MEN, 'BODIES', MIXUP CAUSES COED UPROAR

Five men short-course students caused a near-riot in White Hall, women's recreation building, yesterday, when they appeared in the Body Mechanics room with their sleeves rolled up, and as they put it, "ready to go to work on the bodies."

The men, all students in the short course on automobile mechanics and repair, walked into White Hall unnoticed, as a group of ROTC cadets were entering to see a health movie. Entering the Body Mechanics room, hitherto sacred to the weaker sex alone, they demanded to be allowed to work on the bodies. Several of the coeds present objected strenuously. Lotta Stuff, spokesman for the group, said, "I didn't like the look in their eyes. Ever since I read those Letters to Jane I haven't trusted a man. You never can tell what they're thinking, the dogs."

To get on with the story, at this point Miss Hate, owner of White Hall, burst into the room, saw the men, and started screaming. Suspecting the worst, she raced to the Spar, local pub, where she found the Dean of Boys, Ray Wannock, slumped over the pinball machine, which was tilted. Lifting him to her shoulders, she toted him to the scene of the disorder.

Arriving at White Hall, they found that the men had left, after securing several phone numbers and addresses. Three coeds, however, were still hysterical, apparently because they had been overlooked. They were taken to the Infirmary for treatment. The coroner's report will be delivered Monday.

Campus Patrol has been notified, and steps taken to apprehend the interlopers. Captain Faux Pas Marcus stated, "Nobody can interlope like that around here and get away with it."

If you like this kind of stuff, you know where you can get more—Froth. Next Thursday, May 19th, comes Froth's final issue of the year—the Last Chance issue. It's got plenty of what you want—stories, jokes, bits of pictures—and cartoons by Ralph Meier, Dick Anderson, Hank Progar, and Sam Vaughan—we worked them overtime for you, to make you laugh.

Get your Last Chance Froth next Tuesday, and don't miss any of Froth's last leer for the year.
