ginning, and spending the entire winter in explaining why their predictions weren't realized.

The official opening of the current baseball season comes on Tuesday, April 19, so we'd like to throw our hat into the ring.

In the American League the crystal ball discloses the following:

Cleveland—Many of the Tribe enjoyed the best season of their careers in '48 and a possible let-down can be expected. But the greatest pitching depth in either league plus an overabundance of capable reserves make the Indians the team to beat.

YANK

New York—Too many "if's", especially DiMaggio. It's been said, "As Joe goes, so go the Yanks," and Joe's ailing heel (s) may not help the Bombers go too far.

Philadelphia—May be a threat if Sam Chapman has a good year. Injuries to key performers could hurt seriously as in '48, because of lack of reserve strength.

Detroit—Houtteman's injury, plus too much dependence on rookies and veterans past their peaks make the Bengals docile at this stage.

Chicago—Betterment takes time and "Ol' Aches and Pains" Appling can't go on holding up the White Sox forever.

St. Louis—Too many rookies face the "soph jinx" and pitching staff needs capable performers.

Washington—One really good pitcher—Rae Scarborough. Nuff said.

NATIONAL

Shifting our attention to the senior circuit, we find:

Brooklyn—Depth in every department (except first base) and a capable manager in "Barney"

... of a Day of resurrection wonderful to recall. Best greetings to you all.

KEELERS

Shotton spell PENNANT for the youthful "Bums," and a replay of the 1920 World's Series.

New York—Loaded with power. If pitching can come through when hitting fails and vice versa, Giants could prove "dark horse."

Boston—Heath won't be the big help he was in '48. Dark faces the "soph jinx." Sain and Spahn may not have the excellent year they enjoyed last campaign.

St. Louis—The Red Birds are strong defensively—and there's Musial to be reckoned with. The return to form of Kurowski and Pollet could bolster the club considerably.

BUCS

Pittsburgh—Kiner can't hold the Bucs up forever. The pitching staff leaves much to be desired, though Chesnes may enjoy a good year. Reserve strength fair.

Philadelphia—Youngest ball club in baseball, but youngsters need experience. Additions should bring some help. Maybe next year.

Bears—The pitching staff has too many "maybe's". Farm clubs developing, but not to the point where they can be of help, as yet.

Cincinnati—Rhinelanders need much help in almost every department.

supreme court, Eugene's son, Herman Talmadge, gained control of the governor's chair.

Abolished Poll Tax

Probably the outstanding advance made by Arnall during his term was the abolishment of the poll tax in Georgia, although this expansion of the franchise has been compromised in recent elections. His administration also extended the voting privilege by passing a law lowering the voting age to 18, making Georgia the first state to take that step.

Arnall, heralded as the leader of the South's new liberalism, gained national fame with his suit against the major railroads to eliminate discriminatory freight rates against the South. Filed in the national Supreme Court, the suit was the first judicial test of its kind in national history.

Class President

Born at Newnan, Ga., in 1907, Arnall was the youngest governor in the nation. He was graduated from the University of Georgia where he served as class president, of the fraternity council and the honor societies. He was elected to the Georgia

General Assembly in 1932 and was named presiding officer of the House of Representatives. In 1937 he was appointed assistant attorney-general, later being chosen attorney-general and then being elected to that office in 1940.

Within three weeks of his inauguration, his entire legislative program was approved by the Georgia Assembly. A new state constitution was adopted during his regime. Included in his program were reforms in the state penal system, a teachers' retirement system, removing the education system from political control and providing absentee voting for servicemen.
