Temple Gymnasts Subdue Nittanymen

By RED ROTH

Handing the Nittany Lion gymnasts their fourth consecutive defeat, Temple's Eastern Intercollegiate champions swept to an easy 56-40 win over the Wettstonemen in Rec Hall Saturday night. The win gave the Owls undisputed possession of the Eastern title.

A large pre-basketball game crowd jeered and booed both the judges' decisions and the Temple performers as the Lions closed out the 1949 dual meet season. The setback gave the Nittanyites a season record of only one victory against four losses, all administered by Eastern Conference foes.

Each team captured three first places, but superior reserve strength in compiling seconds and thirds enabled the Owls to win handily.

Lion Captain Bill Bonsall with the Owl's Bob Stout tied for individual high scorer. Both men amassed a total of 13 points.

BONSALL
Bonsall performed in spectacular fashion to take first on the horizontal bar with 280 points. He also placed second on the flying rings, two points behind National Champion Wally Hayes of Temple, and third on the side horse.

Stout, in addition to a first place on the parallel bars, got a second place on the horizontal bar and a third in the tumbling competition.

The Blue and White gymnasts performed surprisingly well in the first three events, the side horse, horizontal bar and rope climb.

Joe Berenato, whom Lion Coach Wettstone described as "another Steve Greene," lived up to advance expectations and took the side horse event easily for Temple. Bonsall scored behind another Templar, Miles.

Bonsall's crowd-pleasing performance enabled the Lions to take 7 points in the horizontal bar and when Lion Al Postich tied Temple's Stan Robinson for first in the rope climb and Al Christie and Wendell Lomady took third and fourth, the Lions trailed the Owls by only four points, 22-26.

P-BARS
Three superlative performances on the parallel bars by Templars Bob Stout, Mike Koessian and Wally Hayes, who placed one-two-three, sealed the Lions' doom and wrapped up the meet in Cherry and White trimmings.

Stout's beautiful performance on the parallels, climaxing by a near-perfect one arm hand stand, drew loud applause from the gathering.

Spectators were treated to another excellent performance when last year's National Champion Hayes nosed out Bonsall, 268-266, on the flying rings. Bonsall's hazardous dismount brought gasps from many of the female throats.

Meade and Valentino, who placed one-two in the tumbling, gave the Nittanyites a 10-6 advantage in that event, one of the two they won.

Side horse—Won by Berenato, Temple; second, Miles, Temple; third, Bonsall, Penn State; fourth, Benner, Penn State; fifth, Ackerman, Temple.

Capital Coed Bids for Crown

This is the third of a series of thumbnail sketches of the finalists in the Miss Penn State Freshman Coed contest. Miss Shirley Long is the Harrisburg Center candidate for Miss Penn State Freshman Coed.

The State Capital has come through with a "sweet little girl with a sweet little smile." Shirley Long is her name and she hails from Johnstown.

Tomorrow, Erie Center's entry will be presented in a short sketch. Watch for ballots in the Daily Collegian and make your selection for Miss Penn State Freshman Coed.

Only 5' 1", 104 pounds, Shirley is reported to be a cheerleader of the first order. Pictures of her in cheerleading stance indicate she knows her business.

Shirley has brown hair and brown eyes and a voice which resembles Dinah Shore's.

This is her second semester at Harrisburg before transferring to Penn State campus. She will be something to look for.

Lawther --

ACCEPTED
However, in 1937 he accepted an appointment to the Penn State faculty, becoming assistant professor of physical education and athletics and head basketball coach.

Gross, his successor in the top Penn State basketball spot, is a native of Munhall, is married to the former Jane Candy of Tyrone, and is the father of two daughters.

During World War II, Gross served overseas as a captain in the 30th Infantry, participating in an early amphibious landing, and was wounded at St. Lo July 25, 1944. After his recovery he was placed in control of rehabilitation at the 65th General Hospital, in England.

Besides teaching courses in required physical education, Gross now teaches a basketball course and is an instructor in corrective physical education.

Lions Set Pace

Penn State's individual titlists in the Intercollegiate Boxing Association number 47, followed by Syracuse University with 40.

Always Represented

Leo Houck, of Penn State, will enter a team for the 26th time in the Intercollegiate Boxing Association's title tourney March 11-12.

Ed Bulletin --

Continued from page one er talking clearly and audibly. You may have to interrupt him if necessary and have him repeat what he has said if you have the slightest suspicion that not everyone has heard him.

Next, sum up what the speaker has said and obtain a decision. Not all members are good at expressing themselves and it is up to the chairman to aid them. Stop aimless discussion by recommending committee study. Keep control of the meeting at all times without stifling free comment. Invite criticism and even disagreement.

Also, ask for support. Don't argue with the speaker. Ask questions if you disagree but remember as chairman you are neutral.

If you have a comment or feel called upon to take part in partisan discussion, ask for the floor as a participant. Don't squelch a troublemaker. It's the duty of the meeting, not the chairman, to pass pants' comfort. Members of a meeting are human-beings and judgment. Be aware of particular subject to the physical laws as well as your authority. Be sure there is enough light, air, water and ashtrays.

The last point the bulletin stresses is to check at the end of the meeting to see that every member feels his particular subjects have been adequately covered. It is the chairman's duty to see that the decisions arrived at are sound and just.
