United Jewish Appeal Sets Goal at $4500

The opening kick-off of the College United Jewish Appeal campaign will take place at the Hillel Foundation 2 p.m. Sunday. The goal for 1949 is $4,500. This amount is 12½ percent higher than the 1948 goal.

Open Meeting

Sylvia Levy, general chairman of the drive urges all students interested in helping the campaign to attend the opening meeting.

Highlight of the campaign will be the Purim Carnival to be held at the Foundation Saturday night, March 20. Proceeds from the carnival will go to the United Jewish Appeal. Booths will be sponsored by fraternities, sororities and independent groups at the carnival.

King and Queen

Ballots for a Purim king and queen to reign at the carnival will be cast the night of the festivities. Nominations are being received at the Foundation. Corrine Engelsberg and Murray Bernstein are in charge of carnival arrangements.

"Empty the camps in 1949" is the theme of the United Jewish Appeal campaign. Funds raised by the drive will be employed to transport 180,000 displaced persons to Israel during 1949.

Besides moving the displaced persons to Israel, campaign funds will be used to build homes and create a new life throughout Israel, Miss Levy pointed out. The funds will also be used for the maintenance of American Jewish cultural, religious, and philanthropic institutions.

WSSF to Choose Foreign Project

A final decision on a campus World Student Service Fund project will be made at an open meeting of WSSF committees in 304 Old Main 7 p.m. Sunday. WSSF will also decide whether to accept Cabinet's proposal to handle the Spring Week Carnival with proceeds going to WSSF as designated by Cabinet.

Although Cabinet criticized a proposed WSSF plan of sending money for medical supplies to Bulgaria, Mark Elean and Donald Copelin, co-chairmen of the campus WSSF committee, stressed yesterday that the project was only a tentative one and decision will not be made until Sunday night.

Other projects being considered are books and medical supplies to the Philippines, a student tuberculosis sanatorium in Bulgaria or a general allotment for medical supplies to a number of selected countries.

"This Is Their Story," a movie sponsored by WSSF and UNESCO will be shown at the meeting. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Draz Opposes Kellum; Corleto Meets Crandell

Pairings for the 26th annual Intercollegiate Boxing Association Tournament, the largest since pre-war days, were held at the Nittany Lion Inn last night.

All teams will be represented at full strength except Western Maryland's Green Terrors who failed to enter a man in the 125-pound division. Catholic University's Coach Eddie LaFond at the last minute withdrew his alternate heavyweight entry, Frank Strasburger, from the lineup and Virginia's Coach Al York followed suit by withdrawing his entrant, Allen Smith.

Heavyweight

Only four heavyweights remain in the tourney and after a short discussion it was decided to have the semi-finals of the unlimited class staged on Friday night instead of the planned Saturday afternoon date.

Since only four heavyweight contestants are entered, all four automatically move into the semi-final round. Defending Eastern crown-wearer, Chuck Drazenovich of Penn State, meets lanky Army heavy Bill Kellum. Earlier in the season the two met in a Rec Hall dual meet which ended in a draw.

Sophomore Syracuse sensation, dynamite-punching Marty Crandell opposes ring-wise Joe Corleto of Western Maryland. Corleto has competed in three EIBA championships and was the lone conqueror of Drazenovich last season.

Benglian Draws Bye

Lion Captain John Benglian drew a bye in the first round of fisticuffing as did Western Maryland's Henry Mueller. These two meet in tomorrow afternoon's semi-finals in the 130-pound weight division.

Finance Committee Aids Spring Week Carnival

MARTY CRANDELL
Syracuse Heavyweight

Interclass Finance Committee decided last night to give full financial support to the Spring Week Carnival to be held March 31 from 2-10 p.m. on South Allen Street. The Committee, through All-College Cabinet, will present the sponsors of the best booth at the Carnival with a $190 Magnavox console radio-phonograph.

Promotion and publicity will also be financed by the Committee along with a $15 allowance for each booth to cover construction costs.

Immediately after the meeting, the Spring Week Committee released the rules for the construction, and maintenance of the booths.

$5 Deposit

Each group sponsoring a booth must make a five dollar deposit to insure a place at the Carnival. The deposit will be returned after the Carnival provided the booth is cleaned up by midnight of March 31.

Each organization will be allowed up to $15 for booth construction expenses. Money for booth prizes may be deducted from the gross receipts after the booth construction allowance has been covered.

Although the sponsors will be allowed expenses for construction, the risk of the booth prizes is held by its sponsors.

Organizations competing for the grand prizes may not sponsor food-selling booths, and activity must be restricted to the confines of a booth.

Other Prizes

In addition to the Magnavox radio, the Committee will present $25 worth of records to the second place winners and $15 worth of records to the third place winners.

Prizes will be awarded to the organizations turning in the largest receipts earned by their booth. All booth sales will be conducted by the use of tickets which will be available the day of the Carnival.

Applications should be turned in to the Spring Week Committee at the Student Union Desk before 5 p.m. March 18.

'Moon' Ticket Sale Opens

Tickets for "Dark of the Moon," Players production being presented next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, will go on sale at Student Union, 1 p.m. Monday.

Opening night seats are available for 60 cents, and those for following nights are priced at $1.

The play, written by Howard Richardson and William Berncy, will be directed by Robert Reifsnieder, instructor in dramatics. Diane Scuderi and Richard Evans head a cast of 29, which includes singers and dancers.

Mountain ditties and Burl Ives-styled songs add flavor to the poetic fantasy. Dance sequences include the lively, zestful gyrations of the square-dancing human characters and the weird, unearthly grace of witches.

The theme of "Dark of the Moon" is based on the superstition and folklore of the Smoky Mountain region. Elements of comedy, tragedy and fantasy combine with mystery and suspense to make what is said to be an intriguing and coherent whole.
