

Student Councils Engineering

This is the second in a series of stories to be published by the Daily Collegian concerning the student councils of the various schools of the College.

The purpose of the Engineering Student Council is to act as "the voice of the student engineer" in seeking to improve the effectiveness of the School of Engineering. Also, to promote a finer student-faculty relationship and to maintain a friendlier Penn State spirit.

The Engineering Student Council is composed of a junior and senior representative from each of the six departments of the School of Engineering. These official representatives are nominated and elected by the students they represent in general elections held during the spring semester. Ex-officio members to the council are also elected by the engineering honorary fraternities such as Sigma Tau, Chi Epsilon, Pi Tau Sigma, Tau Beta Pi, and the student branches of the several professional engineering societies.

Projects undertaken by the Engineering Student Council are a course and instructor rating program with Dick Brown as chairman; engineering open house, John Chiquoine, chairman; faculty talent show, Dean Harrison, chairman; engineering suggestion box, John Kutney, chairman; Engineering Newsletter; representation on All-College Cabinet; special projects for the benefit of engineering students; and student-faculty mixers.

Present officers of the council are Milton C. Stone, president; John Chiquoine, vice president; George Potter, secretary; and Donald Fogelsanger, treasurer.

Civil Eng Honorary Initiates 13 Men

Chi Epsilon, national civil engineering honorary, recently initiated 13 men and elected officers for the present term.

Initiated into the honorary fraternity were Joel Z. Bachman, Norman T. Cochrane, John C. Deck, William A. Garlow, Donald M. Keagy, John H. Laishaw, Calvin E. Levis, William H. McGonnell, Thomas M. Miller, Richard R. Pulling, Jesse P. Smith, Donald L. Tanner, Richard H. Young.

Nittany Council Revises Groups

Committees of the Nittany Dormitory council were revised at a recent reorganization meeting at which new members to the group were installed.

Committee chairmen named by Council President Daniel Cottone were, executive committee, Daniel Cottone; public welfare, Howard Eckert; dining hall, Paul J. Kritsky; publicity, David G. Orrell; scholarship, Frank Shinaly, and recreation, Frank Lucia.

Serving as heads of recreation sub-committees are, sports and games, Joseph Lane; forums, Frank Lucia; movies, George Demshock; co-recreation, George Wolff; hobbies, Charles Morrison, and music, Louis G. Manino.

Assisting Cottone as council officers are Paul J. Kritsky, vice-president; John F. Grillo, secretary; and Frank Lucia, treasurer. The council was originally elected for a two-semester term but some vacancies were caused by members moving from the area.

No Open House

The School of Engineering will return to its pre-war practice of having an Engineering Open House only every other year, according to Milton Stone, Student Council president. It will not be held this year. In the off years, the Schools of Chemistry and Physics, and Mineral Industries will probably hold their open houses.

MI Announces Fall Dean's List

Thirty-one students in the School of Mineral Industries who made scholastic averages of 2.5 or better for the fall term have been placed on the Dean's List, Edward Steidle, dean of the school, announced recently. The list includes 17 seniors, 11 juniors, and 3 sophomores. Paul Nickola, a junior in meteorology, received a perfect 3 average.
