergraduate college publications, but only if it has not been published elsewhere will it be accepted.

This does not mean that a story entered into the contest has to be one that was previously published.

The story must be between 3,000 and 5,000 words, type-written, double-spaced, one side of paper only, accompanied by contestant's clearly marked name, home address, college address, and college year.

Judges of the contest are the Mademoiselle editors.

Entries must be postmarked no later than midnight, April 15, and submitted to College Fiction Contest, Mademoiselle, 122 East 42nd Street, New York 17, New York.

Stories of previous winners of this contest have been published in The Best American Short Stories and O. Henry Prize Stories of 1947.
