Bill Sets Quotas For Immigrants

WASHINGTON—The House has passed a bill opening up citizenship to immigrants from various Pacific areas and the Far East, including Japan. The bill created quotas for these areas and these quotas would be deducted from quotas for other parts of the world. The bill now awaits Senate action.

Joe Louis Retires

MIAMI BEACH—Heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis yesterday sent his resignation to officials of the National Boxing Association. He will sponsor a bout between Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott. The winner of that bout will inherit the title but must fight either Lee Savold or Gus Lesnevich within the following 90 days.

Rain Making Monopoly

NEW HAVEN—An Ohio State University law professor thinks that the government should have a law against promiscuous rain-making. Professor Vaughn Bell expresses his views in the current issue of the Yale Law Journal. He pointed out that weather experimenters deal with phenomena which can affect American life and property to the extent of many billions of dollars each year. For the time being, he suggests, such experimenting should be a government monopoly, and not something with which anyone can play.

Preview Honors Campus Finalist

Marjorie Alsberg, main campus claimant for the title of "Miss Penn State Freshman," and her eight erstwhile rivals will be honored tomorrow afternoon at a special showing of the technicolor film which was responsible for the nation-wide search for a freshman beauty.

Names of the finalists at the Erie and Swarthmore centers have been received by the Daily Collegian, and will be released when the others are known.

Penn State was selected in a poll of 257 college student newspapers as one of 18 universities from which the most remarkable college freshman will be chosen.

World premieres of "Mother Is a Freshman" will be conducted simultaneously in the college towns. Loretta Young and Vane Johnson star in the college-life comedy.

By special permission, Penn State was permitted to conduct preliminary judging at seven off-campus centers, as well as the main campus. Finalists from the centers will join Miss Alsberg on March 10 for final judging. The queen will reign over the premiere at the Cathum that evening.

Other local contenders were Sonya Brown, Mary Decker, Nessa Green, Joan Grossman, Patricia Kribs, Ruth Peoples, Jane Strawn and Phyllis Vorseheim. They were judged by male members of the Collegian senior editorial and business boards.

Also invited to the sneak preview were the judges for the finals, members of the contest committee, members of Collegian, Inc., deans of all schools, deans of men and women, assistants to the president and other administrative officials.

BX Money Available

Money for books sold through the BX last semester is now available at Student Union. Joanne Hobbs, BX chairman, urges all students who have not yet claimed their funds to do so as soon as possible.

Five-Man Cast Gallops To 5 O'Clock Success

By Jack Reen

Five-man cast galloping all over the crowded stage in surprisingly orderly confusion, "St. Levy's," a 20-minute comedy by Hank Glass presented yesterday by the Five O'Clock Theatre, had the capacity audience wondering if life really can be like that!

Well, it can, and is. "St. Levy's" concerns collegiate life shared by five men in cramped quarters, and is based on fact. Four-fifths of the cast, Glass and three others, live a comparable life, believe it or not, at 222 West Beaver avenue, the prototype of "St. Levy's."

Begins Quietly

The play begins quietly enough, with Tom Lyon as the cook of the five. One by one the rest of the cast appears, and pandemonium breaks loose.

A letter from home is loudly recited by Ted Mann as Howie, the "hot-dogger"; Frank Fatsie as Tony, the writer, tries to force his "masterpiece" on someone's ears; Art Ward as Mike, the fencer, is all wrapped up in a phone call; and Dan Wargo as Marvin. emotes Macbeth.

Finally, the meal prepared, relative quiet triumphs again. Then, more pandemonium.

Ham is the main dish, the day is Friday, and the group is representative of Judaism, Catholicism and Protestantism. The curtain falls on a near riot.

Natural Production

As natural a production as many of us will ever see as far as acting is concerned, "St. Levy's" was the most believable of the three plays presented so far by the Five O'Clock Theatre. Based as it is on life, the play was all the more difficult to present convincingly, and the cast, directed by Steve Perialas, did it to perfection.

Icy Blast Disillusions First Harbinger Of Spring

Following a period of more than a week of spring-like weather, Monday saw a revolting change, with snow covering the ground and filling the air. The temperature hovered in the low thirties until early in the afternoon, when icy blasts from the north forced it even lower.

It was at this most inopportune time that the first harbinger of spring—a robin—appeared on the campus of the College. This hardy but disillusions creature was noticed hopping stiffly about in the lee of the Collegian offices by several of the paper's staff members.

This rare avis, obviously misled by prophecies of an early spring, was undoubtedly huddled near the Collegian office hoping to absorb some little warmth from the hot news scoops which issue forth from within.

Pollock Council Elects Officers

James Balog was elected president of the Pollock Circle Dormitory council at a recent reorganization meeting. Other officers elected were: John Kelly, vice-president; George Gruber, secretary; and Kenneth DeMuth, treasurer.

It was announced that Harrison M. Tietz, associate professor of human anatomy and physiology at the College, would present the second in a series of lectures on Courtship and Marriage at the PUB at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The talk will deal, in non-technical terms, with the biological aspects of the topic. Sponsoring the talks is the Forum committee of the council, headed by John Orgo.

The council also considered an idea proposed by Arthur R. Warnock, dean of men, that students in the various schools of the College be placed together in the same dormitories. No action was taken.

Sartre's Plays Open Readings

The College Library will open the Wednesday Reading Series with readings from the plays of Jean Paul Sartre, the French existentialist philosopher, in 105 Library at 4:15 p.m. today.

Dr. Robert J. Clements will read selections from Mr. Sartre's plays, including "Red Gloves," now playing on Broadway with Charles Boyer and John Dall.

The other readings in the 17th series will include selections from the plays of Eugene O'Neill by Frank Neusbaum, administrative head, Moton Picture and Recording Studio; Tirso de Molina, by N. M. Brentin, assistant professor of romance languages; Goethe, by Dr. Philip A. Shelley, professor and head of the department of German; and Tennessee Williams, by Robert Reifsnieder, assistant professor of dramatics.

Students, faculty, and townspeople are invited to attend the readings.

Spring Week Carnival To Be WSSF Project

As one of the events scheduled for the All-College Spring Week, the World Student Service Fund will sponsor the carnival to be held on South Allen street March 31, according to James Dunaway, Spring Week committee chairman.

Proceeds of the carnival will go to the College World Student Service Fund drive headed this year by Donald Copeland and Mark Elcan, co-chairmen.

Artists' Course Loses Chairman

When Dr. Carl E. Marquardt presented Helen Traubel, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, at Schwab Auditorium Monday night, he brought to an official close his long and distinguished service to the College and as chairman of the Artists' Course committee.

Dr. Marquardt, who has served the College since 1909, has been chairman of the Artists' Course committee for 16 years and has brought to the campus such outstanding personalities as Jose Iturbi, Sergei Rachmaninoff, Georges Enesco, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Paul Robeson and John Charles Thomas.

Taught German

Dr. Marquardt joined the faculty in 1909 as an instructor in German, was appointed associate professor of French in 1919, and professor of romance philology in 1923. He assumed the duties of college examiner, then a part-time job, in 1920 and last year was named assistant dean of admissions and college examiner.

During Dr. Marquardt's first year as college examiner, he handled the records of 79 undergraduates who transferred to Penn State from other colleges. Last year, his office approved the records of more than 2000 transfer students in addition to 1117 graduate students. During his years as college examiner, he has approved the admission of more than 26,000 students.

Phi Beta Kappa

Dr. Marquardt is considered by many to be the father of the Phi Beta Kappa chapter at the College. In 1920 he organized an association of Phi Beta Kappa members. The group was instrumental in having a chapter of the national honor society installed at the College in 1937 and Dr. Marquardt was chosen as the first president. He continues to serve as historian.

News Briefs

Cost of raw materials, exclusive of booth construction, may be itemized and turned in to the committee for the purpose of reimbursement, if so desired. However, WSSF will not be responsible for any losses incurred.

No Entry Fee
There will be no entry fee, and all campus organizations may participate in this carnival to be held from 2 to 10 p.m. Thursday of Spring Week.

Any group desiring to enter a booth in the carnival should send a detailed description of the proposed activity to Miss Betty Hanna, Penn State Christian Association, 304 Old Main, by next Wednesday. All entries will be screened for the protection of the applicants, therefore the entry bearing the earliest postmark will be given preference in case of duplications.

Frosh Women Arrive in Fall

Approximately 500 freshmen women will be on campus for the fall term of 1949. This will be the first time since the fall semester of 1945 that freshmen have been admitted directly to campus without first spending a semester or a year at one of the cooperating colleges, according to Royal Gerhardt, dean of admissions and registrar.

Women students who live within commuting distance of one of the centers, state teachers colleges or cooperating colleges will be assigned to that institution providing the school offers the curriculum the student desires. If a student will be unable to commute, or the school which she is able to commute to, does not offer the curriculum she wishes to follow, then she will be eligible for consideration to come on to the campus.

In addition to the estimated 500 women who will actually take instruction on campus, approximately 500 more freshmen women will be enrolled at the teachers colleges, cooperating private colleges, and centers as they have been during the past three years.

At the present time there are no plans to admit freshmen men directly to campus.

Collegian Promotions

Four men were promoted to the junior editorial board of the Daily Collegian, by the senior board. They are Raymond Koehler, Robert Kotzbauer, Roy McHenry and John Senior.

Home Ec Club

Home Ec Club will hold its weekly coffee hours in the Living Center, Home Economics Building at 9 and 11 a.m. tomorrow.
