VA Explains NSLI Policy

Many veterans who have recently received their National Service Life Insurance policies from the Veterans Administration have noted that the policy does not name a beneficiary, VA officials said yesterday.

A question has arisen in the mind of the veteran concerning this fact because a beneficiary had been originally designated by the insured. According to the Veterans Administration, there are many sound reasons why the name of the beneficiary does not appear on the face of each policy.

In order to explain this matter to the veterans, Louis P. Nardi, contact representative for the Veterans Administration, will be on campus at the VA building from 10:30 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. on Thursday, February 17.

Mr. Nardi will also discuss any Veterans Administration benefit or assist veterans and their dependents in the completion of any forms that may be required at this time.

Applicants must have completed a standard professional engineering curriculum leading to a bachelor's degree or must have had four years of technical experience, or a time-equivalent combination of these.

In addition, one to three years of professional engineering experience is required; graduate study may be substituted for two years of experience.

Further information is available at first- and second-class post offices. Applications will be accepted by the commission until further notice, but early consideration will be given to those received by Feb. 10.

The Nittany Realm

and Sykes must not only strike off dates when school is not in session, but also look a day in front—and a day after, to "let the boys recuperate."

Basketball has its scheduling advantages though. The games can be extended through a couple of months, whereas in some sports like boxing, "you have to run right straight through or the boys lose interest."

It has another! The IM department doesn't have to figure on what the weather will do and when. Touch football, or tennis, or softball? Ouch!

Then in the hardwood game, there's no worry about a coach's being present. Coaches, despite what you may think, are pushed for time, and a sport like boxing, soccer or swimming necessitates that someone by there who knows what the score is.

WILLING

Officials? The intramural department is lucky to have so many willing and able Physical Education majors to keep this from being a pressing problem.

"Now that we have the dates worked out," Dutch reflected, "we can arrange the time of games for each of our basketball entries. We don't want one team playing all early games and another working late. We'll mix them up."

Thinking a moment, Gene offered, "Yes, and shuffle the courts a little also. Some of the boys think one court is harder to play on than another. And be sure that one outfit doesn't play most of its games on Friday, or Thursday, or any one day."

After they had finished the scheduling, the IM directors turned to compile a few pages of summary figures on boxing, so the work wouldn't pile up.

And so it goes on for every sport, all year!
Pass the aspirin, please.
