

Cards Solicit Traveling OK

Postcards asking parents' consent for inclusion of 1 o'clock traveling permission as part of the blanket permission have been sent to approximately three-fourths of women's parents, Miss Edith Zinn, assistant to the Dean of Women, explained to WSGA at its meeting last week.

The remainder will be sent out in the very near future, she added. According to WSGA regulations, coeds are already granted two late returns, after dormitory closing hours and before 1 o'clock, provided parents' permission has reached the hostess before closing hours.

Advance Parents' Consent

The affirmative answer, including traveling permission as part of the blanket permission, merely gives parents' consent in advance and requires only that a girl desiring a late return sign out for it beforehand or phone her request before the dormitory closing hour.

Thus, she may take her two late returns without special written consent, provided her parents sign the affirmative answer, and she notifies her hostess before closing hours. Parents signing the alternative answer require that their daughter must have special written consent before using either of her late returns.

Eleven O'clocks

WSGA voted to extend eleven o'clock week night permissions to all coeds who are on campus for their last full semester before graduating, providing they apply to and gain approval of Judicial. This will pertain to seventh semester coeds who plan to complete their work in the summer sessions. Applications must go to Elisabeth Taylor, president of Judicial, through the dean of women's office.
