

House Passes Vets' Pension

Rankin's Plan Gives Veterans $90 a Month

WASHINGTON—The House has passed a veterans' pension plan which would be based on length of service. Rep. John Rankin's (D.-Miss.) plan called for $90 a month pensions for all World War I and II veterans at the age of 65.

Federal Rent Control

WASHINGTON—The country's mayors have told Congress that it is wrong to turn rent controls over to local governments. The United States Conference of Mayors adopted a resolution which said that the state and municipal governments are not equipped to protect city people on rents.

Middle-East Assured

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Acheson again assured Greece, Turkey, and Iran that the Atlantic Military Alliance does not mean they are being forgotten. The United States, he said, is as determined as ever to prevent the Red tide from spilling over into the Middle East.

Engineers Make 10 Nominations

Student Council Names Officer Candidates

Nominations for Engineering Student Council officers for the 1949-50 school year were made at the session of the council on Tuesday night.

Jesse Kehres, George Oehmler, and Robert Tinstman were nominated for president. Harold Bowditch, Donald Hackenberry, and William Hendershott are in the running for vice-president, and Frederick Auch, Blair Fissel, and Joseph Kelvington have been proposed as candidates for secretary.

Nominations Open

James Etzel is the lone nominee for treasurer, and Prof. Lawrence Perez was named for faculty advisor. All nominations will be held open until the next council meeting on April 5, when the election will be held.

Other business conducted at the meeting included a report on the progress of the Faculty Talent Show which will be presented by all the student councils as the first big event in Spring Week on March 29.

The council considered the merits of bringing politics into student council elections, and in a straw vote turned the plan down by an overwhelming majority.

A four-man committee consisting of Frederick Auch, Walter Bowditch, Milton Stone, and Robert Tinstman was appointed to investigate the possibility of establishing an Engineering Day-room.

The constitutional revision committee will present its proposals at the next meeting.

7 Days to Carnival

With the deadline past for entries in the Spring Week Carnival, the groups that have entered booths are settling down to the business of gathering props, rehearsing acts and "recruiting" pledges to serve as targets.

Delta Delta Delta has put a new twist in the "throwing things" idea. At the Tri-Delt booth the ticket holder will again be given ping pong balls to heave but his reward will be the unusual feature. If one ball goes through the hole in the canvas backdrop, a rabbit will slide out; if two balls go through a pig will slide out and if the thrower is lucky and puts three balls through, a Tri-Delt will slide out. This should provide tough competition for the other target booths.

Another gambling booth will be supplied by Beta Sigma Rho. A ball will be rolled into an area of colored cups and persons placing their bets on the color that the ball rolls into will receive coupons redeemable for a prize.

Despite some duplications, all entries for the Carnival

Wanted: Doodlings On Campus Life For Daily Collegian

Amateur cartoonists and doodlers enrolled at the College are invited to send in samples of their work for possible publication in the Daily Collegian.

These cartoon sketches must be about some phase of student life at the College or any humorous situation familiar to students anywhere.

Each cartoon submitted, if necessary, should have appropriate words for the caption accompanying it. Words applying to the cartoon may also be originated by the editors.

All sketches submitted will not be printed. The choice of the best cartoons will be made by the Collegian.

Original cartoons should be done in black or India ink on enameled or slick white paper and should not be larger than five by seven inches. All sketches should contain the artist's signature somewhere in the body of the cartoon.

Cartoons may be sent to the Daily Collegian office anytime, since this plan will continue the remainder of the semester.

Shattering Doors Raise Curiosity, Not Business

Did you ever hear of glass exploding?

You shouldn't feel too bad if you haven't, for neither had many of the onlookers who gathered around Rea and Derick's drug store, at 1:15 Tuesday when one of the glass front doors shattered without anyone's help. The explosion scattered glass onto the pavement and inside the store.

One of the onlookers explained that the glass used for doors had air pumped into it, requiring that the pressure be equal throughout. The glass explodes when it is deeply scratched, which renders the pressure unequal.

Robert Brazier, a clerk, was standing outside when the accident occurred and received a cut on his right hand when the force of the explosion sent the glass shooting out onto the pavement.

One of the observers remarked to Robert Heiser, manager of the store, that the accident had caused more curiosity than business.

"To which Mr. Heiser replied: 'I won't do it again if it doesn't bring in more more business.'"

Tribunal Fines 27 Violators

Tribunal has begun to crack down on students who are in illegal possession of campus licenses.

Four of the 27 fines administered by the campus judicial body during the past two weeks have been on charges of illegally possessing campus parking permits.

Twelve other traffic violators were let off without fines, five of them being dismissed outright and seven others receiving suspended sentences.

The 39 cases handled over the two-week period represented an increase in campus regulations of over 200 percent over the previous two-week period.

Eighteen of the fines were for $1, three were $2 assessments, five were for $3, and one violator was fined $4. The bulk of the offenses were parking violations.
