IFC Schedules April 12 For Council Elections

Elections for IFC officers have been slated for Tuesday, April 12, announced George Chapman, IFC president. Nominations for council officers will be accepted at Student Union desk on April 4 and 5. Offices to be filled are IFC president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer.

Nomination Rules

Any fraternity member may be nominated or may nominate himself. All men who are nominated must be sixth semester students now, or seventh semester next fall, and eligible to graduate at the conclusion of the Spring semester next year. All nominees must have a one All-College average.

Each fraternity in the council will be allowed one vote in the final election of officers.

Jack Fast, IFC vice-prexy and chairman of the Panhel-IFC Ball, urges all fraternities to turn in fraternity flags or banners to be displayed at the ball, to Student Union by March 28. Fast also encourages all fraternities to participate in the Spring Week carnival.

IFC sing chairman, Tom Yemm, reminds all fraternity groups that tomorrow is the deadline for entry in the song.

Security Pact Warns Russians

WASHINGTON — Russia can expect quick retaliation by the United States if it tries any aggressive moves in Western Europe. This warning is contained in the North Atlantic Security Pact, the full text of which was made public yesterday.

The treaty contains a hair-trigger defense clause which would automatically put the United States on the side of any member nation attacked by an outside power, and includes provisions for armed help, even to the extent of war. However, in the case of the United States, Congress would first have to approve such action.

Approve School Bills

WASHINGTON — The Senate Labor and Welfare Committee approved two bills providing for federal aid to schools. One bill would commit the government to pay out $300 million a year to help the states run their schools. The other would set aside $35 million a year for school health programs.

College Shows Art Displays

A collection of color prints by well-known American artists is currently on display in the Main Engineering building and an extensive exhibit of color reproductions is being planned for next Tuesday in the Home Economics building.

The current exhibit, which is located on the third floor of Main Engineering, includes such painters as Leon Kroll, Joseph Hirsch, Thomas Benton, Millard Sheets, and Grant Woods. The paintings are in oils and water colors.

Next Tuesday's exhibit, held from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. in 220 Home Economics, will be conducted by Conde Kennedy and will include paintings and drawings after the old masters. Reproductions exhibited will be available for sale. Thomas Benton's "Music Lesson" and Adolf Dehn's "Minnesota Farm" are included in the current showing. Some of Dehn's work was exhibited with the Gimbel Collection at the College last year.

The exhibit, showing work of 18 artists in all, will be open until March 28.

Library Adds Micro Reader

The newest thing in books is not a book at all, but a 3 x 5 index card which carries the text of the book.

The College Library is among the first in the country to install a Micro Reader which makes it possible to read this postcard size "book."

The card contains the usual bibliographic material found on an index card, but also contains in greatly reduced micro print the text of the book. As many as 100 pages may be printed on one card.

To read the "book," the card is placed in the Micro reader and the text is projected on a screen. Any page on the card can be focused and enlarged.

"The new device is not intended to replace books," Mrs. Margaret K. Spangler, assistant librarian explains, "but will make available many rare works that now are out of print."

Speaks Tomorrow

Dr. Hornell N. Hart, professor of sociology at Duke University, will speak on "The Inner Light and the Future of Civilization" in 121 Sparks, 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Dr. Hart, author of many books in the field of social ethics and religion, will be sponsored by the Penn State Christian Association and the State College Friends Meeting.

Belles Brave Slush To Button-Hole Subscribers

A little bit of the South blew into State College Friday, along with the snow.

Students shuffling through the slush on the Mall were being button-holed by some sweet, young, Southern things who wanted to know if they would mind answering "jus' one li'l ole question—want to buy a magazine subscription?"

Some wondered just what a Georgia "Reader's Service" was doing peddling magazines on the College campus and others were just interested in such sales promoting remarks as: "My, but y'all have pretty eyes. O'cawse that isn't part of mah regular sales talk."

Honorary Picks New Officers

Alpha Phi Omega, honorary service fraternity, elected officers recently. Those elected were Robert Cook, president; James Richards, vice-president; Robert Dieckmann, treasurer; William Zeller, recording secretary; Paul Shogren, corresponding secretary; Robert Keys, alumni secretary; Richard Kustin, historian; Elwood Rittenhouse, faculty chairman.

The fraternity has also pledged 44 men. They are Richard Albright, Donald Aurand, Ned Bell, Hugh Black, Harold Bowditch, Robert Brumberg, Robert Czapiewski, Maurice Durand, George Duvall, Albert Fegley, Oscar Fleisher, Carl Fry, William Glov. Hubert Haugh, Arthur Jaffe, Arthur Keen, James Kohl, William Lancaster, Owen Landar, Thomas Larimer, David Lockard, Bernard McCoy, Russell Mc-Lauchlan, Edward Merck, Kendall Merritt, Robert Moser, Vance Moyer, Herbert Oxford, James Phillips, Donald Reinhard. Thomas Rickert, Richard Rittenhouse, Kenneth Rockey, Paul Rowling, Thomas Sadler, Charles Schlotter, Clifford Sellers, David Silverberg, William Smiles, Gerald Smith, Theodore Williams, Clarke Young, William Zakor, Robert Zarr.

Gift Vote Tomorrow

The senior class will meet in Schwab Auditorium at 6:45 p.m. tomorrow to vote on acceptance of senior gift proposals.

College Debaters Meet For Annual Convention

Fourteen representatives of men's and women's debate teams at the College are participating in the 14th annual Pennsylvania Debaters Convention which is being held here.

Student delegates from approximately 25 Pennsylvania colleges and universities will attend the convention, which began yesterday and ends at noon today. They will discuss and act upon problems concerning the maintenance of peace and the improvement of education.

Britain Sends Debaters Here

Anglo-American relations will be approached semi-seriously as two Cambridge University students come to Penn State for the International Student Debate which will be held in Schwab Auditorium at 7 p.m. Monday.

Topic of the debate will be "Resolved: that the world would have been much happier had not the American Revolutionists left the British Empire."

To make the debate more objective the teams will be split. Richard Hill, Penn State, and Duncan Macrae, Cambridge, will argue from the affirmative viewpoint, while Percy Craddock, Cambridge, and John Fedako, will take the negative side.

Last year Penn State entertained two students from Oxford University, England, when the topic was "Resolved: that Britain and the United States should join in an Anglo-American alliance."

A sway-of-opinion vote of the audience will be taken before and after the debate. An open forum will also be held. The debate will be open to the public and there will be no admission charge.

Student Admits Guilt in Mishap

Beecher F. Russell, a senior in Liberal Arts, was released on bail yesterday after pleading guilty to charges of drunken driving.

State College police report that Russell, while speeding east on Beaver avenue, smashed into a telephone pole and backed against a parked car owned by E. T. Flebotte of State College.

Russell, charged with drunken and reckless driving and failure to stop at the scene of an accident, was brought before William Bell, Justice of the Peace, of State College.

Damage to Russell's car was estimated at $225 by police, and to Flebotte's car about $75.

Penn State Members

Members of the Penn State delegation are Richard K. Hill, convention president; James McDougall, convention secretary; Harold Brown, Frank Glackin, Marion Morelli, Alfred Musrey, Charles Petrie, and Richard Schweiker.

Women's debate delegates are Christine Altenburger, Jo Anne Esterly, Jean Hootman, Margaret Jones, Pauline Litsner, and Ella-mae Seitz.

Gavel Girl

A feature of the convention was the selection of a "Gavel Girl" from among the women delegates last night. Barbara Bounds, of Allegheny College, was chosen at a banquet meeting of the visiting debaters at the Hotel State College. Her competitors were Jean Hootman, of Penn State, and Peggy McGill, of Mt. Mercy College.

College Reports Fewer Veterans

Although 249 below that of the first semester, veteran enrollment at the College for the present semester continues to form 57 per cent of the total enrollment, R. M. Gerhardt, dean of admissions and registrar, announced yesterday.

Of the total of 5348 veterans, 47 are women students. Undergraduate veterans number 4766. There are 546 graduate students, 33 special students, and three two-year-agriculture students studying under the GI Bill.

By years, the breakdown reveals 1550 seniors, 2101 juniors, and 1115 sophomores.

A total of 276 undergraduate students, veteran and non-veteran, were admitted to Penn State from other colleges for the second semester. Of these, transfers from 102 colleges in this country and from schools in Canada, China, and Austria were recorded.

12 Days to Carnival

Hurry, hurry, hurry, step right up and put your organization in the running for the Magnavox radio console to be awarded to the booth collecting the most tickets at the big Spring Week Carnival.

With the extension of time limit until Wednesday, you still have five more days for the brain wheels to start ticking and maybe come up with the winning idea.

Meanwhile more groups have entered the rapidly expanded Carnival. Alpha Chi Sigma will have a screen of cloth with three holes cut in it at one end of their booth and at the other end a counter. The fraternity members will place their heads through the holes and patrons will have the chance to throw eggs at the "protected" heads.

But Theta Pi will have a horse-racing booth, refusing to commit themselves further at this time. "Phi Delt Spongies" is the name of the Phi Delta Theta entry. For 10 cents the customers will have the privilege of throwing a wet sponge at the unlucky Phi Delta whose head happens to be sticking out of the curtain at the rear of the booth.

Alpha Epsilon Phi has a tricky title for a tricky booth. "Getting Gertie's Garter" is the title and the booth is just that—an effort by the customer to ring the gal's ankle with a loop thrown—from behind a counter.

Hoping to repeat the success won at the Mardi Gras last semester, Theta Phi Alpha will have a dart-throwing booth.

Not one, but two, pitch penny games will attract people to the Pi Lambda Phi booth. One game will have customers throwing pennies at a board, and the other, more original, will find Pi Lam patrons trying to hit two saucers floating in a barrel.

Theta Xi, SPCA willings, will draw its customers with a "ring the goose" idea. The object will be to throw the ring around the animal's neck.

Remember there is still time to enter a booth in the Spring Week Carnival, so don't let your group be left out. Enter now!
