

Gym Class, Contest Contribute To Loss of Voice for Queen

This is the first of a series of thumbnail sketches of the finalists in the Miss Penn State Freshman Coed contest. No. 1 is Miss Margie Alsberg, representing Penn State campus.

Margie has temporarily lost her voice. But she still has all the other attributes that go to make up a winner for the Miss Penn State Freshman Coed contest. "Margie is Margie Alsberg, 5' 5", of Melrose Park.

Her voice has been frayed since she was first introduced to the Freshman Coed contest in the midst of a slight cold. Margie tried to beg off of gym class yesterday and was permitted to sit on the sidelines and score volleyball.

Tomorrow, Swarthmore Center's entry will be presented in thumbnail sketch. Be sure and mark your ballot for your choice of Miss Penn State Freshman Coed.

Every couple minutes someone asked for the score, which had to be relayed verbally. Consequently Margie now is speaking little more than a whisper. But this doesn't stop her from talking, which she does in a lively, continuous stream.

New on Campus

This is only her third week on campus. Various phases of the contest have kept her whirling since last week. Though she thinks being selected to represent the campus in the Freshman Coed contest is just "wonderful" she is taking it in stride.

Margie spent one semester at Syracuse University, transferring here in Liberal Arts, majoring in sociology. While at Syracuse, Margie specialized in dramatics. One of the hardest workers in the Syracuse productions was Margie, says Margie, and to see her you could believe it. She is vivacious and untiring.

When told that she might have an opportunity to speak on the radio, she said, "Oh, yes, I know. Eighteen inches from the 'mike.'" She had been in a radio class at Syracuse.

Atmosphere

Margie lives in Mac Hall. She would like to spend her remaining three years of her college life living in Mac Hall, she says. She thinks its "homey" atmosphere makes it the best of any dorm.

Already she knows many people at Penn State. Noticing a picture of a girl in a swimming team suit, Margie identified her. Margie is a team swimmer herself and is firmly convinced of the beauty and grace of aquatics.

Kappa Phi Holds Bazaar Saturday

Kappa Phi, Methodist girls organization on campus, will hold its annual bazaar in the store room across from Old Main on College avenue tomorrow.

The bazaar consists mainly of a baked goods sale, cake, cookies, and candy, but other useful items will be on sale also.

Profits from the bazaar will go to church agencies.

White Hall Holds Sports Open House

Tomorrow night is play night. Every coed may go swimming, bowling, or use any other of White Hall's facilities from 7 to 9 p.m.

There will be badminton, volleyball, and basketball in the main gym while the play room will offer ping pong, card tables, and other games. The lounge and the club may be used for studying or resting or just talking things over with a group of girls.

Various members of WRA will be on hand to supervise and participate in the sports and games. Refreshments will be served and everyone is welcome.

against their opponents, Delta Zeta and Alpha Xi Delta. Zeta Tau Alpha won against Phi Mu. SDT Sarabelle Mazer numbed Pauline Brader of Delta Zeta 21-4, 21-5 and Marcia Baum did the same to Nat McGrew with the same scores. Fay Zelitch and Miriam Whinton rolled down the curtain by lashing DZ's doubles team Marguerite Williams and Grace Miller 21-3, 21-7.

Alpha Epsilon Phi overwhelmed Alpha Xi Delta when Joan Green beat Mary Haeseler 21-8, 21-5 and Sue Feit won against Joyce Cotter 21-18, 21-16. Alpha Xi forfeited the doubles.
